PAPERS FILED WITH SECRETARY OF STATE

Executive to Act as Judge and Jury in Matter, but Commissioner Has Right of Appeal to Supreme Court for Review of Case.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28.—Gov. Hyde tonight filed in the Secretary of State's office charges against State Grain and Warehouse Commissioner James T. Bradshaw, preliminary to removing him from office.

Hyde in a lengthy statement declares that Bradshaw has been guilty of inefficiency, neglect of duty, and misconduct in office, and has set June 11 at 10 a. m. as the time at which Bradshaw may appear at the executive offices in Jefferson City and make defense if he desires.

Action Authorized by Law.

Hyde in this proceeding is acting under section 5995 of the revised statues which provide that the Governor may remove the Commissioner for inefficiency of duty or misconduct in office, giving to him a copy of the charges against him and an opportunity of being publicly heard in person or by counsel, in his own defense upon not less than ten days' notice."

This step by Hyde is a development in a fight upon Bradshaw which began when the Grain and Warehouse Commissioner openly opposed passage by the Legislature of the agricultural consolidation bill, which was passed and signed by Hyde and now threatened with referendum by the Democratic State organization which combines Bradshaw's department with a number of others and open the way to the appointment of Republicans throughout the department. Bradshaw, under his appointment by Gov. Gardner has two years longer to serve at $4500 a year. He has about 105 persons in his employ at present.

Hyde in this proceeding against Brawshaw is prosecutor, Judge and jury, but his action is subject to review by the Supreme Court and Bradshaw has said that if Hyde removes him he will take the matter into court.

Text of the Charges.

Bradshaw has been continuously in office for a number of years, having been a member of the railroad and warehouse commission before creation of the present office, which he has held from its establishment. The text of the charges follows:

"I, Arthur M. Hyde, Governor of Missouri, by virtue of authority vested in me by section 5995, revised statutes of Missouri 1919, and for the purpose of removing from the office of Warehouse Commissioner of Missouri, Honorable James T. Bradshaw, now incumbent thereof, do hereby charge that the said James T. Bradshaw, Warehouse Commissioner of Missouri, has been guilty of inefficiency, neglect of duty, and misconduct of office in the following respects and particulars:

"That, notwithstanding the said Bradshaw was by the State Auditor and the Supreme Court denied recovery out of the State Treasury of the sum of $157.40 for traveling expenses outside of the State of Missouri, he nevertheless charged the same item and amount to the private inspection fund, the surplus of which was and is due the State of Missouri. (Book 1, page 43, check number 124, record of private inspection fund.)

Alleged Illegal Bills Claimed.

"That, notwithstanding the said Bradshaw was by the State Auditor refused recovery out of the State treasury of the sum of $65.44 for a trip to Minnesota, he nevertheless charged said item to the private inspection fund above mentioned. (Book 1, page 65, check number 330, record of private inspection fund.)

"That notwithstanding the Supreme Court of Missouri held that the expense of trips outside the State were not proper charges against the State, nevertheless the said Bradshaw did on Oct. 20, 1920, charge said private inspection fund and receive therefrom the sum of $103.34 for a trip to Minneapolis. (Book 1, page 173, record of private inspection fund.)

"That notwithstanding the salary

HENRY FORD THINKING OF HARNESSING THE MISSISSIPPI AND ITS TRIBUTARIES AS HE DID THE LAZY LITTLE RIVER ROUGE

Auto Manufacturer Tells Post-Dispatch Reporter He Will Descend Stream to Study Out Plan.

Financing, He Declares, Is the Least Worry and He Sees Vast Returns From Power Developed.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DETROIT, May 28.—The River Rouge rises in Wayne County, Michigan, and runs 23 miles to the outskirts of the City of Detroit where its outpouring makes only a small reddish smudge in the blue waters of the Detroit River.

It is a little, lazy river, given to turbulence only when freshets lift it out of its banks and send it rampaging among the farms in the valley through which it passes.

One of these farms is that upon which Henry Ford was born and which he now has surrounded with an 1100-acre residential estate. Puddling along the river one day, a notion came to Ford. It was a notion that rivers, like men, are troublesome when they are listless idlers. As is said to be his practice, he began the very next day to bring the notion to expression.

How River Was Made to Work.

He built nine dams in the Rouge. Beside each dam, he installed a turbine; beside each turbine, a workshop. He spent $1,000,000 reforming the Rouge. Thereafter the river ceased its idling and began to work. It now furnishes energy which turns the turbines that move the lathes in nine shops in nine villages where no industrial employment had existed before. The smallest plant has 50 horsepower and employs 20 men. The largest has 200 horsepower and employs 200 men.

Now that the Rouge has quit idling, it has lost much of its turbulent, seasonal destructiveness and has become a steady as well as an industrious stream.

Ford, who magnified a pattern for a simple gasoline engine into a motorcar industry whose plants are valued at more than $200,000,000 and which, employing 90,000 men, can produce 1,000,000 automobiles and tractors each year, now is magnifying the River Rouge notion in his thoughts to apply to the Mississippi and all its tributaries, from the larger, like the Missouri, to the smaller, like the little, lazy Rouge.

Believes in River Reform.

He believes that if the Mississippi, like the Rouge, could be reformed into a well-behaved stream that the thousands of acres reclaimed from inundation would contribute in products an incalculable addition to the wealth of the Mississippi Valley. He believes that if the thousands of other swampy acres could be made to shed their water that further great wealth could be piled up in the valley. He believes that if the Mississippi could be transformed from an uncertain, irresponsible stream with innumerable shifting bars into a fixed channel of even depth that boats would navigate it more freely and would carry forth to the world products now impounded on valley farms because of prohibitive transportation costs.

He is inclined to believe that dams will reform the Mississippi as they did the Rouge. He believes that the further dams are extended up the tributaries and the tributaries of tributaries the more absolutely will the river be in control.

He believes further that, is, as on the Rouge, hydro-electric plants are installed beside those dams that cheap power would be distributed over the valley so evenly that the drift of population toward the cities, now the seats of industry, would be checked. Ford believes that this latter is the most desired of all the benefits and if seized would be the making of the valley and the salvation of the nation.

As he began the next day to give the River Rouge expression, he believes that this is the time to give the larger notion expression. The notion is that the problems—reclamation, flood control, navigation and power—should at this time be rolled into one large problem and its solution undertaken.

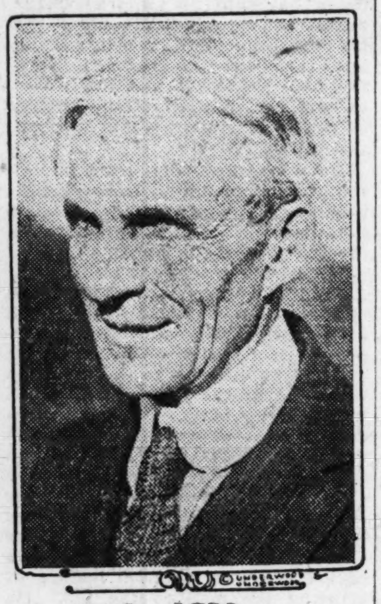
Plans Descent of Streams.

He is not certain that dams will accomplish the end, but he proposes to seek what will. He told the writer, a reporter for the Post-Dispatch who visited him in Detroit this week, that he would begin his definite acquaintance with the problem next month, when he expected to begin a descent of the river at Minneapolis, going as far south as Memphis, or as far as a two weeks' journey would take him.

"I know the river is there waiting," he said. "This thing can be done. I want to find out how."

The reporter sought Ford because of a report that had reached St. Louis that he had interested himself in the Mississippi River. The interview took place in an office at Dearborn, about 15 miles from Detroit and near Ford's residence. The office formerly was the office for a temporary tractor plant which Ford established at Dearborn and later abandoned. He now uses the office as a retreat from the hundreds who seek him at other plants.

The interview was quite lengthy. It consisted of a series of brief sentences and phrases from Ford, who seemed to be giving only flashing glimpses of what was passing in his mind. However, an associate who is familiar with the notion as it is shaping itself in Ford's mind, was present and supplied elucidating passages during frequent intervals at which Ford absented himself from the office. The fact that he returned after each departure and renewed consideration of some phase of the problem seemed to indicate that he is engrossed with the notion, as his associate says he is.



HENRY FORD

Blue prints of water power projects which hung about the walls seemed also to attest the fact. One was for Ford's new Hudson River project, which is the operation of a Ford plant on Green Island, N. Y., with power from the river. Another was the Hamilton, O., hydro-electric plant of the Ford company, already in operation. There were other plans for lazy rivers, like the Rouge, in the vicinity of Detroit.

Accepts Plan as a Fact.

He seems to have accepted as a fact that there is some plan for accomplishing the regeneration of rivers and is concerned only with what the plan is. In response to a question as to when the work should be undertaken, he replied:

"Right now," and then, as he did in many other answers, he appended a question of his own: "Why not?"

To a direct question of how, he answered: "I don't know, do you," but presently he added in a musing fashion: "Dams, I guess."

"You see," he continued, "the trouble with the river is that the water all runs out."

He explained that he understood that the chief difficulty with navigation of the river was that it carried great volumes of silt which it deposited according to its own eccentricities at various points impeding free movement of boats and requiring great expenditures for dredging. He intimated that for this reason, he thought that the proposal that the Government expend $100,000,000 for the channel improvement of the Mississippi, Missouri and Ohio rivers would be a waste, as the river would set to work filling up the dredged places.

Dams, he thought, was the logical way to make the river navigable because they would slow the river's current and it is known that as the flow is decreased the volume of silt carried declines. He said also that dams would fix a certain navigable depth—nine feet, if desired—and CHICAGO, May 28.—George E. Gorman, Assistant State's Attorney, today set the annual tax which corrupt union business agents levy on building construction work in Chicago at $1,000,000. He charged that at least $5,000,000 had been collected in the last five years.

The estimate was based on the week's investigation of the Chicago building situation, and Gorman announced an immediate grand jury investigation of an alleged $200,000 "yellow dog" defense fund said to have been collected for their own defense by indicted labor leaders.

ZIEGFELD FROLIC IS NO MORE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28.—On of the principal contributing lights in the traditional flow of Broadway's night life, the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic, is no more. In Paris, Berlin, Rome and other cities abroad the Ziegfeld Midnight Frolic has been copied.

It is understood the Frolic may reopen next season, but not in New York. It may be added to the night life of London through an agreement with Gilbert Miller, the London producer.

DAY TO BE GENERALLY OBSERVED IN CITY

Flowers Will Be Strewn From Free Bridge While Subchasers Pass, in Honor of Navy Men.

Memorial day will be generally observed in St. Louis tomorrow. Schools, banks, exchanges, city offices, courts and many business establishments will be closed.

Some advance observances will take place today, the chief of which is the civic music program in the Municipal Theater.

Tomorrow's principal ceremonial will be at Jefferson Barracks and the National Cemetery, adjoining the barracks. Members of the Grand Army of the Republic, Spanish War Veterans, American Legion and other military organizations and auxiliaries, will go to the barracks by river and rail, arriving there by 2:30 p. m. The steamer St. Paul will leave Washington avenue at 1:30 p. m., and a special train of the Missouri Pacific will leave Union Station at 2.

Troops to Pass in Review.

After the arrival at the barracks, the military organizations will assemble on the north side of the parade grounds, and will be assigned to their positions by the Grand Marshal. When the column is formed, the troops of the barracks post will pass in review, commanded by Col. John H. Parker, and will escort the military organizations to the National Cemetery. The column will move at 3:15 p. m. During the march, minute guns will be fired.

At the cemetery, exercises will be conducted from the rituals of the G. A. R. and other organizations. Lincoln's Gettysburg address will be read by J. W. Lanly, and Gen. John A. Logan's address by C. Steiner. The Children of America Loyalty League will sing.

Before the departure for the barracks, there will be a parade of the Spanish War Veterans and the American Legion, with veterans not members of organizations, on Twelfth street. Col. E. J. Spencer is marshal, Col. A. C. Orrick, chief of staff, and Maj. A. A. Marquardt, Adjutant-General. The parade will form at 12:15 p. m.

The parade will be in six divisions. The first will consist of the marshal, aides and foreign Consuls. The aides will include representatives of the military organizations in line. This division, forming the head of the column, will form on the west side of Twelfth street, at the north line of Market street.

The second division will consist of the First Regiment Infantry, National Guard of Missouri, with Col. C. S. Thornton commanding, and will assemble on the west side of Twelfth street, between Chestnut and Pine streets.

American Legion posts will form the Fifth Division, assembling on the east side of Twelfth street, from Locust street as far north as necessary. Twenty-four posts are listed in the official schedule. The American Legion band will head this division. War veterans not members of the legion are asked to march with this division.

In the Sixth Division, forming on the east side of Twelfth street, near Washington avenue, disabled veterans, headed by Thomas L. Martin, and women's auxiliary organizations will appear.

The parade, except the Sixth Division, will move south on the west side of Twelfth street to Market street, then on the east side of Twelfth street, north, to Washington avenue, and east to the place of embarkation on the steamboat. The Marshal and aides, with general officers of the military bodies, will review the parade from a stand on the east side of Twelfth street, opposite Hotel Jefferson.

CONNORS ADMITS 5 SAFE BLOWINGS AND ONE BURGLARY

Five-Time Convict Was Preparing to Rob Drug Store Again When Caught in His Candy Store.

ESCAPED ONCE AS PATROL WAGON CAME

Was Not Alarmed When He Blew Safe in the School for the Blind and Obtained $100.

Fred Connors (New York Blackie), 47-year-old safe blower and five-time convict, who was captured Thursday night in the candy and notion store which he conducted at 1714 North Taylor avenue as a "blind" to his operations in St. Louis, yesterday admitted responsibility for five safe blowings and one burglary which heretofore have been unsolved by the police.

The safe-blowings were those at the Free Laundry, 5576 Easton avenue on Sept. 14, 1920, nothing obtained; Mathis Fish Co., 2700 Franklin avenue, Sept. 27, 1920, nothing; St. Agnes Coal Co., 6012 South Broadway, Oct. 5, 1920, $720; West End Laundry, 4325 Finney avenue, Feb. 12, 1921, $200, and the Missouri School for the Blind, 3815 Magnolia avenue, March 5, 1921, $100. The burglary was that on May 18, 1921, of the Huger Drug Co. at Grand and North Market street, where he obtained $9.50.

Confessions Surprise Police.

Connors surprised the police when he entered into a detailed discussion of his operations in St. Louis. They expect beginners and youthful criminals to confess, but declare that loquaciousness on the part of an old hand, such as Connors, who has himself declared that he worked alone to maintain absolute secrecy, is unusual.

Connors, during his talk, made use of slang and vernacular new to the police. He referred to a safe as a "Johnson," and explained that it was a term used for identification purposes among safeblowers who refer to themselves as "Johnson boys." He illustrated uses of the terms by saying that if a safeblower met any person whom he thought he recognized as a safeblower the "feeling-out" salutation would be: "Have you seen Johnson?" Connors referred to nitroglycerin as "midnight julep" and called his expedition about the city studying the scenes of intended operations "scout duty."

At the opening of a conversation with Chief of Detectives Hoagland he appeared morose and sullen, but began to consider the probability of his conviction under the habitual criminal act, the penalty for which is life imprisonment. He mentioned in this connection, the fact that he had served five prison sentences. Chief Hoagland also told him that his wife had been talking, referring to an interview with Mrs. Lorna Connors, which the Post-Dispatch printed exclusively yesterday and reprints today.

Was Preparing for Burglary.

Suddenly Connors remarked, "Oh, I guess they'll throw the key away on me this time," and began talking. "You fellows came 30 minutes too soon," he said, referring to his arrest. "I had my kit packed to go over to Huger's drug store. I was over there once before and kicked it in, but before I had time to touch the Johnson there was a rumble (police rattle) at the door and I beat it."

Police records were examined and showed that the drug store of Bernard C. Huger at Grand avenue and North Market street was entered through a barred rear window on May 18 last, ransacked and $9.50 stolen.

"I liked the dump so well," Connors remarked, "that I put it down on my list for a return visit."

"I suppose I might as well tell the whole thing," he continued. "You know I always traveled alone, but some other guy might get rapped for some of the things I did alone."

He complained of the criticism of detectives on the mornings following his failures to open some of the safes he tackled. Detectives said following the attempt to enter the safe of the Free Laundry that the work was apparently that of amateurs.

"The nitro-glycerin was weak and two shots wouldn't do it," he said. "I had only two caps and would have finished the job had I had more."

He then explained that dynamite was of different strengths, some containing what is known as 90 per cent nitroglycerin content, while other contains only 40 per cent. He said that he frequently was forced to use dynamite on which the nitroglycerin content was not indicated and that he frequently underestimated the strength of the nitroglycerin he obtained from the boilings. When he chanced to use nitroglycerin ob-

FREIGHT RATE $6.25 ON SHIPMENTS THAT BRING FARMER $21.96

Vouchers Submitted by Farmer Tell How Railroads Get Their Share for Short Haul.

The Post-Dispatch has received the following letter from a Missouri farmer, calling attention to the plight of the farmer that has come with lower prices for his products and higher freight rates:

St. Clair, Mo., May 26, 1921.
Editor Post-Dispatch:

That you may have some direct information as to the kind of deal the farmer is getting, I am sending you herewith some vouchers which speak for themselves.

The first one was for a veal calf, 30 days old. (Two gallons milk per day at 25 cents a gallon, or $15.) You will see by the voucher the calf brought $8.25. Of this, the railroad company took $1.98, leaving me $6.27. The next was for a calf 40 days old. (Two gallons milk a day at 25 cents a gallon, or $20.) The calf brought $10.63. Of this the railroad took $2.27, leaving me $8.35. In other words, the railroad is taking about one-fourth of the market price for a 52-mile haul.

The other voucher was for a five-gallon can of cream, which brought $3.08; transportation was $2.00, leaving me $1.08 for 14 pounds of butter fat.

How much longer can we farmers stand this? Respectfully,
GILBERT LAY.

Vouchers attached to the letter verify the statements regarding the prices received for the calves and the cream.

For the benefit of the city dweller it may be stated that Lay's reference to milk at 25 cents a day for the calves which he sold is to what it cost him to raise the calves, $15 in the first instance and $20 in the second. With this conservative view of the expense, which, of course, does not take into account small items which might be classed under the urban "overhead," Farmer Lay lost $8.73 on the first calf, and $11.65 on the second.

HARDING ASKS YOUNGSTERS TO DECIDE FATE OF PREYING BIRDS

"Judge" Picks "Jury" of Boys and Girls, and Allows Two Weeks for Solution of Problem.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—President "Judge" Harding impaneled a youngster "jury" today to determine what fate should befall birds that prey on other birds. And to be structly up to date about, "Judge" Harding named girls as well as boys on the jury and ordered it to study the problem and report in two weeks.

The children called at the White House as members of the John Burroughs Club to present a book on "Birds in Washington" in connection with the closing day of the American Forestry Association's forest protection week. They told the "Judge" how birds eat up bugs that otherwise would eat up trees and crops. Then Mr. Harding asked about birds that kill other birds and nobody could answer, so he named the jury.

Business thus disposed of the "Judge," "the jury" and Laddie Boy, White House Airdale, went owl-hunting at a big pine tree in the executive mansion ground.

MARTIAL LAW FORECAST FOR ALL IRELAND BUT ULSTER

London Times Says Cabinet Has Decided to Send Large Reinforcements for Crown Forces Against the Republican Forces in South and West.

KITCHENER PLAN OF BLOCKHOUSES LIKELY

Naval Patrol of Coast Also Reported Considered; Sir James Craig Arranging for Opening of the Northern Irish Partliament.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 28.—The Cabinet has decided to send large re-enforcements to Ireland and it is rumored that new measures are to be adopted against the Republican forces in the South and West, according to an announcement by the London Times.

"The Government's policy for sterner repression of the criminal elements in Ireland," as it is phrased in authoritative quarters, involves the strengthening of the crown forces in Ireland.

There is some likelihood of the extension of martial law to the whole of Ireland except Ulster, but the initiative rests with Gen. Sir Nevil Macready, the Military Commander of Ireland. It was officially stated today that the reinforcements to be sent will be considerably less than 50,000 in number.

The reported decision of the Government to increase the troops in Ireland is the subject of various rumors. Newspaper versions of the situation differ considerably, the most striking story being that of the Daily Sketch.

Martial Law Mentioned.

Among the objects attributed to the Government by the Daily Sketch are the establishment of martial law throughout the whole of Ireland, a system of blockhouses such as the late Field Marshal Kitchener adopted in South Africa and wide military operations in combination with the navy around the coast to afford greater precautions against the entry of persons and goods.

The Daily Mail asserts that garrison troops abroad which can be spared are being brought home to release troops in England for service in Ireland.

One version of the situation is that the augmentation of forces concerns special constables and Black and Tans, which may be followed by an increase in the troops. There is no confirmation of any of the rumors.

Dublin Area Is Invested.

Crown forces invested a large area around Dublin Mansion House today and cordons of the military held several streets, at the ends of which barbed wire entanglements were placed.

Exhaustive searches of the houses in the neighborhood were immediately commenced. The crown forces claimed to have captured the headquarters of the Irish Republican army in a recent raid.

Courtmartial of 18 Auxiliary Cadets on Looting Charge Begun.

DUBLIN, May 28.—The courtmartial of 18 auxiliary cadets charged with looting in Antrim on Feb. 19 last in connection with which Brigadier-General Crozier, former head of the auxiliary or "Black and Tan" forces resigned, opened here today.

The indictment covers two separate raids and charges conspiracy for the purpose of robbery, actual theft and the receiving of stolen goods. The crown counsel described the offenses as mean, despicable and a discredit to the crown forces and asked for conviction of all the men. The trial, which is expected to occupy several days, was then adjourned until Monday.

French Premier Sends Note to Britain Pointing Out That Germans Continue Operations and Suggesting Plebiscite Question Await Restoration of Order.

NEUTRAL ZONE IN AREA FAVORED

Council of Ambassadors Virtually Approves Plan to Keep German and Polish Irregulars From Continuing to Fight.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 28.—Premier Briand of France has presented a note to the British Foreign Office, pointing out that the Germans are continuing their operations in Upper Silesia and suggesting that the plebiscite question await the restoration of order with the arrival of British effectives.

The French Premier is further of the opinion that, since the reports of the Allied High Commissioners are not unanimous, it is desirable that the question be submitted to a special commission, including lawyers and diplomats, who would communicate their findings to the Supreme Council.

In official circles here it is pointed out that it is essential to hold a meeting of the Supreme Council at the earliest possible moment.

The British proposal, formally made to the Council of Ambassadors for the creation of three zones in Upper Silesia to be occupied by the Poles, Germans and the allies, respectively, is favored by the Italians, and it is hoped the French Government also will agree to the plan.

PARIS, May 28.—Contrary to expectations, no date has yet been fixed for the meeting of the Allied Supreme Council at Bologne.

Premier Briand, it is understood, proposes to give the question of a division of the district over to experts, the Supreme Council not to make its decision before receiving the report of this technical examination.

The Allied Council of Ambassadors has virtually approved a plan to establish a neutral zone between the German and the Polish forces in Upper Silesia. It decided at its meeting this forenoon, however, to obtain further information desired before taking definite action.

British Troops Being Distributed in Disputed Area.

OPELIN, May 28.—The vanguard of British troops from the Rhine, who, supplemented by airplanes and tanks, are expected to assist in reestablishing order in Upper Silesia, arrived here last night. They are being distributed from here to Kreuzburg, where British general headquarters has been established.

In British quarters it was said yester that if this number of troops was unable to suppress the Polish insurgents, sufficient reinforcements for that purpose had been promised—"no matter how many thousands are required."

Memorial Day Messages of Wilson, Pershing, Weeks

Former President Says We Must Do Our After-War Duty to Enjoy Full Memorial Day Pride.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Memorial day messages bespeaking a reaffirmation of loyalty and service to the nation on the part of the American people were issued tonight by General Pershing and Secretary of War Weeks.

General Pershing declared that Memorial day "should symbolize a new consecration of our lives to service," while Secretary Weeks said it was on Memorial day, in the presence of our dead, that Americans can renew their faith in our ideals and institutions and reaffirm their pledge of unceasing loyalty to the republic."

Pershing's Message.

"Memorial day each year comes to us in the height of Spring time with all nature in blossom," said General Pershing. "It is the season when the world bursts forth in the beauty of new life, and new hopes, and when warm sentiments fill the human heart. In the midst of these surroundings our thoughts turn backward to the memory of loved ones, and we gather to honor the services and heroism of those who gave their lives to the country. We live over again with them the days of pleasure and sorrow as we review their service and sacrifice. While our hearts are saddened, I like to think that those whom we remember are here with us and that they understand why we are assembled.

"I like to feel that our new resolves spring from the rich heritage that they have left us. The season should symbolize a new consecration of our lives to service. It should cause us to reawaken our own patriotism, and renew our ideals of brotherly love and devotion to country. It should move us to search our souls for evidence that life is not a mere selfish pursuit of pleasure, or wealth, or fame. It should teach us to understand that each one is called upon to contribute to the well being of mankind and that the greater our devotion and our sacrifice, the more worthy will be our contribution to our fellow man."

Week's Message.

"Lest we forget," said Secretary Weeks, "there comes a time in the spring of each year when the nation turns from its business and industry and its citizens lay aside the implements of their professions and trades to gather in the secluded and shady paths of our national cemeteries to do honor to the nation's dead. It is a day when we turn our faces to the past instead of the future and recall the deeds of the heroic dead, whose sacrifices have made and preserved us a nation.

"I do not think we could adopt a more beautiful way of remembering our dead than the annual custom of placing flowers on the graves of those who have passed through the gateway; and it is on Memorial day, in the presence of our dead, that Americans can renew their faith in our ideals and institutions and reaffim their pledge of increasing loyalty to the republic.'

Wilson Breaks Silence.

Woodrow Wilson has broken the silence maintained since he retired from the White House on March 4, in a Memorial day letter to the editor of "The Stars and Stripes," published in that soldier periodical. The full text of the former President's letter follows:

"Memorial day has always been one of our most solemn and thoughtful anniversaries when we recalled great memories and dedicated ourselves again to the maintenance and purification of the nation, but this year it has an added and tremendous significance because the memories and sacrifices of the great war are now among the most stimulating of the recollections of the day.

"We celebrate the immortal achievements of the men who died in France on the field and in the trenches, far away from home, in order that both our own people and the peoples across the seas might be delivered from the ugliest peril of all history. It is our privilege not only to indulge a high and solemn pride and grief for the heroes of that great struggle, but also to rededicate ourselves to the achievement of the great objects for which that war was fought. We shall not be happy; we shall not be able to enjoy the full pride of the day's recollections until we have made sure that the duties that grew out of the war have been fulfilled to the utmost.

"Are we sure? If we are not shall we not soon take steps to do whatever has been omitted?

"Cordially yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

DOCTOR HELD AFTER DEATH OF MAN HE FOUGHT IN HOME

Former Army Officer Said to Have Been Battered With Household Utensils.

By the Associated Press.

DAYTON, Tenn., May 28.—Dr. W. P. Allen is held in jail here for the killing of Burch C. Gardenhire, former army officer and member of a prominent Tennessee family, at the physician's home last night.

According to evidence produced at the Coroner's inquest and information from other sources, Gardenhire went to the Allen home last night and the two men became involved in a difficulty, which was patched up. Later the trouble flamed anew, when it was charged Dr. Allen knocked Gerenhire down with a pitcher and then attacked him with every kind of utensil to be found in the room. When persons who were attracted by the screams of Mrs. Allen entered the home, household utensils of every description were scattered over the floors.

Gardenhire died this morning from his injuries. He was an officer in the world war and served in the Spanish-American war. He has a brother, Col. William Gardenhire, in the United States army.

DEMOCRATS PLAN FIELD DAY AGAINST HARVEY TUESDAY

REPETITION EVERY FEW DAYS LIKELY

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—There are troublous times ahead for Ambassador George Harvey. Public sentiment is being aroused, especially among the women, as a result of his utterances at the Pilgrims' Day Dinner in London. Indignation meetings are being held in various sections of the country. Resolutions are being adopted, protesting against Harvey, and these soon will deluge members of Congress.

Next Tuesday has been tentatively fixed by several Democratic Senators for making a field day against Ambassador Harvey. These Senators are systematically clipping from the newspapers accounts of meeting held by associations, societies and clubs at which resolutions of denunciation were adopted. It is intended to read the most of this collection into the Congressional Record, accompanying that process with such fitting and appropriate comment as may best meet the situation from their viewpoint.

Some Senators already are receiving communications from their people back home in which unpleasant things are said about Ambassador Harvey. Resolutions are inclosed in which the repudiation of Harvey is demanded in words that are not minced or meaningless.

It is said that the performance outlined for next Tuesday may be frequently repeated. Apparently, there will be no falling off in good material with which to while away a dull hour in reading to the Republican Senators who confirmed Harvey, despite the earnest remonstrances from the Democratic side. Hence, it may happen that every few days attention will be called to the Pilgrims' day speech of the American Ambassador at London. This will not prove pleasing to the Republicans, and many a sharp passage is expected when the Democrats begin to rub it in.

Senator Penrose today received an exceptionally warm resolution from the War Mothers of Pennsylvania. They demand repudiation by the President of the words used by Harvey which are declared an "insult." The resolution was signed by officers of the Pennsylvania State Chapter, National War Mothers.

It is known that the contemplated action of Democratic Senators will not in the least hurt the feelings of many Republicans who cordially dislike Harvey, but are trying to maintain the outward appearance of Republican harmony until President Harding gets his chair warm.

London Weekly Says: "U. S. Rejected League; What Else Is Supreme Council?"

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, May 28.—The Weekly Reviews print editorials on the recent speech of George Harvey, the American Ambassador to the Court of St. James, before the Pilgrims' Society, but with somewhat of an air of bewilderment over the extent in which it indicated the American policy. All the journals, however, agree on the importance of the United States deciding to resume its place in the Supreme Council and consider that the most significant part of the Ambassador's address.

The Nation finds this an odd dicision, because, it says, the United States thus will help administer a treaty it refuses to sign.

Alluding to the rejection by the United States of the League of Nations on the ground that it was "an enforcing agency of the victors," it asks "What else is the Supreme Council?"

On the whole the Nation thinks Harvey wanted to deliver "the finishing stroke" to the entire Wilson policy, while not abandoning what it characterizes as the position of a large body of opinion represented by Secretary of State Hughes and Secretary of Commerce Hoover.

Ambassador Harvey's Speech Referred to in House of Commons.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, May 28.—When a prominent opponent of Premier Lloyd George in the House of Commons was asked today by a member of the Cabinet what he thought of Ambassador Harvey's speech to the Pilgrims, he replied in a tone of gratification: "Well, I consider that Lloyd George deserves Harvey."

The more the speech is canvassed the less it seems to be liked here, while hostile comment cabled from the United States, even from papers of Republican hue, is calculated to make the path of the new Ambassador far from easy.

"We Think Harding Is the Biggest Thing on Earth," Says Judge Gary

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 28.

JUDGE ELBERT H. GARY, chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation, who presided at a dinner last night, praised President Harding's recent New York address on business.

"We are with President Harding," he said. "We think he is the biggest thing on earth and we are for him and his administration."

MARTIAL LAW FOR ALL IRELAND EXCEPT ULSTER FORECAST

English believe would make it dangerous for royalty to visit this country.

The Unionists, however, probably will have to be satisfied with some lesser dignitary, among those mentioned being the Prime Minister, Llyod George, the Viceroy, Viscount Fitzallan, or even Sir E. Clarke, the Viceroy's representative in Ulster.

The ceremony will be held in the Belfast city hall, one of the finest edifices in Ireland. It is a large stone building occupying a commanding sight. The interior is finished in Italian, Greek and Irish marble, with fine memorial windows and some of the finest modern oak carvings.

Unionists Have Majority.

The Nationalists and Sinn Feiners insist that the Northern Parliament will be unworkable from a financial standpoint. The Unionists, especially, since they are assured a large majority, are more determined than ever to make the Parliament a success, in the hope and belief that when the south sees what a boon it is to have local self-government, they will call the Parliament together and finally give effect to the British Government's bill.

One Unionist, who, it is believed, probably will be a member of Sir James Craig's Cabinet, said today one of the first moves of the Government would be to make a heavy cut in the cost of administration, pointing out the cost of maintaining the military, which, he said, could be reduced by 2,000,000 pounds sterling (normally $10,000,000).

Both sides express dissatisfaction with the system of proportional representation, even the Unionists admitting that the Nationalists and Sinn Feiners are entitled, according to the votes cast for them, to four members for Belfast, whereas they have only one.

Two Women in Parliament.

The cost of contesting the election under this system also is condemned on the ground that it gives men with large means an advantage over those less able to bear the expenditure.

There will be two women in the new Parliament, Mrs. McMordie, wealthy widow, who has taken a prominent part in municipal affairs, and who was elected for South Belfast, and Mrs. Chichester, who was elected from Derry. Both are Unionists.

The Cabinet, it is forecast, probably will be composed of Sir James Craig as Premier; M. Pollock, Chancellor of the Exchequer; J. M. Andrews, Minister of Labor; Hugh O'Neill, son of Lord O'Neill, Speaker of the Assembly; Thomas Moles, Deputy Speaker and chairman of committees; Sir D. Bates, Home Secretary, and J. M. Barbour, Minister of Commerce.

Unionists Get 341,289 Votes.

The unofficial count of the votes cast in Tuesday's elections in the six northern counties of Antrim, Armagh, Down, Fermanagh, Londonderry and Tyrone shows that the Unionists received 341,289 votes, the Sinn Feiners 103,516, the Nationalists 60,762 and the Independent Laborites 4001. There is to be added to the Unionist vote 4000 university voters whose ballots will be counted on Saturday.

As the count now stands the Unionists elected 38 members, the Republicans six and the Nationalists five, with three seats still to be filled. Queens University tonight returned four Unionists.

The fact that Joseph Devlin, the Nationalist leader, must resign either his seat for West Belfast or Antrim possibly will add to the Unionist count, as it is believed almost certain that a Unionist will be chosen for whichever seat he resigns.

Two surprises of the voting were the big poll of Arthur Griffith, founder of the Sinn Fein organization in Tyrone and Fermanagh, where he received more than 10,000 votes above the first Unionist and the majority of more than 12,000 votes which Sir James Craig had over Eamonn de Valera.

INDIAN SLAIN IN UTAH AFTER BAND FIRES ON SHERIFF'S POSSE

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, May 28.—One Indian, a member of a band of Utes, was shot by Deputy Sheriffs early this morning at Bluff, a small settlement in San Juan County in the southeastern part of the State after the Indians had fired upon a Sheriff's posse which had gone to Bluff to remonstrate with the Indians against cattle depredations. Word of trouble between the Indians and sheriff's deputies reached here today in a telegram to United States Marshal Nebeker, but the exact cause of the trouble and the result of the clash did not reach here until late tonight in a special dispatch to the Salt Lake Tribune.

Dams to Regulate Flood.

Dams, also, in his opinion, would tend to check the tendency of the river to scour its banks and break into overflow. They also would be the means of flood regulation, the degree depending upon how far back from the river in its feeder streams the dams extended.

In this connection Ford said that he had no idea of the number of dams that would be required, but indicated and later made clear that his conception of the problem is that an expenditure necessary to carry the dam system to the headwaters of even the smallest of the streams in the great system would be justified by the benefits.

He was asked what need he saw for a development of such gigantic proportions, the magnitude of which is referred to about his office as exceeding that of the Panama Canal.

"Idleness," he replied.

Ford here linked his vision for the river with an economic belief which he has previously asserted. He frequently has deplored the movement of rural populations to the city. He believes that the base of all wealth in the valley is agriculture, and regards with apprehension anything that impairs the full tillage of the soil. In fact, he declares that the chief benefits of an adequate river development would accrue to the farmer. He believes also that it is cheaper as a business proposition to take the job to the man instead of bringing the man to the job. He perceives that it is cheaper to move factories to raw materials than raw materials to factories, and that the nearer the factory to the raw material the cheaper the finished product.

One of the things that pulls manufacture away from raw materials is power. Power exists in coal and industries cluster about it in cities like St. Louis and Pittsburg.

"Did you ever stop to think what labor it costs to get one horsepower from coal?" Ford inquired. "It must be taken from the ground, transported and passed through many hands before it finally finds a place under a boiler.

Power Awaiting Development.

Ford sees in a network of dams throughout the Mississippi Valley incalculable horsepower that requires nothing but initial development. He sees that this power is not centralized in any district or districts, but is spread over the entire valley in varying quantities, from large volume as at Keokuk to little volume as on the Rouge—that wherever rivers, little or big, run there is power.

It is this fact that justifies, in his opinion, the extension of this harness for the Mississippi to the smaller streams, streams adjacent to farms in regions remote from steam power and industry.

"Idleness is the chief source of trouble," he said. "The farmer only works a part of the year, according to seasons and weather. The rest of the time he is idle. Small factories run by waterpower will give him the needed employment."

This is in line with a recent statement of Secretary of Agriculture Wallace to the Post-Dispatch. "This talk of 'back to the farm' is all bosh," the Secretary said, "until the returns from life on the farms are made to approach the return to be gained from effort in the city."

Ford measures the results of such a widespread development of the Mississippi River system broadly—that the seat of wealth and power not only of the nation, but of the world would be centered in the Mississippi Valley.

"It would be a sort of financial and economical declaration of independence for the valley?" the reporter suggested.

"Not the valley, the world," Ford replied.

He pointed to a group of men gathered about a table in an adjoining office. He frequently had consulted with them during the day. "There are some men from Norway," he said. "They have aluminum, but canot get it out. Why? They have no gold. What good is gold? You can't make bearings out of gold, can you?"

Has Theory About Gold.

He and his associate then explained a theory which, it is said, Ford frequently has discussed. The amount of gold compared with the volume of production and manufacture is very small and business is being transacted with pieces of paper in increasing volume. Yet virtually all industry and much production must pass through this small amount of gold as through the small neck of a bottle. Retardation is the result. With the Mississippi Valley developed as it could be by proper utilization of the Mississippi, they pointed out, the real wealth would be deposited in the Valley. The day would approach, they said, when the comparatively few men who possess the gold would find that the thing they had known to represent riches and power would be a valueless thing in their hands and riches and power would be transferred to the hands of those who produce it.

At one point, when the magnitude of Ford's conception began to take shape, the reporter asked: "Bpt, Mr. Ford, how could you finance such a gigantic thing?"

"I am going to leave that to you," he replied. "I want you to find me a way to finance it."

He seemed to enjoy this aspect of the problem and at various times referred back to it. On one occasion after returning from a brief absence, he asked: "Well, have you got this thing financed for me?"

Sometime later, he said: "Why, the financing is the least worry. How to do the thing is the question." He added, when pressed concerning financing: "No financing is done with a brass band."

It is recalled in this connection that George W. Cooley, an engineer who built the Chicago drainage canal, several years ago broached a definite plan for obtaining a navigable channel 14 feet deep from the Great Lakes to the Gulf by way of the Mississippi River. It was a plan based upon the construction of dams in the river.

Outlay Is Impediment.

Cooley at that time pointed out that the return from water power developed at the dams would be sufficient to compensate in itself whatever outlay for the establishment of the project was necessary. Cooley's plan for dams as a means of creating a navigable channel was not seriously challenged for soundness of feasibility by engineers. The chief impediment to fulfillment was the very large outlay necessary.

The reporter waited for many hours to see Ford and in those hours observed incidents about his office and learned from conversations something of Ford's personality.

Automobiles began to arrive at the office early in the day. One of the first was a large touring car with appointments for comfort which carried the Norwegian delegation. Soon a gray seven-passenger touring car of distinctive pattern drove up and a slender young man alighted—Edsel Ford, the manufacturer's only son who is being introduced by his father to active participation in the big business of the Ford interests. Another was a Ford car, enameled green to brilliance and trimmed brightly in polished nickel. Another Ford was enameled chocolate brown and smartly trimmed.

About 10 o'clock a stock Ford coupe came up. A hatless figure was bent over the wheel and brought the car to a slow stop. It was Ford, arriving for work.

One of his managers said: "Mr. Ford has no personal need for money. His tastes are simple. He views money simply as a means of creating something that will give more men jobs. That is his chief delight."

Another said: "No one can lead Mr. Ford, but when he gets a notion it's hard to keep up with him."

During his conversation with the reporter he sat deep in his chair, with his knees against a table, his fingers twirling a piece of paper. His conversation was in a low tone, often approaching a form of musing aloud. He asked many questions. His own speech was limited to a sentence or two at a time, often nothing more than a word or a phrase.

Keeps Note of Trains.

The conversation was interrupted at one point by the rush of a passenger train on the Michigan Central, the main line of which passes the Dearborn office. "She's two minutes ahead of time today," Ford said. Soon after another train came rushing by in the same direction. "Two sections, too," Ford remarked.

Occasionally the conversation drifted away from the river. Once it related to negroes. His associate inquired whether there was a negro problem in St. Louis.

"There isn't any negro problem," Ford interrupted.

One room in the abandoned tractor plant is utilized as an experimental shop. When the reporter departed at 6 p. m., all office employes had left and there were no automobiles before the office except Ford's Ford. Ford himself was somewhere in the workshop.

LEAGUE FORMED TO URGE CREATION OF STABLE CURRENCY

Will Promote System of Preventing Fluctuations in the Buying Power of the Dollar.

ECONOMISTS AND FINANCIERS INTERESTED

Immediate Danger Declared to Be Not of Any Depreciation, but of Prolonged Appreciation.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Organization of the Stable Money League, designed to foster interest in and promote establishment of a system of preventing fluctuations in the buying power of the dollar, was completed here today by financial men and economists favoring the policy.

A resolution was adopted pledging its membership to work for the creation of a "stable currency, with exchange value and purchasing power not subject to violent fluctuations which disrupt the whole order of business and industry and remove the strongest incentive to human labor, thrift and efficiency."

Jeremiah W. Jenks, chairman of the board of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, was elected president.

Fisher Chief Proponent.

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University, chief proponent of the plan for stabilizing money values; H. A. Wallace of Iowa and Robert D. Kent, Passaic, N. J., were among speakers who addressed the general meeting. Kent advocated a plan for the creation of a "commodity dollar" unit of currency for the United States, which would purchase a constant amount of goods, while Prof. Fisher urged a Government procedure for increasing the amount of gold assigned to each dollar in case of rising prices, and decreasing it in periods of falling prices.

"The immediate prospect is not of any prolonged depreciation, but, rather, of a prolonged appreciation of the dollar, similar to the movement after the Civil War," Dr. Fisher said. "Under our present system, such a drain of gold as we have every reason to fear in ensuing decades after, say, a year's rebound of prices from their present low level, will mean falling prices, low profits, depression of trade, unemployment, and a new discontent, in which the luckless object of public wrath will be the money lender and banker, although the real enemy will be the appreciating dollar. It is to arrest peace time swings of the price level which is the real purpose of stabilization."

Dangers of Populism.

Wallace, who is the son of the Secretary of Agriculture, warned that "this country will witness a severe crisis with dangers of another rise of populism on the farms" during the next 18 months unless "sound money is instituted."

"Last year the average renter had nothing left as a return for his labor," Wallace declared; "the average return being less than 5 cents an hour."

TRANSCONTINENTAL FLIGHT BY RICKENBACKER IS COMPLETED

Lands at Washington, and Later Is Guest at Dinner by Gen. Pershing.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker completed his transcontinental flight here early tonight, landing at dusk at Bolling Field. He was forced down by a thunderstorm in the West Virginia mountains at 3 o'clock, but resumed his flight in one hour, and arrived here without further incident.

Rickenbacker arrived at 6:15 o'clock. He went to officers' quarters for a brief rest, but refused to discuss his trip, saying that he was "all in."

Later the aviator went to the Metropolitan Club, where he was a guest tonight at a private dinner given by Gen. Pershing to officers of the first American unit sent to France on the steamer Baltic.

Rickenbacker left Redwood City, Cal., last Thursday morning, and, after a series of delays due to mishaps to his machine and transfers to others, completed the transcontinental flight in a little less than 58 hours elapsed time. He made the last leg of his flight in an army plane.

FIRST TESTIMONY FOR CHESTER AT TRIAL FOR MURDER

DETECTIVE TELLS OF EFFECTING CAPTURE

He Says He Did It With Letter Bearing Attorney's Signature — Session of Court Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 28.—The State today completed its case and the defense began presentation of evidence in the trial of Densel Chester, charged with the murder of Miss Florence Barton, a young society woman, who was shot to death by a supposed highwayman the night of Oct. 2 last, when riding on a county road with Howard Winter, her fiance.

When several defense witnesses had been questioned, adjournment was taken to Monday morning, Judge Ralph S. Latshaw, announcing that a session would be held despite the holiday in order to hasten conclusion of the trial.

Among defense witnesses called were Frank M. Lott, a druggist, and John Hagan, vice president of a private detective agency which was instrumental in capturing Chester at Great Falls, Mont., several weeks after the killing.

Witnesses Questioned.

Lott was questioned as to the refilling of a prescription for Mrs. Blanche Ryan, with whom Chester boarded, the night of the killing. Mrs. Ryan has testified that Chester told her to say that he went to the drug store for her that night and had returned about 11:30 p. m. Lott said he remembered having refilled a prescription for Mrs. Ryan about the date of the tragedy, but could not say it was that night. He said he did not recall ever having seen Chester before.

Hagan testified that he had brought about the capture of Chester through a decoy letter to which he had signed the name of Joseph Aylward, chief counsel for the defendant. Aylward demanded that Hagan be arrested for forgery, but the Court interposed to declare that forgery implied the false signature of pecuniary documents.

John W. Farrell, employed by Hagan's Detective Agency, and a State witness, was recalled by the defense and questioned closely as to previous testimony that he had seen Chester and two other men in a motor car near the scene of the tragedy earlier in the night. Farrell stuck to his previous story.

Attorney on Stand.

Attorney Aylward went on the stand and testified that Mrs. Ryan had said in his presence that the private detective agency would pay her $1500 and procure the release of Earnest McKowan, a friend of hers, then in jail, if she would testify in the Chester case. Mrs. Ryan has declared that Chester told her he fired into a motor car the night of the tragedy, but did not know he had killed a woman.

Other witnesses put on by the defense included H. R. Barton, brother of the slain girl, who testified that the private detective agency has been paid about $9400 for its services in the case. He said I. B. Kimbrell, special prosecutor in the case, had received $1500 and would receive more. He denied that he had been responsible for the release of McKowan in order to induce Mrs. Ryan to testify.

Girl's Sister Examined.

The cross examination of Howard Winter, fiance of the dead girl, and brief testimony from Miss Hattie Lee Barton, her sister, took up the morning session. Miss Barton's eyes filled with tears when she was shown the dress worn by Miss Florence Barton the night of the tragedy, and asked to identify it. She did so. Winter also was visibly affected when asked to tell of Florence Barton's last words. He said she called his name. Then she died in his arms.

Joseph Aylward, defense counsel, conducted the cross examination of Winter, which began yesterday afternoon.

"You've never been engaged to a young lady at Altoona, have you?" he asked.

"No," replied Winter.

Aylward then sought to introduce a pink letter into evidence. He said it was addressed to Winter, and had come to Aylward in another envelope. The letter was shown to Judge Latshaw, who ruled it out, as "too trivial to be considered." Aylward persisted, and the Judge, showing considerable annoyance, told him "such stuff would not be permitted as evidence.

Description of Slayer.

At Aylward's request, Winter repeated the description he had given the police of the slayer as a man about 5 feet 11 inches in height, weighing between 170 and 180 pounds, with a reddish complexion, and a long, lean square-jawed face. He said he saw the man's eyes clearly and remembered their appearance, though he could not give the color, and could not say what color Chester's eyes were.

Aylward inquired whether at Raytown, while Miss Barton was being taken to Independence, Mo., for medical treatment she had put her arm around Winter's neck, drawn his face close to hers and said, "Oh, Howard, how it hurts!"

Winter said she had.

"Did she say that in a tone of forgiveness?" asked Aylward.

"No," replied the witness.

Winter then testified, in answer to questions that he had never known Blanche Ryan and Georgia Collier, witnesses, before the tragedy. He had offered a reward of $1000 he said for the arrest and conviction of Miss Barton's slayer.

FIRST WORD RECEIVED FROM EXPEDITION ON ITS WAY TO CLIMB WORLD'S HIGHEST PEAK

Commander Bury Tells Post-Dispatch of Progress of Enterprise and of Fine Character of Personnel and Equipment.

This is the first of a series of cable dispatches which will be sent to the Post-Dispatch, exclusively, from the expedition now on the Indian-Tibetan frontier, which will attempt this summer to climb Mount Everest, the highest peak in the world, and the last unexplored portion of the earth. First news of the explorers' adventures and discoveries will be dispatched by runner to Darjeeling and Simla and thence by telegraph and cable to the POST-DISPATCH.

By Col. Howard Bury.

Leader of Mount Everest Expedition.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE MOUNT EVEREST EXPEDITION, May 22, via Simla and London, May 26.—The Mount Everest expedition started from Darjeeling in two parties on May 18 and 19. Monsoon-like conditions had already begun with heavy showers of rain and the mountains were all veiled in thick clouds.

The second party started in a torrential downpour. An advance party, consisting of Maj. H. T. Morshead of the Survey of India, with two assistant surveyors, left Darjeeling on May 13 and proceeded with 50 coolies up Teesta Valley to correct some data of Sikkim Mahi which are very inaccurate. Maj. Morshead will join the main party at Khamba Dzong June 1.

The members of the expedition consist of myself in charge of the whole expedition, with Harold Raeborn, widely known member of the Alpine Club and author of several books on mountain climbing, in charge of the Alpine climbers, who consist of Dr. Kellas, Mr. Bullock and Mr. Mallory of the Alpine Club.

Distinguished Scientists in Party.

Dr. Kellas is well known for his climbs in the Himalayas and already early in this year has climbed Narsing and spent several nights at more than 20,000 feet on Kabru. He will this summer continue his valuable chemical and physical researches in questions of oxygen and blood pressures at great heights.

A. F. Wollaston, with many interesting expedition to his credit, is botanist and zoologist of the expedition and is responsible for its health. Dr. Heron of the Indian Geological Survey, who is in charge of the geological work, has been lent by the department to try to solve geological problems awaiting the explorer on the northern slopes of the Himalayas. Maj. E. O. Wheeler, second Government of India surveyor, together with an assistant surveyor, accompanies the main party. His special branch of survey work is photo surveying, which is especially useful in accessible mountainous districts. His duty is to make a special photographic survey of the Mount Everest group.

Party's Transport Is 100 Mules.

The principal transport of the expedition consists of 100 mules lent by Lord Rawlinson, Commander in Chief of India, who takes great interest in the expedition. Each mule can carry a load of 160 pounds. Mules are by far the best and quickest transportation in the mountains wherever paths are practicable. The mules were specially picked at Meerut, Amritsar and Sialkot and are all Chinese and Tibetan mules accustomed to the rigors of the Tibetan climate.

The drivers accompanying them are all hillmen from the Chamba Kangra Valley and other hill districts in Northern India. They have been doing long route marches every day to get fit and in training for the hard work they will have to undergo on the Sikkim and Tibetan routes.

The Government of India has done its utmost to help the expedition in every way. Lord Reading takes the greatest personal interest in it and has subscribed 750 rupees towards the cost. All stores were admitted duty free and the railways carried them at half cost with the exception of the Darjeeling Himalayan Railway, which most generously carried the stores free of all charges.

There was considerable delay in unloading the stores at Calcutta owing to the limited wharf accommodations and the numbers of ships waiting to be unloaded. However, Mr. Browne of the Army and Navy stores put in some very good work and the start has been delayed four days only.

Start Was Made From Calcutta.

Lord Ronaldshay, Governor of Bengal, entertained the expedition right royally at Darjeeling and has done everything he possibly could to forward their needs and help them. Himself an experienced traveler in the remoter regions of Central Asia, Lord Ronaldshay knows our needs and takes the greatest interest in our affairs. If the burdens of office did not tie him down he would fain have taken part himself in the expedition.

The actual start was made from the beautiful grounds of the Government House where all stores had been collected. Lord Ronaldshay's staff was most obliging, giving every help, although their time was already fully occupied.

Forty Sherpa coolies accustomed to live on the heights and mostly drawn from the neighborhood of Mount Everest, accompany the expedition.

Several of them are well trained in ice work, as they have accompanied Dr. Kellas before on high climbs. Most of them come from villages only a few miles south or southeast of Mount Everest, villages never seen by a European before. They ought, therefore, to prove useful. They are strong, sturdy fellows carrying a load of from 50 to 60 pounds over the most precipitous country, but at great altitudes the loads are lightened from 30 to 40 pounds.

Big-Footed Coolies Hard to Outfit.

If they can, they prefer to carry their loads in a kind of basket made of bamboo and of the same shape as those used by peasants in South Tyrol. They have a great sense of humor and some of the broadest feet I ever saw. It has been with much difficulty, because of this peculiarity, that they have been fitted with boots. They are also provided with warm gloves, socks, underclothing, woolen scarfs and blankets, as on the porter corps much depends for high level camps.

With Mr. Wollaston are two Lepcha collectors and skinners, who have already done good work in Sikkim.

A very complete photographic equipment accompanies the expedition and each camera can be used for telephotographic work. Every arrangement has been made for developing the results on the spot in Tibet.

Among other scientific instruments are a mercurial barometer of a pattern which only comes into action above 15,000 feet; also duplicate sets of aneroids which only begin to work above 15,000 and 20,000 feet, respectively; maximum and minimum thermometers, solar radiation thermometers and boiling point apparatus. All instruments were carefully tested at the National Physical Laboratory before being sent out. The expedition left in excellent spirits and health and full of hope for the future.

$100,000,000 CORPORATION TO FINANCE FARMERS

Bernard Baruch to Act in an Advisory Capacity for the Newly Organized Grain Marketing Concern.

PAPERS WILL BE FILED IN DELAWARE

Purposes Include Affording Aid in Case of Money Stringency and Elimination of Middlemen.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Plans for co-operative grain marketing recently outlined by growers, were advanced today by the formation of the Farmers' Finance Corporation, with a capital stock of $100,000,000.

This announcement, made by the Executive Committee of the United States Grain Growers, inc., stated that Bernard Baruch, one of the financiers with whom conferences were held yesterday and today, will act in an advisory capacity for the newly organized body.

Incorporation papers will be filed in Delaware next Friday by Clifford Thorne of Chicago, counsel for the Executive Committee of the grain growers, whose organization will work in co-operation with the finance corporation.

Purposes of the corporation, it was said, include affording the farmers a ready market in case of money stringency, hastening the movement of grain between the point of origin and the consumer, and the elimination of much of the handling of products by middlemen, the organization does not seek to wreck the existing marketing system, it was stated.

The marketing body is an offspring of committees of the American farm bureau, Government committees and other farm organizations which held a series of conferences during the last few months.

Members of the grain growers Executive Committee present at today's conference included C. H. Gustafson, Lincoln, Neb.; William G. Eckhard, De Kalb, Ill.; C. H. Hyd, Alva, Ok., and R. C. Obrecht Topeka, Kan.

Financial Conditions Among Farmers Reported to Have Improved.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Financial conditions among the farmers are believed to have improved somewhat recently and farm credits to have become easier, according to reports to the Federal Reserve Board from its Governor, W. P. G. Harding, who is on a visit to the South and Middle West studying conditions in the agricultural sections.

The recent rise in wheat prices was said to have resulted in better conditions, while at the same time price reductions, especially in farm implements, were beginning to react to the benefit of all farmers.

DISTINGUISHED SERVICE CROSS FOR VETERAN OF TWO WARS

Former Sergeant R. G. Hyatt to Be Decorated for Act of Bravery in the Argonne in 1918.

Robert G. Hyatt of 3706 West Pine boulevard, a former Sergeant in B Company, Eighteenth Infantry, First Division, will be decorated at Jefferson Barracks at 2:30 p. m. tomorrow with the Distinguished Service Cross, awarded him by the War Department for bravery in action.

Hyatt, who lost a leg as a result of the action for which he is to be decorated, is a veteran of the Spanish-American War as well as the world war. He served in the Philippine Islands with Col. John H. Parker, commandant of Jefferson Barracks, who will present the service cross to him at the ceremonies tomorrow. He will be the guest of Col. Parker at dinner following the ceremony.

The act of bravery for which Hyatt is to be decorated occurred Oct. 4, 1918, in the Argonne. He was sent ahead of his company, engaged in an attack on Hill 240, to obtain information concerning the enemy positions and found the Germans forming a counter attack. He quickly reported his discovery and volunteered to return to the danger zone he had just left in an effort to obtain a map of the positions occupied by the Germans. After making his map he started to return and was discovered and shot. He lay between the lines for more than 24 hours before he was reached by his companions and then declined to go back for several days, until on Oct. 15 he was sent to a hospital, where his leg was amputated.

DRY ENFORCEMENT INEFFECTIVE, SAYS SENATOR PENROSE

Chairman of Senate Finance Committee Also Asserts System Is Wasteful and Demoralizing.

WOULD TRANSFER JOB TO ATTORNEY-GENERAL

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Declaring that the present prohibition enforcement system is "ineffective, wasteful and demoralizing in many of its aspects," Chairman Penrose of the Senate Finance Committee announced tonight that conferences would be held next week between his committee and Commissioner Blair of the Bureau of Internal Revenue looking to changes in enforcement methods.

The whole subject of "rehabilitation" of the enforcement system will be gone over, Penrose said, adding that the advisability of transferring the prohibition unit from the Bureau of Internal Revenue to the Department of Justice, the designating of an enforcement superintendent for each of the states or for each judicial district and other suggestions would be taken up.

Senator Penrose said he personally was in favor of the Department of Justice taking over the enforcement work. The question will be discussed with Attorney-General Daugherty before the committee takes final action, he said. Secretary Mellon already has expressed approval of the proposed transfer, and Blair is understood to favor the step.

"The present prohibition enforcement system is ineffective, wasteful and demoralizing in many of its aspects," Penrose said, "and requires drastic treatment in order that it may be rehabilitated and freed of the scandalous conditions now surrounding it."

The plan of the transfer and the extent to which it would go, Penrose added, "is a matter of detail to be worked out on the basis that theoretically the Treasury ought to have no police business to transact." Prohibition enforcement, he said, is a matter perculiarly in the province of the Attorney-General and the District Attorneys.

One of Blair's first acts as Commissioner, it is said tonight, will be designation of a new Prohibition Commissioner, in place of John F. Kramer. For this place Newton Fairbanks of Ohio has been frequently mentioned.

COOK PUBLISHED AS DESERTER SHOWS ARMY DISCHARGE PAPERS

Robert Scott Says He Failed to Notify Draft Board After Enlisting in July, 1917.

Robert Scott, 31 years old, a cook, who lives in a hotel at 1534 Market street, called at Central Police Station at noon yesterday and said his name was in the War Department's list of alleged deserters from the draft published in the Post-Dispatch Friday.

The address given in the list was 220A Collinsville avenue, East St. Louis. Scott said he formerly resided at that address. He told policemen he had served in the army and had discharge papers, but did not have the papers with him. He was held for investigation, but was released shortly afterward when his discharge papers were produced.

He told a Post-Dispatch reporter last night that he registered for the draft June 7, 1917, and enlisted in the army July 27, 1917, serving until his discharge June 17, 1919, with Bakery Company, 335. After enlisting he had neglected, through a misunderstanding, to notify his Draft Board.

SUIT TO TEST AUTO LICENSE TAX LAW APPROVED BY HYDE

Litigation, Although Affecting Road Bond Issue, Not to Delay Calling of Special Session, Governor Says.

FIVE POINTS RAISED AGAINST THE LEVY

Object Is to Get Decision if Possible Before August, When an Amendment to Constitution Is to Be Submitted.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28.—Gov. Hyde tonight admitted that the mandamus suit filed in the Supreme Court today by State Senator Irwin of Jefferson City, attacking the validity of the motor vehicle license law, was drawn with the Governor's approval.

He declared that the purpose of the action is to test the validity of the law and to obviate, if possible, the necessity for submitting at the August election a constitutional amendment proposed by the recent Legislature, which would incorporate in the Constitution a specific provision authorizing automobile licenses as now required. The present law was enacted under the police power of the State, and not under its taxing powers.

Object of Test Case.

Should the automobile license law be held invalid, it would cut the ground from under the $60,000,000 road bond issue, which under a constitutional amendment is to be taken up, if issued, by receipts from the sale of automobile licenses. Hyde said if the court decision should be adverse, a fight then could be made for the constitutional amendment dealing with the subject; if favorable, the Legislature at its special session then could repeal its proposal and eliminate the expense of submitting the proposed amendment.

Many advocates of road legislation had feared that the filing of this suit was a Republican partisan expedient to provide an excuse for again postponing the calling of a special session of the Legislature which Hyde originally promised to call the last week in April or the first week in May, but which he has postponed about five times, each time expressing various reasons. Hyde said, however, that the suit will not be allowed to delay the calling of the session, which he now has determined shall begin Tuesday, June 14. The last date set by him was June 6. He declared tonight, however, that he will issue the proclamation next Tuesday.

A decision in the automobile license law case is not anticipated before the latter part of the summer.

Special Assignment Possible.

Chief Justice Walker said today that the court, if it so desired, could the next time it meets, assign the case to one of the Judges for immediate attention and that the speed with which the opinion is written would depend on how many other cases that judge already is considering. He said that Hyde and Irwin had been to see him about the case; but that he told them to "file it and then we would see."

Irwin proceeded today to tender $1 to the automobile department of the Secretary of State's office, in return for which he demanded automobile license plates for a truck belonging to D. C. McClung, former warden of the state penitentiary. The plates in question would cost $10 under the license law. This tender was rejected, after which Irwin filed his suit asking that the court order Becker to issue the license plates.

Points Raised in Suit.

Irwin raised five points against the license law as follows: That $1 would be sufficient to pay all costs incident to issuing the license plates and registration of cars; that the sum demanded is $9 in excess of those costs and is a tax on the applicant; that the law is unconstitutional and void because it violates the constitution in that all property subject to the tax is not taxed in proportion to the value of the property in question; that it is unconstitutional for the reason that it places a special tax on property already assessed and taxed.

HYDE FILES CHARGES AGAINST BRADSHAW IN OUSTER ATTACK

of the said Bradshaw for all his services is fixed by law at $4500 per annum, nevertheless the said Bradshaw did on March 31, 1921, charge to the said private inspection fund and collect therefrom in addition to said salary the sum of $300 (Book 2, page 13, check 436, record of private inspection fund) and on April 30, 1921, the sum of $100. (Book 2, page 17, check 466, record of private inspection fund.)

Double Collections Charged.

"That the said Bradshaw collected from the State of Missouri the sum of $44.78 covering the expenses of an alleged trip to Jefferson City, St. Louis and return on Jan. 11, 12, 13 and 14, 1921, which payment was included in State Treasurer's draft number 63141, and also collected from the private inspection fund for "expense to Jefferson City, St. Louis and return, Jan. 10, 11, 12, 13, 1921," $44.78 (book 2, page 5, and also collected Jan. 10, 1921, "expenses to Jefferson City and St. Louis on official business, January, 1921," $43.78 (book 1, page 173, check 303).

"That the said Bradshaw collectted from the State treasury, included in above-mentioned State Treasurer's draft, the sum of $45.89, covering expenses of trip to Jefferson City on Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 4 1921, and also collected from said private inspection fund for expenses to Jefferson City, St. Louis and return Jan. 30, 31, Feb. 1, 2, 3, 1921, $45.89." (Book 2, page 5, record of private inspection fund).

"That the said Bradshaw has and still is paying to certain employes of his department larger salaries than are allowed by law to be paid to such employes out of the State revenue fund and the surplus out of the private inspection fund.

"That said Bradshaw has charged to the State expenses and cost of trips made for political and private purposes only.

"Said James T. Bradshaw, Warehouse Commissioner, is and does now continue in the employ of his department persons who are notably inefficient and are so rated by the Warehouse Committee of the Board of Trade of Kansas City and of U. S. Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Markets, and whose inefficiency is well known to said Bradshaw, or could well and easily be determined by the said Bradshaw by the most casual investigation.

"Said James T. Bradshaw, warehouse Commissioner, permitted serious waste to the state in that through lax and wasteful administration he permitted and allowed the accumulation of surplus grain samples within his office to be used for private purposes, continuing such practice until approximately the latter part of 1918, ceasing such practice only after the United States Food Administration had started an investigation and the case had been put in the hands of the United States Secret Service. During that period said grain samples were allowed to be taken and carried away from the office by private parties.

"Said James T. Bradshaw does not now exercise proper care in the collection of said surplus grain samples. The records of sales of said grain samples show that the private weighing and inspection fund received for the month of April 1921, only $24.60; for the month of March, 1921, only $86.40; for the month of February only $75.04; for the month of January only $92.34.

Charges of Inefficiency.

"Said James T. Bradshaw, by his inefficient administration, permitted the expenses of his department during year ending Dec. 31, 1920, to increase $10,202.75 over the expenses for the year ending Dec. 31, 1919, although the business done was less and receipts of said department for the same period show a decrease of $3336.82.

"I do hereby set down the eleventh day of June, 1921, as a day upon which hearing of said charges shall be had at the office of the Governor at Jefferson City, State of Missouri, beginning at 10 o'clock a. m.

"Given under my hand and the office of the Governor in the City of Jefferson this 28th day of May, 1921."

Bradshaw's Book Audited.

Hyde said that the information on which many of his charges are based were obtained by an audit of Bradshaw's books, which he said had been yielded by Bradshaw for that purpose.

The private inspection fund spoken of is made up of fees paid in by private elevators and which Bradshaw has turned over to the State Treasurer at intervals.

Bradshaw, if removed, will be the fourth Democratic officeholder to be ousted by Hyde, who two weeks ago appointed Republicans to succeed State Factory Inspector Lee Dunlap, Tim Birmingham, Game and Fish Commissioner, and Dr. E. T. Barnhouse, Food and Drug Commissioner. Dunlap yielded his office without a fight, but the other two have resisted and Attorney-General Barrett is preparing quo warranto proceedings against them.

CHRIS SCHAWACKER STRICKEN IN AUTO, DIES

Professional Bondsman, 70, Collapses When on Way to Ball Game—Wife Died April 26.

Chris Schawacker, 70 years old, of 2800 Russell avenue, undertaker and professional bondsman, died at his home at 7:15 p. m. yesterday after having been stricken with heat prostration while on his way in his automobile to the Browns' baseball game. A policeman who observed his condition took him to a physician's office and later he was sent home. Death occurred a few minutes after he reached home.

He was born in Hesse-Nassau, Germany, and came to St. Louis with his parents in 1860. In 1878 he established a livery and undertaking business which is still conducted at 414 South Third street in his name. For several years the business has been managed by his son, James Davis Schwacker.

He was well known around the criminal courts, having signed bonds for many persons accused of crime. His activities in this respect sometimes brought him into conflict with the Judges.

Schawacker often went to great lengths to find persons who had jumped their bonds and caused him to pay forfeitures. In this connection an incident which occurred some years ago in the Federal Court is recalled. Schawacker had signed a bond for an Austrian alien, who, after a preliminary hearing before a United States Commissioner, was bound over to await the action of a grand jury. The alien thought the hearing was a trial and the fact that he was not imprisoned led him to believe he had been acquitted of the charge against him.

Soon after the hearing he decided to return to Austria and did so. Later a grand jury indicted him and when he failed to respond Schawacker was made to pay the court $1500. The bondsman employed a private detective agency to find the alien and paid the expenses of a detective to go to Austria to bring back the fugitive. The bond forfeiture was not set aside and the defendant went to trial and was acquitted by a jury.

Schawacker was active in Republican politics some years ago and served in the old House of Delegates from 1883 to 1885. He was Superintendent of Streets under Mayor Ziegenhein.

He is survived by his son, James, and a daughter, Mrs. George E. Cobb. His wife died April 26. They had been married more than 50 years. The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon, with burial in Bellefontaine Cemetery.

Indians Trounce Brownies, 12-6 in 'Busher' Contest

Fohlmen Outhit Champions, but Turn Three Errors—St. Louis Hurlers Generous.

FINAL OF SERIES TODAY

Boland, Bayne, Richmond and Vangilder Lambasted by Speaker's Tribe.

Twenty-seven hits, good for a total of 40 bases; 15 bases on balls and four errors were strewn over nine innings of "bush-like" baseball at Sportman's Park yesterday. The Indians had one less hit than the Browns, but received five more passes, while the home athletes booted three times against only once for the champions. As a result, when the final tabulation had been made, the Indians had won their third successive contest, 12 to 6. The defeat dropped the locals to sixth place.

Bernie Boland, broken finger and all; Billy Bayne, Ray Richmond and Elam Vangilder threw for Lee Fohl. Speaker was a bit more fortunate, employing two—"Duster" Mails and Ray Caldwell.

It was a good ball game for one inning. In that time the Tribe scored one run and the Browns two. After the second, though, it was just a case of how many tallies the Clevelanders would put over the plate.

Boland started wild and passed Jamieson. Johnston sacrificed and Graney singled Jamieson over. Smith walked, but the next two clubbers went out. For the Browns Tobin fanned, Gerber walked, Sisler fanned, Williams and Severeid walked and Smith singled a pair across.

The Terrible Second.

The second inning was a nightmare. Eleven men batted for the Indians and six scored. Each of the first nine men up in the round became a base runner. The Tribe made only three hits in this round, but was aided by four passes and a pair of errors.

Here's how it all happened. Stephenson walked. So did O'Neill. Mails forced Stephenson. Jamieson walked, filling the bases. Johnston singled O'Neill over. Bayne replaced Boland. Evan, for Graney, doubled Mails and Jamieson over. Wood, for Smith, singled and Johnston scored, while Evans, who had stopped at second, and Wood moved up a base on Tobin's wild heave. Gardner walked, again filling the bases. Sewell hit to Sisler. Sis had Gardner at second, but Gerber was asleep and the ball got away from him, Evans and Wood scoring. Stephenson and O'Neill fanned to end the agony.

Bayne's single and Gerber's double gave the Browns one in their portion. The clubs were silent in the third, but in the fourth, a pass to Gardner and Stephenson's clout into the right bleachers gave the Tribe two. McManus' double and Tobin's ace gave the Browns one.

Ray Richmond, getting his name into the official score for the first time this season, stopped the Indians with one hit and no runs in the fifth.

More in the Seventh.

More for the Tribe in the seventh. Jamieson walked and Johnston sacrificed. Evans safe when McManus dropped his pop fly. Wood walked. Gardner doubled, scoring two, while another tallied on Stephenson's sacrifice fly. Earl Smith's homer gave the Browns one in their portion, while successive singles by Tobin, Gerber and Sisler gave the final tally in the eighth.

Dempsey is shown here slipping his head aside, as Renault is pushing a left lead at him. Almost as soon as it was on its way, we know from the forward position of Dempsey that he leaped at Renault with the counter, a right cross. It has already disconcerted Renault, as his overbalanced position shows, and in another fraction of a second it will score right on that ear pad.

But the real right cross follows a left lead by the enemy and the right-hand counter literally "crosses" the left arm of the opponent. Hence its name.

MANHASSET, N. Y., May 28.—In the presence of his trainers and a few personal friends, Georges Carpentier displayed this afternoon some of the ring cunning with which he hopes to win the world's heavyweight boxing championship.

In a full three-minute round with Italian Joe Gans, the challenger tried his speed and on several occasions the sturdy little Newark fighter found himself punching at a ring post instead of a blonde Frenchman. Georges was too fast for him. Carpentier appeared to be developing a shift patterned after that for which Stanley Ketchel was famous.

Then came the tall Paul Journee for two rounds. Manager Descamps had announced yesterday that Journee would not be able to work until next week because of an injured arm, but Journee did not appear to be suffering this afternoon. He went at Georges full speed.

Carpentier permitted his 200-pound sparring partner to work as he pleased on his jaw and stomach and laughed at the blows as if they were paper wads from a school boy's bean shooter.

Then the challenger went to work himself and displayed his flying knockout punch from a new angle. When preparing to launch this blow today Carpentier assumed a half crouch. In this position he appeared to keep his body as far away from his opponent and reached out with his punches.

From the half crouch Georges went almost to a full bend, then hurled himself upward with an overhand right. Recovering quickly he used an uppercut. The three rounds over, he finished the day's work with 20 minutes oin the gymnasium.

After a long bicycle ride this morning he ate a hearty breakfast, then went on the road with Gans and Journee. They ran, jogged and walked 10 miles. They spent another hour before lunch playing football with several youngsters.

Tomorrow Carpentier will visit a friend whose estate lies near the camp. He probably will play golf and intends to take a sail on Manhasset Bay in the afternoon.

Jack May Suspend Boxing.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 28.—Jack Dempsey was cut over the left eye during a furious mixup with Jack Renault in the fourth round of his workout this afternoon, and the injury may force the heavyweight champion to suspend boxing tomorrow. The accident occurred when Dempsey drove Renault into a corner and their heads collided after Dempsey had missed a hard right swing.

Jack Kearns, Dempsey's manager, wanted to call a halt in the boxing after the injury, but Dempsey assured him that it was not serious and pleaded to go another round. He finished up with a tame three-minute session with Leo Houck. Dempsey boxed the first two rounds with Larry Williams, and the third and fourth with Renault. In the first round the cut over Williams' eye was reopened when Dempsey crashed over a left hook.

Dempsey boxed for the first time today in fighting trunks, discarding the full length tights he has worn since he started training. A blistering sun beating down on the arena made the canvas covering in the ring so hot that Dempsey blistered his feet yesterday, so today he taped them.

Carpentier Is Not in Jack Dempsey's Class, Jack Johnson Asserts

CHICAGO, May 28.

FROM the Leavenworth "hoosegow," Jack Johnson, who put in a year in Paris boxing sometimes with Carpentier, writes to a sporting editor:

"From any slant one may take of the affair in the East it's ridiculous to match a man of Carpentier's ability with a hardy fellow like the present champion," Jack writes. "He hasn't a Chinaman's chance of winning even if Dempsey were to break an arm.

"Were I in a position to box Carpentier right this minute and in my present condition, which, by the way, is the very best, I would be willing to bandage one of my eyes thoroughly so that I could not see with it and then bet him any amount of money he wished that I could beat him.

"He's a good boxer and hits fairly well with his right hand; but he cannot be brought up into Dempsey's class. By that I mean the difference in the weights, in strength and general ruggedness and the hitting force.

"I've never seen Dempsey in action, but his record is a wonder. Carpentier is a nice boy, but he is in for an awful trimming."

Soldan Defeats Cleveland Nine In Season Final

West Enders Trim Champions 5 to 3—Central Wallops McKinley 11 to 4.

Soldan and Central closed the season with victories yesterday afternoon, Soldan defeating Cleveland, 5 to 3, with a four-run rally in the eighth and Central swamping McKinley, 11 to 4. Yeatman, fifth member of the league, played its final game last Saturday.

Cleveland stands first, Central second, Soldan third, Yeatman fourth and McKinley fifth, with the season's schedule completed.

The Soldan-Cleveland game was the better of the two contests. Deffaa, who has not hurled for Cleveland for the last three games, pitched, and Thrasher, a recruit, caught. Breck and Trask were Soldan's battery.

Deffaa was wild in the first and walked three, and Thrasher allowed DeStabler to score on a passed ball. Starkloff scored for Cleveland in the fourth on Groerich's single to left. Scannell added another count in the fifth when Goeddel drove a long triple to left, and Conway followed with the final counter on Starkloff's double.

Soldan touched Deffaa for only three singles in eight innings, failing to score in that time. Then with a new battery, Soldan staged a four run rally and defeated the champions.

Hirsch had gone to first on Conway's error, and stolen second. Trask popped to Deffaa. Then Reinhardt went in for Deffaa, and Starkloff, the regular catcher, changed positions with Thrasher. Johnson, next man up, was safe at first on a fielder's choice which failed to catch Hirsch at third. Breck drove a long sacrifice fly to Scannell, scoring Hirsch. DeStabler singled and brought in Johnson. Eichler doubled and scored DeStabler, and Eichler added the final count on Marvin's single.

Breck's record of 10 strikeouts, with only one base on balls, is the best pitching record of the year. Deffaa struck out 10, but walked two in two other games of the season.

Central showed a complete superiority over McKinley in the second game. Nudelman, who hurled for Central, struck out six and allowed the Crimson players only four runs, while his teammates scored 11. Central piled up five runs in the eighth on two Crimson errors and three singles, after Selucky replaced Applebaum on the mound.

The championship trophy, a large silver bowl, will be presented at Cleveland High School next Wednesday.

Cardinals Bombard Vaughn and Cheeves and Defeat Cubs Twice

Rally in Ninth Wins Opening Contest, 8 to 7, While Rickeymen Capture Second, 9-2 — Double Victory Enables Knotholers to Advance to Sixth Position.

CHICAGO, May 28.—Assorted base hits of small and large denomination assisted the Cardinals in winning a pair of ball games from the Cubs this afternoon. The orgy of swat started shortly after luncheon and continued almost until twilight. The first combat was captured by a score of 8 to 7, while the second was taken 9 to 2. The Cards moved up to sixth place.

To achieve these 17 tallies the Cardinals performed with great execution at the plate. They knocked a total of 30 hits, which included five doubles, a triple and a home run. The four-bagger was poled by McHenry and sailed into the left field bleachers during the second conflict. Two persons were aboard the bases when McHenry drove the ball from the lot. The drive had no effect upon the result of the game, as the Cardinals were well to the fore at the time. This was McHenry's fifth home run of the season, and was a prodigious slam that fell well up amongst the cash customers.

The Cubs were not without batting honors, as Grimes and Sullivan had homers in the first game.

Credit is extended Pitcher "Dixie" Walker for winning the first game. He flagged the Cubs after Schupp and Riviere could not. Big Jess Haines pitched steadily in the second affair and had it well in hand all the way.

Hippo Vaughn Is Biffed.

Victory came to the Cardinals in the first game because they kept everlastingly after Hippo Vaughn. They biffed him for a total of 17 hits and prospered so with the flail that the wildness of their flingers and a brace of home runs did no good for their adversaries.

After Schupp had been manhandled and Riviere's and Walker's wildness threatened to upset them, they overcame a lead and batted out victory in the ninth. That fruitful round saw singles by Mann, Hornsby and Lavan, a double by Stock, and a wild throw on the part of Hollocher prolonged the inning enough to let the winning run seep over.

The Cardinals got off to a three-run lead when Mann, Janvrin, Hornsby, Schultz and McHenry singled. In the second Schupp passed Maisel and Sullivan poled a home run into the left field bleachers. Kelleher singled, Vaughn walked and Twombly scratched an infield hit. Kelleher scored when Janvrin missed Hollocher's grounder and the count was knotted.

McHenry's Double Helps.

The Cardinals came right back in third and added two more. Stock's single, Kelleher's fumble and a double by McHenry did the work. Grimes hit a homer over the center field fence in the Cubs' half and after Maisel singled, Schupp called it a day and Riviere pitched. He escaped until the seventh. He walked Grimes. Robertson was rushed into the fray and Riviere became so excited he executed a pair of wild pitches. Then they ousted him. Walker let in a run when he dropped a toss from Janvrin. Kelleher sacrificed and another tally came over on an infield out.

In the eighth Lavan's wide throw of Terrys grounder and a long single by Grimes after two were out let in the final Cub tally. All these seemed sufficient for a Cardinal defeat, but the four substantial swats in the ninth which already have been noted, and Hollocher's error produced the three runs that gave the Rickeyites the long end of the tally.

The contest was interrupted by rain, which did not slow the field any. "Pickles" Dillhoefer objected to being called out on strikes in the fourth stanza and was sent from the grounds by Umpire McCormick. One of the unusual features of the game was provided by Rivier who committed three wild pitches, two of which figured in Chicago scoring.

Cheeves Fails to Puzzle.

Virgil Cheeves, press agented in the spring as "A second Alexander," had little to puzzle the Cards in the second affair. He managed to wriggle through two innings, but after that was duck soup for the hustling Rickeyites. While he was being maced to the extent of 13 safeties, Haines was proving plenty puzzling to the Cubs.

The Chicago team scored one-half its runs in the second inning when Twombley beat out a bunt to Stock, stole second and finished the circuit on Kelleher's double. The Cardinals tied it up in the third when Fournier socked a triple and came in on Stock's single.

The Cards assumed their enduring lead in the fourth. Hornsby singled and Schultz bunted. Cheeves underestimated Hornsby's speed and tried to turn him back at second with a result that both men were safe. McHenry's sacrifice took. Lavan hoisted a sacrifice fly to Twombly so distant that Hornsby scored and Schultz took third. Clemons doubled and Schultz registered.

Chicago gathered its last marked in the sixth. A single by Hollocher, Terry's sacrifice and Twombly's infield hit did the business. All the remainder of the game Haines was very effective.

McHenry Hits Home Run.

The seventh grew a run for the Cards. Two were down when Smith singled and stole, followed by Fournier's hit to center. Smith came over but Jacques was too ambitious and was cast out trying for second.

In the eighth Hornsby singled and Schultz walked. McHenry hammered the ball over the left field wall. All this seemed to have a depressing effect upon the Cubs. In the ninth Fournier walked and stole second and third on two pitched balls. Stock sent him home with a single. Thereupon Stock stole second on the next pitch. The boys were just naturally beating the throws of Bill Killefer. Schultz produced a double and Stock trotted in.

The Cubs and Cardinals are booked here for tomorrow after which the St. Louis entry advances upon Cincinnati where the Reds will entertain them over the holiday.

District Golfers Begin Tournament Season This Week

St. Louis Golf Association Championship Event Opens at Glen Echo June 4.

St. Louis golf will swing into full stride, this week, with the opening of the District championship at Glen Echo, one of the pioneer links of the county. Although this course is not considered strictly modern, in respect to its greens, improvements have been planned that, when completed, will put Glen Echo back on the map. For the coming event the links have been changed to some extent, but not vitally, it is said.

By way of preparation all clubs will hold Decoration day closed events and the Glen Echo Club Greens Committee has also held out the fraternal hand to all district players who desire to work out over the course this week. The links will be open today and, with the exception of Monday, when a closed tourney will prevent, on every other day before the district championship starts.

One of the largest entries numerically in the history of the event is expected, but as no new "wonders" have been heralded, this spring, it is presumed that the usual "upper 10" will control the result.

Strong Hand at Midland Valley.

Richard Bockenkamp, the present champion, and his Midland Valley teammate, Jimmy Manion, are two of the players who are nearer the proverbial midsummer form than most of their rivals. Clarence Wolff, runner-up to Chick Evans in last year's Western, has been playing the Sunset Hill and Country Club links in very close to par. Chris Kenney, Eddie Limberg, Roger Lord and others are expected to figure strongly.

Midland Valley is probably the most improved local course, outside of the Country Club, which is being groomed and caressed into condition for the national championship tournament, next September. The M. V. links are now of standard length and the greens have all been enlarged.

State Tourney June 22.

Following the District tournament the next event of interest to local tournament players will be the State championship, scheduled at Hillcrest, Kansas City, June 22-25.

The usual strong representation will be sent from this city, probably with the customary indifferent fortune. Of late years the St. Louis players have not had much luck in beating State rivals on their home courses.

How many local golfers will make the eligibility grade in the national championship? It's a good guess that not more than two men from each club will start the qualifying round. A stiff grade must be made. Players who expect to qualify at Midland Valley, for example, must turn in two authenticated cards of 77 in order to be eligible. At other courses the requirements are correspondingly difficult. Last year's congestion on the Engineer's Club course read a lesson to the United States Golf Association and restricted fields will be the order forevermore.

YANKS TRIM MACKMEN IN BOTH ENDS OF TWIN BILL

NEW YORK, May 28.—The New York Americans celebrated their home coming from a long road trip by twice defeating Philadelphia before a large crowd. The Yankees scored easy victories, 5 to 1 and 6 to 2. Mays, whose indefinite suspension was lifted yesterday, was effective in the first game, New York used all of its seven hits in scoring five runs. In the second game the Yankees knocked Rommell out of the box in four innings. Shawkey, pitching his first complete game of the season, allowed five hits and struck out eight men. Score:

California Track Team Wins Meet By One-Half Point

Coast Athletes Take I. C. A. A. A. A. Title by Placing Third in Final Event.

HARVARD SQUAD SECOND

Hutchison's Spurt in 220 Dash Give Far West Team Needed Points.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 28.—By the narrow margin of one-half a point a small band of University of California athletes won a collegiate track classic here today. The Pacific coast stars defeated Harvard 27½ points to 27 in the struggle for first place honors at the forty-fifth annual games of the Inter-collegiate Association of Amateur Athletes of America. Far Western and mid-western colleges have many times attempted to wrest from their Eastern rivals an I. C. A. A. A. A. championship, but not until today has success crowned their efforts. Tonight Cambridge was ringing with praise for California. The victory came at the finish of an afternoon of exceptional competition and had it been arranged by a master playwright no more dramatic climax could have been achieved.

When the final contest of the 13-event program was started Harvard was leading California by 27 to 24½ points. In order to win the title R. K. Hutchinson, the lone California entrant, had to finish third or better in the 220-yard dash.

Harvard had no survivor in this event, but Hutchinson faced the best of the Eastern college sprinters.

A bitter fight was on from the flash of the starter's gun. On past performance Hutchinson could hardly expect to defeat either Allen Woodring of Syracuse, or Al Leconey of Lafayette, two of the fastest furlong sprinters of the country. It was a question whether he could lead Davidson of Cornell, Maxam of Pennsylvania and Monie of Syracuse. Interest among the 11,000 spectators who included a considerable group of California rooters, was intense.

Hutchinson Goes Over.

Woodring, the Olympic champion, soon showed his class by taking the lead. Leconey was at his heels. For sixty yards the others were grouped. Near the half-way mark however, Hutchinson began to pull away from this secondary group and California adherents raised a cry. It stopped short when fifty yards from the finish, the Californian seemed to falter. But with a great spurt he picked up his speed again. The shouting was renewed by the Californians and swelled as Hutchinson actually gained on the leaders. At the tape he led Davison, the fourth man, by almost twenty feet. Immediately the western contingent spilled over the stadium ramparts, and when the official announcement made California's triumph certain, there was an impromptu celebration worthy of the success.

While Hutchinson's placing in the final race of the day gave first place to his team, the splendid work of the other Californians had sent up the point total.

Ames Anchor Man Winning Relay

Nebraska Captures M. V. Meet; Kremer, W. U. Sets Only Mark

Cornhusker Supremacy in Sprints and Hurdles Nets 37 Points—Missouri and Kansas Tied for Second — Piker Athlete Tosses Discus 133 Feet 4 Inches.

A pronounced supremacy in the sprints and hurdles enabled the University of Nebraska to win the championship in the fourteenth annual renewal of the Missouri Valley Conference track and field games at Francis Field, yesterday afternoon. Of the 37 points amassed by the Cornhusker squad, 27 came in these events, indicating that Coach "Indian" Schulte is still a master in developing short course athletes.

A preponderance of points in the field events enabled the University of Missouri to gain a tie for second position with the University of Kansas at 27 points. The Jayhawkers, like Nebraska, were strong in the shorter distances, but failed to roll up points in any of the other competitions.

Ames, took fourth place, just one point behind, and how the Iowans were able to score a total of 28, after qualifying only two men in Friday's preliminaries remains the wonder of the meet. However, Ames had such strength in the distances and mid-distances, that 20 points were scored in the three events to their liking—the 880, mile and two-mile.

Pikers Score 15 Points.

Washington University took sixth place in the meet with 15 points, which by the way is a new record for the Pikeway in Valley competition. The local institution scored 13 points in the first M. V. C. meet in 1908 and since then has been shooting at that mark.

Their success at bettering the old mark is mainly due to Richard Kremer, '21, captain of the track squad, who took first in the discus and second in the shot-put for eight points. Kremer set the only record of the 1921 meet in capturing the discus with a toss of 133 feet 4 inches. This is two feet four inches better than the old mark which he established last year.

Other Washington points came as follows: Jerry Wolf, second in the high jump; Dean Leffler fourth in the low hurdles and fourth in the high jump; Dick Hafner fourth in the 440-yard run; and fourth place in the one-mile relay race.

Watson Equals Mile Record.

The failure of the athletes to set more new marks came somewhat as a surprise as weather and track conditions were ideal. The rains of Thursday had put spring into the cinder path and there was not a breeze stirring to dissipate the runners' efforts. However, the running performances were somewhat better than might be generally inferred, as two of the performances were within one-fifth second of former records, these in the half-mile and two-mile races.

Ray Watson of the Kansas Aggies, a veteran of the United States Olympic team, proved to be a favorite with the 1200 spectators because of his splendid running grace and his dogged sprint at the close of a race. He covered the one-mile course in 4m. 22 2-5s., which equals the time set by Farquhar of Ames three years ago. Watson allowed a number of his competitors to take the lead for the first two laps and logged a little behind. At the start of the third and final trip around the oval he shot to the fore and held the lead until Graham of Ames momentarily challenged him. He accepted the challenge and finished the race with a quarter-miler's sprint.

The half-mile race was finished under peculiar circumstances. Ames' two stars, Webb and McBirney, and Meidinger of Kansas raced together for the first 800 yards, but the two Iowans pulled away on the straightaway. Webb apparently had the race sewed up, but turned to urge his teammate. The latter caught up and the pair seemed to have a dispute as to who would have the honor of breasting the tape. Both unsuccessful in their good offices, they locked arms as they crossed the finish line. Inasmuch as their time of 1:56 was only three-fifths of a second over the record, it might be presumed that a new mark would have been set but for their fraternal inclinations.

Three athletes tied for individual honors, these being Paulu of Grinnell, Wright of Nebraska and Bradley of Kansas, another Olympic performer. Brutus Hamilton, the last of the trio that represented the United States at Antwerp last year, had to be satisfied with a first and second, although he qualified for four events.

Paulu Is Poor Starter.

Paulu was the sprint hero of the day, taking the century event in 10 1-5s. and the furlong in 21 4-5s., another event which came within one-fifth of a second to the established time. Paulu's ability to win the races is most unusual as he is a mediocre starter. Thirty yards from the start of the 100, he was back in rear; but it was then that he shot to the lead as if propelled by an artificial force. In the 220 he was pushed by Woestemeyer of Kansas, but the Jayhawker slowed down at the 200-yard mark and was passed by Smith of Nebraska.

Wright did as he was expected to do in high hurdles and won in a walk. At the half-way mark he was almost a hurdle ahead of his nearest opponent. Besides doing this he unexpectedly took the low hurdles from C. E. Williams, the Missouri star, whose dual meet performances stamped him as an almost certain winner.

Bradley's total, unlike his co-stars, was gained by placing in four events. He took the running broad jump with a leap of 23 feet, landed a second in the high hurdles, fourth in the javelin and fourth in the high jump. However, whatever Bradley's work of yesterday may have been, he certainly appears to be the best all-round college athlete seen here in many seasons.

Pikers Divide Tennis Honors With Oklahoma

Washington Wins Doubles Title While Parks Beats Brown in Singles Final.

By Davison Obear.

Washington and Oklahoma universities divided honors in the final matches of the Missouri Valley Conference tennis tournament at Forest Park yesterday. The matches were played on the municipal courts near the Jefferson Memorial.

Satterfield and Brown won the doubles title for Washington by defeating their own teammates, Kammon and Barnes, in the final round. The score was 6—4, 7—5.

Ben Parks, captain of the Oklahoma team, sprang a surprise in the singles by winning from Captain Wray Brown of Washington in straight sets, 6—1, 7—5. In the first set Brown was somewhat erratic, while Parks played his usual steady game, making excellent placement drives near the baseline. Brown seemed unable to cope with the brilliant attack of his opponent and only captured one game in this set.

The second set opened with Brown having more determination. However, Parks maintained a slight lead all through this set. The Washington University star showed vast improvement in his play, but after winning several points in succession he would either drive the ball into the net or out of court. After the first seven games he showed signs of being tired, as he was unable to direct his strokes so that they would break up Parks' attack.

Pikers Win Doubles.

In the morning Brown and Satterfield had a close match against the Parks brothers in the doubles semi-finals. The Washington players won in straight sets, 6—4, 7—5. This was the fourth meeting of these two teams since last September. In the other three matches the Sooners were victorious.

Following the doubles semi-finals Ben Parks defeated Karl Kammann, 6—1, 6—3, in one singles semi-finals, while Brown defeated Barnes, 6—2, 6—2, in the other.

The fact that one university won the singles and another the doubles makes it doubtful as to who won the valley tournament. Final decision will rest with the officers of the Missouri Valley Conference. Washington University players won two gold medals and the silver medals while Oklahoma's captain, Ben Parks, won one gold medal. This award would seem to indicate that the Pikeway institution won the tournament.

Results:

SINGLES.

Semifinal round: Ben Parks, Oklahoma, defeated Karl Kammann, Washington, 6—1, 6—3; Wray Brown, Washington, defeated Charles Barnes, Washington, 6—2, 6—2;

DOUBLES.

Semifinal round: Brown and Satterfield, Washington, defeated Ben Parks and Kirkland Parks, Oklahoma, 6—4, 7—5.

Soccer Delegates Honor Cahill at Annual Meeting

Former St. Louisan Is Made Life Member and Given Honorarium of $2000.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—The greatest honor ever conferred on any soccer official in this country was today voted Thomas W. Cahill, formerly of St. Louis by the United States Football Association. He was made a life member of the organization with power to vote and was given an honorarium of $2000 in gold.

It was the feature of the second and final day of the annual national soccer meeting. The entire staff of officials was re-elected. The only opposition came on the third vice-presidency, but Joe Booth finally won over A. W. Keane.

The petition of player Al Oberle of the Scullins of St. Louis to have the penalty imposed on him for the alleged use of improper language in the game played at Chicago against the Bricklayers was denied although Winton E. Barker made an eloquent plea for the Mound City player. Oberle was fined $5 for the offense.

The application of the California Football Association for a review of a case considered in 1920 was refused.

An investigation report of conditions in Massachussetts made by A M. Brown was accepted. The petition of the Western New England League for a state charter was denied.

It was decided to hold the next annual meeting in Boston in May, 1922.

The medals and the national challenge cup were awarded the Robins Dry Dock team at a banquet in Hotel Walton tonight.

Tomorrow the delegates will be the guests of the Eastern Pennsylvania Association on an auto trip.

PHILADELPHIA, May 28.—United States Naval Academy crews won two of three races in the seventeenth annual regatta of the American Rowing Association, over the mile and 550-yard course on the Schuylkill River here today. The navy's Olympic championship crew easily captured first honors for the Stewards' cup by defeating the Union Boat Club eight of Boston, and the University of Pennsylvania, which finished third.

The navy plebes also proved their superiority in the freshman race, crossing the line ahead of Pennsylvania. The Annapolis oarsmen, however, were unable to win the third race. This was the junior varsity eight, which went to Princeton, with the navy second, Pennsylvania third, Harvard fourth and Yale fifth.

Guy Nickall's Yale crew won the eight-oared race for 150-pound men by half a length from Pennsylvania. Princeton finished third and Harvard fourth.

JACK JOHNSON WINS IN EXHIBITION BOUTS

International Critic Explodes an Old Theory

Declares the Swing Is the Thing

P. A. Vaile, International Golf Critic, Says the Ball Is the Only Inert, Motionless and Constant Factor in the Swing, so Why Should One Glare at It.

Following is the first of a series of articles by P. A. Vaile, internationally known as a writer on golf. Mr. Vaile's articles are especially interesting in that they explode a number of the long established theories of golf instruction. In the first one he attacks the ancient primary instruction to "keep your eye on the ball."

By P. A. Vaile.

Author of "Modern Golf," "The New Golf," Etc.

THE golf ball has come to be an obsession with most golfers and a gross obsession with most golf writers. One must admit that it is entitled to a certain amount of consideration, attention and respect; but one may, and indeed will, play a much better game of golf if one puts the golf ball in its proper place, as a servant, a friendly servant, and not a tyrant.

The proper view of the golf ball, mentally, is that it is merely an adjunct—one may truly say incident—of the golf stroke. Many golfers make it the supreme object.

They are not to blame. They have been told to fix their eyes on it and to try to stare it out of countenance until it goes away, and even after it shall have gone away they are advised to keep on staring at the place where it was.

"Concentration" on the ball is the one thing that is most constantly preached by writers and instructors.

Now, let us, in imagination, try to carry out these instructions.

We put the ball in its proper place, which physically is on the tee. Then we proceed to put it, mentally, which is the important matter, into a totally wrong and unwarrantably exalted position of importance.

We "fix it" with our "eagle eye." We glare upon it. We concentrate our great mental efforts on it. Mentally we fiercely inform it what we are going to do to it, and all the time we remain in a condition of sublime unconsciousness that, until the club hits it, the ball is the only inert, motionless and constant factor in the golf swing.

Then why devote so much attention to something that never varies? If any one thinks that he can do anything by trying to hypnotize the ball with his gimlet gaze, let him put down a ball and train his beady optic on it and wait for results. These will come in due course, in the way of eye strain and muscular paralysis, before anything serious happens to the ball, unless the would-be mesmeriser condescends to shift his tremendous mentality to the vital part of the stroke, which must proceed from his own honorable anatomy.

A very little reflection will convince any thoughtful player, that the concentration that is claimed for the little inanimate sphere can be more profitably used in the living mechanism that produces the stroke. If the swing be properly produced the ball will always be in the way of the clubhead and it will, of course, have to get out of it and on towards the hole. In short, the ball is actually only an incident in the swing of the club.

Harry Vardon says that he can drive as well with his eyes shut as when he is looking at the ball. I have seen Hayes, some time professional at Newport, address his ball, shut his eyes, turn his face skyward and, in this manner, repeatedly make drive after drive with the greatest accuracy.

Now, mind, I am not advocating blindfold golf, but I am advocating some sense of proportion as regards the importance—or rather the unimportance—of the golf ball in the golf stroke.

PARK OWNING CLUBS TO MEET IN TROLLEY LEAGUE FEATURE GAMES TODAY

The four park owning clubs of the Missouri-Illinois Trolley League will meet this afternoon for the first time this season. At Collinsville the Smelters and the Alton Blues will oppose each other. The Blues are one game behind the Smelters for first place. Fuller, the Smelters' star hurler, who has won every game he has pitched so far this season, will go to the hill for the home club, while Holliday, who pitched a wonderful game against the Wiles-Chipmans last week, will work for the Blues.

At East St. Louis the Butchers and the Belleville B's will battle for honors. The Butchers are in fourth place, while the Belleville outfit is fifth. Drida will pitch for the Butchers against Fizer.

At Alton the Tricities and the Wiles-Chipmans will furnish the attraction. At North End Park in Belleville the Maxwells of Belleville will tackle the last place Ben Millers.

One-Man Track Team Wins Third Place at Chicago

CHICAGO, May 28.—Manual Training School of Kansas City, Mo., and Lake Forest Academy of Lake Forest, Ill., were the winners, respectively, in the National Interscholastic and the National Academy track and field meets held today at Chicago University's seventeenth annual field day for the younger athletes of the country. Manual scored 22½ points, 17 of them turned in by E. Norton, and Lake Forest marked up 48 points, H. Pearce scoring 20.

Lake Forest presented a well-rounded team, which scored in a majority of the events, while Culver (Ind.) Military Academy and Shattuck School of Faribault, Minn., proved close contestants, the former getting 42½ points for second place and the latter 39½ for third.

Manual Training took first place among the high schools only when Norton, the individual high school star of the day, won first in the high jump, the last event. Previous to that, Vallejo, Cal., with its one-man team of E. Boyden, appeared to be the winner, for he had captured three first places for 15 points. Boyden's work only brought third place, however, for Beatrice, Neb., with three men, Bloodgood, Price and Lloyd, placing in the dashes, finished second with 16.

Boyden, although surrendering first individual honors to Norton, proved himself the greatest middle distance runner ever seen on Stagg Field and those who witnessed his great work were convinced that in today's form the youngster might have set three world's interscholastic records in one day had the track been fast.

Running in form that would have done credit to a veteran of many years' experience, thetall young Californian easily took first in the 880-yard run, the 440-yard dash and the broad jump and in each event was but little behind the records.

While Boyden was carrying away the running honors, Norton, by placing in four field events, passed him in points. Norton got first in the high jump and second in the shot put, discus throw and broad jump.

AMERICAN POLO TEAM WINS PRACTICE MATCH

HURLINGHAM, England, May 28.—The American polo team composed of Devereaux Milburn, C. C. Rumsey Earl Hopping and J. Watson Webb today beat the Hurlingham team, Louis Stoddard, Thomas C. Hitchcock Jr., Lord Delmeny and Col. Hunter in a trial match by 10 goals to 6. The weather was cold and the ground wet and heavy and the game was without features. Hitchcock hit two goals and Rumsey and Hopping one each within the first 5 minutes of play, but from then on there was no outstanding feature.

Rear Admiral William S. Sims, U. S. N., and Mrs. Sims viewed the game from the Royal box. They were cheered by the crowd when they entered.

Western Electrics Win.

The best game in the Bell Telephone League was the one played between the Westrn Electrics and the Local Bells which the former won, 19 to 18. Deters and Egan worked for the Westerns and Kuntz and Dickey for the Local Bells. The Accounting team won from the American Telephone and Telegraph team, 16 to 4. Minnemann and Johns formed the Accounting battery while Laible and Craig worked for the American T. and T. outfit.

Gophers Beaten in Meet.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 28.—Minnesota's fortune at field and track suffered another reverse on Northrop Field today when the flashy, well-balanced athletes from the University of Iowa dashed and leaped their way to an 83 to 52 point win over the Gophers. Four Minnesota track records tumbled, new marks being set in the 100-yard dash, the 1 and 2 mile events and the 220-yard low hurdles.

American Women Are Defeated in Title Net Tourney

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigourney Eliminated by Mme. Lenglen and Mme. Golding.

ARNOLD JONES VICTOR

J. D. E. Jones Conquers Belgian Player in Straight Sets in Singles.

ST. CLOUD, France, May 28.—Two outstanding features marked the opening here today of the tournament for the hard court tennis championship of the world. They were the defeat of Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Miss Edith Sigourney of the United States by Mlle. Suzanne Lenglen, the French champion, and Mme. Golding in the doubles, and the sterling victory won by Arnold Jones of the United States over M. Cousin of France, in the singles.

The French team in the women's contest showed superiority and greater stamina in their play against the Americans, winning in straight sets, 6—4, 6—1.

In his series against the French representative, Arnold Jones opened auspiciously for the Americans, winning 11 straight games. He defeated the Frenchman at his own back court game. He timed his shots beautifully and his placing was almost perfect.

Showers During Play.

The uncertain weather, alternating between bright sunshine and occasional light showers, kept the attendance down at the opening of the tournament in the beautiful St. Cloud Park, a few hundred yards away from the former imperial palace of Napoleon III and Eugenie. What the attendance lacked in quantity, however, was made up in enthusiasm, the spectators encouraging their respective champions in many languages, English predominating. It seemed as if the majority today was made up of Americans, and the youthful Jones received a noisy welcome as he faced Cousin for the first match in which an American was involved.

Francis T. Hunter cabled from England he would be unable to compete in the series, and thus the J. D. E. Jones-Hunter team in the men's doubles is eliminated, as well as the team in the mixed doubles in which Hunter was paired with Miss Eleonora Sears. Miss Sears also was scratched in the women's singles.

J. D. E. Jones Winner.

J. D. E. Jones competed in the singles today, defeating M. Lemmiens of Belgium in straight sets, 6—1, 6—4, 6—1.

William H. Laurentz of France, the present world's champion, defeated M. Blanchy of Belgium, 6—0, 3—6, 6—3, 6—1.

William T. Tilden appeared at the grounds wearing the white sweater which he wore in the Davis cup matches in Australia, with a red, white and blue belt. He said he was feeling fit and was ready to play his best game.

It is reported here that the Spanish team which left London by airplane this morning had to make a forced landing near Boulogne. No one was hurt, but the plane is said to have been damaged.

Stubborn Fight by Women.

While the defeat of the American representatives in the women's doubles was not unexpected, Mrs. Mallory and Miss Sigouney raised the hopes of many Americans present by their stubborn fight in the first set. Time and again Mrs. Mallory and Mlle. Lenglen, the French champion, exchanged volleys and drives, which made this match the most interesting of the day. But finally Mlle. Lenglen's superiority at the net won for the French team.

Tilden so much disliked the enforced idleness caused by the non-arrival of his Spanish opponent, that he eagerly seized an opportunity to play an exhibition game with Jean Samazeuilh, the new French champion, which ended without decision, the score being ten-all. Tilden used every variety of shot, but apparently never extended himself.

In the matches tomorrow Tilden will meet Flaquer, Mrs. Mallory will meet Mlle. Amblaud, France. Miss Sigourney will play Mme. Danet, France, while Tilden and Arnold Jones will line up against Samazeuilh and Blanchy.

DR. FYZEE WINS FROM AMERICAN NET STAR

CHESWICK, England, May 28.—Dr. A. A. Fryzee defeated the American hunters in the final of the men's singles for the Middlesex lawn tennis championship here today, 4—6, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4.

Miss Elyizabeth Ryan of California beat Mrs. Beamish in the final of the women's singles, 6—3, 6—4.

In the final of the mens' doubles Hunter and Willard H. Botsford of New York beat F. W. Donisthrope and B. Foster, 6—3, 6—3.

In the final of the women's doubles, Miss K. McKane and Miss M. McKane beat Mrs. Beamish and Mrs. Tanner, 6—3, 9—7.

The final of the mixed doubles was won by C. Von Braun and Miss Ryan, who beat W. M. Swinden and Miss Kelly.

Sumner Plays Lincoln.

Sumner High plays Lincoln Institute of Jefferson City, Mo., at High School Field, Grand and Laclede avenues, at 3 p. m. tomorrow. The game is for the championship of the colored schools of Missouri. Lincoln defeated Sumner last year. In the seven games played so far this season, Sumner has won decisively. A track meet, exhibition drill by members of the American Legion, and a band concert are also scheduled.

WRAY'S COLUMN

What Do You Mean, "No-Decision?"

JACK DEMPSEY and Georges Carpentier will endeavor to settle their dispute in a 12-round, no-decision affair, next July 2, the second time in the history of pugilism when the principals in a world's heavyweight championship have been asked to decisively end an argument in such a limited time.

The Willard-Dempsey fight under the Toledo commission auspices was to have been no decision, but Tex Rickard obtained permission to provide ringside judges who, with the referee as a final arbitrator, were to have rendered a decision.

But they were not needed. Dempsey took care of all that in three rounds, and optimistic Americans are now expecting Jack to do the same thing once more.

Aha! Now It Comes Out!

BUT suppose he fails to?

Right here, Bo, the plot thickens.

In the first place, although this is to be a world's championship fight, the title can pass in only a limited number of ways, if the rules of the New Jersey Boxing Commission are to govern the issue.

The most obvious of these ways of course is by a knockout administered to Dempsey by Carpentier. Another potential loss of the title would develop if Dempsey deliberately fouled his foe or incapacitated him by an accidental foul.

But aside from these there seems no legal way in which a decision that would carry the title could be given under the rules of the New Jersey Commission.

Mr. Rickard's Scheme.

BUT wait one moment. Don't reckon without Mr. Rickard's noodle. He has found a way. The promoter, desirous to give the Frenchman as much hope as possible and willing to facilitate the settlement of prospective disputes between gentlemen who risk the family plate or the week's pay check on the result, has a scheme. It is this:

A committee of three men (Lord Lonsdale of Lonsdale belt fame, and an English peer, with former world's champion James J. Jeffries and James J. Corbett) will render a decision which will relieve the chests of the speculators and the New Jersey Commission of all responsibility. It will be an informal, gentleman's decision.

FINE!

But will their ruling carry the championship with it? Will Georges Carpentier BE world's champion if the "Big Three" decide in his favor, despite the laws of New Jersey? Will Dempsey acquiesce? Will United States fans consent? Will the New Jersey commission hale the distinguished "Big Three" to the bar of justice for contempt of the State of New Jersey?

Probably if the bout is close, such a decision would merely result in another fight, this time in Europe.

But the way is open for many complications, arguments and endless discussion, because of the limited round, no-decision conditions.

A Giant-Killer Passes.

ERNEST CUTLER PRICE, known to fistiana only a few years ago as Jack the Giant-killer Dillon, was barred from boxing in the State of New York last Thursday night at a Brighton Beach boxing club. Fans, lured by his once-famous name, were advised by a notice outside the arena that Dillon would not box and that a substitute had been provided.

The commission decided that Dillon could not go on, although he was introduced from the ring and seemed outwardly in fit condition.

Recently Dillon has been a mark for the veriest tyros, where once he was feared by every light-heavyweight and heavyweight in the country.

Although he weighed 100 pounds less, there was talk of matching him with the 265-pound Jess Willard, before the former champion had met Dempsey.

Dillon's conduct was not always pleasing to promoters. Seven or eight years ago he fought Knockout Brown before the Coliseum Athletic Club here and the referee stopped the bout, while the club withheld the guarantee. About $790 has since been tied up in escrow pending final settlement of a suit to recover this money.

Up to a short time ago John Barleycorn was the only fighter that ever put down Jack Dillon; the last time he floored Jack the fighter apparently stayed down.

PROGRAM FOR NEXT OLYMPIC GAMES ADOPTED

GENEVA, May 28.—The general program for the next Olympic games, eliminating the 3000-meter walk, the tug of war and the 56-pound weight events, was adopted by the Congress of the International Amateur Athletic Federation today. It was decided to retain the 10,000-meter walk. The eventual admission of German contestants to the Olympic games was not considered, as Germany has not filed an application.

The congress took under discussion the French proposal for an international federation to control all sports, but the contention was raised that the Olympic games constitute a sort of special enterprise. This proposal and the question of controlling professionalism were referred to special committees.

BEAUREPAIRE BEATS SWIMMING RECORDS

HONOLULU, May 28.—Frank Beaurepaire of Austrilia, swimming against time, covered a mile in open water here today in 23m. 30 4-5s., 1500 metres in 21m. 54 1-5s. and 1000 metres in 14m. 28s.

G. R. Hodgson is credited with a record of 23m. 34½s. for the mile in open water. Beaurepaire's other two times today were asserted by officials to be better than world's record times.

After the events today a controversy developed, since the American rules require a swimmer to be in competition, but the International Swimming Association rules permit records made against time to stand when the events are advertised three days in advance.

White Sox to Get Collegian

Cornell Varsity Crew Victorious

BOSTON, May 28.—A Cornell 'varsity eight stroked from the port side, defeated a Harvard 'varsity crew stroked from starboard, today in the annual regatta between these colleges, contested on the Charles River basin. Two lengths of open water lay between the shells at the finish of the mile and seven-eighths pull.

The Harvard freshmen eight in which the stroking accent was from the port side, showed the best oarsmanship of the day, winning a race from Cornell freshmen for the first time in years. Not only was the form of the Crimson freshmen the most finished on the river, but they contributed the fastest time of the regatta—9 minutes 43 seconds.

This was three seconds—approximately three-fourths of a length by distance—in front of the Cornell yearling crew.

Cornell's 'varsity took 9 minutes 49 seconds to cover the course, but theirs was an easier task over the last mile.

The three lengths advantage was represented in Harvard's official time of 10 minutes one second.

For the first half mile in the 'Varsity race the eights rowed shell and shell, bows fairly even. Harvard had the higher stroke, yet was unable to advance by it. Cornell slugged, as oarsmen described their slower, heavy action, but did it in a unison that made for progress. A splash appeared in the Cornell starboard side from time to time, but at the bridge, a mile along, Cornell was ahead by a quarter of a length. From that point each tug of the oars made some gain for the Ithacans until it became a procession. It was open water at 1⅛ moles; the gap was widened to a length at 1¼ miles and at the mile and a half the lead was approximately the three length margin that was held at the close.

The races were rowed on smooth water under perfect conditions.

GREAT WESTERN TEAM WINS FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME BEATING BUTLERS

The Great Westerns of the Manufacturers' League took the lead yesterday when they defeated Butler Bros., tied with them for first place before the game, by a 7 to 3 score. Brown held the Butlers to eight hits and was well supported. The Great Westerns have won five straight games.

The Triple A team won its second game from the Gibbins-Lohn nine, 10 to 8. Devoy and Murphy led the hitters with two swats in three times at bat. In the other contest the Fultons team won from Gibbins-Lohn by a score of 13 to 7. Tucker had a home run and a two-base hit in four times at bat. The scores:

Heavyweights Sidestep Offers to Act as Dempsey's Sparring Mates

Harry Wills and Kid Norfolk, Negro Candidates for the Champion's Crown, "Too Proud to Fight" as Mere Hirelings, Even When the Honorarium Is $5000.

By Robert Edgren.

(Copyright, 1921.)

A RATHER funny thing is the trouble Jack Dempsey has been having in getting together a staff of the best heavyweight boxers to act as sparring partners.

Some of these gentlemen fall right back on their dignity, as suddenly as if they'd slipped on a banana peel, and say they can't consider being sparring partner for Dempsey as they think they can lick Jack themselves.

That's what Harry Wills said. Wills is the very big, dark lad who used to act as punching bag for Sam Langford until Sam became too old and fat to knock him out any more, and who made his bid for fame by flattening Fred Fulton.

"If you can lick Dempsey come right down to the training camp and do it. Do it every day, until everybody knows you can, and then you'll be regarded as champion. I'll give you $5000 for your trouble, and you can knock Jack out every day, if you're able to," Manager Kearns once wrote him.

Wills replied that this would be undignified, on the part of a large, husky gent who expects some day to be a champion. Nussuh! Nothin' doin'.

To the surprise of everyone Kid Norfolk, colored heavy champion, who had been picked as the best man in the country for Dempsey to work with, made a similar reply:

"I think I can lick Dempsey. Why should I demean myself by being a sparring partner to him?"

Norfolk really can fight, and he's game as they make 'em, and clever and fast enough to take care of himself. Funny that he should dodge a daily mixup with the champion. There must be something in Dempsey's wallop that we mere onlookers don't understand, to make those usually tough birds so strong with the alibi stuff.

Will It Work Again?

I have had one letter from a gent who thinks Dempsey should have begun training two or three months ago, and about 50 from people who are worrying over the possibility that he is starting too soon and will be stale by July 2.

Personally, I'll admit that Dempsey is a hard lad to figure. For a week before he fought Willard he gave every evidence of being over the edge, too light, too nervous, ready to "blow up."

Did he blow up? I'll say he did—like a bomb. The first minute of Dempsey's fighting was an explosion of nerve and muscular force. It left Willard a complete wreck, needing only a little more work to strip him of the championship. It left Dempsey tired, but still strong enough to finish the job. His system was right, that time.

But suppose, being as extremely on edge for the fight, he isn't able to get at his man in that first furious burst of speed and energy. Will he slow down soon afterward? If the Frenchman is undamaged, and Dempsey goes slow, good night!

Sure of a Fight.

Georges Carpentier, confident, unworried, but modest. That's the way his countrymen saw him leave France.

"I will do my best, and I am in very good condition," said Carpentier. "I shall beat Dempsey if I can. If it chances that he defeats me I shall congratulate him, like a sportsman, and if I beat him I have no doubt he will be first to congratulate me."

Dempsey and Carpentier sized each other up carefully when they met to sign articles.

"George," said Dempsey, "sometime after we fight I'm going over to France for a trip and I'll look you up. No matter how the fight comes out we'll be good friends," hey?"

"Sure," smiled Carpentier. "You must visit me in the country at my home. In the ring we shall fight the best we can; but after we shall be good friends. That is the sport."

Sportsmanship of the Carpentier and Dempsey kind is the best guarantee of a good square, rip-roaring battle.

Six Races and Two Other Features to Be Held at Maxwellton This Afternoon.

Today marks the first of two day auto race meet at Maxwellton, St. Louis county's circular mile course. There are a score or more of speed artists slated in eight events, six of which are races and two thrill specialties.

The feature race, the 50-mile sweepstakes will be the final event of the afternoon, with 10 entries. The aviation feature will be that of John Hall changing from auto to aeroplane. Auto polo is slated as the semi-windup with the American and British teams playing.

The Classification Committee assigned the following positions for the start of the 50-mile sweepstakes, 25 miles of which are carded today: First row—Rolling speedway start: Gray (Rajo), Snowden (Zip-Ray), Chatburn (Severin); Second row—15-yard interval: Buchanan (Bluebird), Roundtree (Essex), Sarles (Green-Dayton); Third row—La Faro (Cyclone), Fosnaugh (Premocar-Duesenberg) and Robinson (Peugeot).

Robinson, Costi, Fosnaugh and Roundtree are pitted in the dash event for five miles for professionals carded as "The Battle of Champs."

Sarles, Gray, Snowden, Buchanan and Roundtree are in a five-mile professional light car event, that gives promise of good time.

Joe Johnson (Premier), Swayne (Packard), Simpson (Overland), Burdette (Essex), O'Neill (Chevrolet) and Marvin (Hudson) are pitted in the two stock car events, confined to local entries.

The race will start at 3 p. m. The gates will be opened at noon.

The professional races are under sanction of the International Motor Contests Association. The stock car events are distinct contests and under supervision of L. F. Henry of St. Louis.

SPEEDER FLEEING FROM POLICE HITS AND KILLS MAN

DRIVING ON WRONG SIDE OF STREET

Said to Have Been Racing With Friend in Another Car—Wife of Victim Also Injured.

After being chased 22 blocks by a county officer and policemen, George Peer, 21 years old, of 3940A Louisiana avenue, employe of a real estate firm, at 12:15 a. m. yesterday ran down and killed Charles Melville, 61 years old, a city waterworks foreman, at Broadway and Taylor avenue, while Melville and his wife were waiting for a northbound Broadway car, which was approaching.

Alois B. Cekovsky, 22 years old, of 1710 Allen avenue, also in an automobile, was captured by the pursuing officers just before the accident occurred. He and Peer were friends and had been together to the Riverview Club. Deputy Constable Dutzmann of St. Louis County, who began the chase, told policemen he believed Peer and Cekovsky had been racing.

Had Been Going 55 Miles an Hour.

When arrested Cekovsky said he had been going 55 miles an hour and was trying to catch up with Peer.

Peer was driving on the wrong side of the street and off the vehicle right of way when he ran down Melville and his wife. Melville was dead when he reached the city hospital. His skull was fractured and both legs were broken. Mrs. Melville was hurled aside by the machine. Her back cut and bruised. She was taken to the home of a son at 4936 Maffitt avenue. Peer stopped after the accident. He said he had been going 25 miles an hour. Policemen who had been chasing him in an automobile said their speedometer showed 40 miles an hour.

Deputy Constable Dutzmann started the chase at 8500 North Broadway and two policemen joined in it at 8300 North Broadway.

Roadway Between Tracks.

At the scene of the accident the street car tracks are at the edges of the street with all the vehicle roadway between them. In their position east of the northbound track Melville and his wife had every reason to feel secure, as that side of the tracks is reserved for foot traffic.

Peer said he was confused by the approaching street car whose headlight, he said, blinded him. Two blocks north of the point where the accident occurred the street car tracks converge to the middle of the roadway. Peer said that after passing this point he did not observe that the location of the tracks was changed and did not know that all of the roadway was between the tracks.

As he approached Taylor avenue, he said, the lights of a northbound car blinded him and in trying to avoid the car he swerved to the left, crossing the car track and getting onto the pedestrian right of way. He did not explain why he turned to the left instead of to the right in his effort to avoid the street car. As he was going south the lawful turn would have been to the west side of Broadway.

With Peer in his machine were Benjamin J. Horn of 3925 Shaw avenue; J. L. Cleary, 4201 De Tonty street, and Nova Halberton of 3806 Connecticut street, all about Peer's age. With Cekovsky in his machine were Clement H. Grott of 3213 Arsenal street, and Harry B. Gaines of 3423A Magnolia avenue.

$30,000,000 ART COLLECTION APPRAISED AT $13,000,000

Valuation Revealed in Application to Determine If Multimillionaire Was Resident of New York.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The art collection owned by the late Henry C. Frick and previously estimated to be worth $30,000,000 has declined in value to approximately $13,000,000, an appraisal filed in the Surrogate's Court has revealed. The appraisal was included in papers accompanying the application of the State Comptroller to determine whether Frick was a legal resident of New York or Pittsburg.

The value was placed upon the collection by R. F. Knoedler and Sir Joseph Duvveen, the appraisal being made as of the date of Frick's death, December 2, 1919. The art market of the entire world was depressed at that time, and it is possible, it is said, that the value of the collection has increased since then.

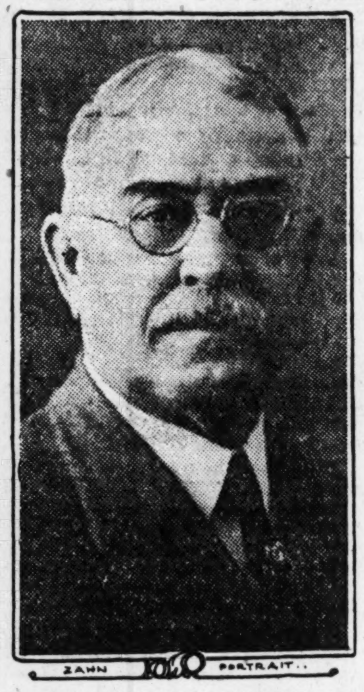
A collection will be made of old clothing, children's toys and other things to be sent to the people of Armenia, Persia and Bible lands. The Governor asked that people deliver their bundles to recognized collection points in their own localities.

Stockyards Manager, With Same Firm 50 Years, Gives Youth Advice on Success

Charles T. Jones Says Man Who Does Not Try to Better Employer's Business and Employer Who Fails to Promote Deserving Employe Harm Themselves.

GENERAL MANAGER OF NATIONAL STOCKYARDS



CHARLES T. JONES

Charles T. Jones, who is general manager of the National Stockyards, East St. Louis, and who will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his employment with that establishment June 11, has described for youth of today—and for employers—a method of living and working which, he thinks, will bring success as it has to him. Two sentences in his expression of that method are:

"The man who fails to do everything in his power to better the business of his employer is harming himself. The more his business expands the greater the opportunity for the employe."

"Employers who fail to increase the salaries of their employes as they deserve increases and who fail to advance them to higher and more responsible positions as they show qualifications are doing an injustice to themselves, their business and their employes."

Jones superintended the erection of the National Stockyards when he was 19 years old in 1871 and made such a good job of it that the company persuaded him to remain in its employment, though he was intending to return east to take up other work as a carpenter and builder. He was placed in charge of the hog department. Subsequently he became superintendent of the yards and in 1899 was made general manager.

Was Apprentice of Contractor.

In 1870 Jones was an apprentice of a Buffalo contractor and assisting him in the construction of sheep barns in East Buffalo in which the New York Central Railroad had a financial interest. Jones' employer died during the progress of the work and the railroad financiers asked Jones to look about for a man who could finish the job. He convinced them that he could finish the job himself and did so successfully that when the same financial interests began the erection of the East St. Louis yards, Jones was sent on to do the job.

Jones arrived in East St. Louis June 11, 1871, and the following day was present at the cornerstone laying of the National Hotel. He built the yards, then began to boss the handling of hogs.

"However," he said, "the title 'boss' 50 years ago usually involved doing most of the work.

"We had no eight-hour day then. I was frequently awakened in the middle of the night, in cold or rainy weather, to go into the yards to assist in unloading hogs which had been brought to the yards by some railroad. I did not think that I was being imposed upon, or overworked, or thought I was entitled to time and a half for overtime, for my chief ambition was to do everything in my power to make the business a success and profitable to my employers. I did not have any idea that I would remain with the company 50 years. It was simply my desire to give complete satisfaction while in the company's employ.

"Recreation" Unheard of.

"Recreation, which we hear so much about nowadays, was unknown then. We took especial delight in telling how much work we had accomplished in a given amount of time. East St. Louis had no theaters, and the only way to reach the amusement places in St. Louis was by ferry. I don't believe I attended a theater twice in a year. The 24-hour day was usually spent in work, eating and sleeping, and frequently we spent but little time on the last two 'recreations.'

"The young fellows of today are not like the young fellows when I was one of them. The motto today appears to be to do as little work, for the most money, in the shortest time.

"I never have asked for an increase in wages, and have never asked for a change of vocation, but apparently my superiors were watching me, for after a comparatively short time as manager of the hog department, I was promoted to the position of foreman of the yards, with an increase in salary. Then I became general timekeeper, and then assistant to the superintendent, taking the position of superintendent in 1877, and was appointed general manager in 1899.

Offered Many Other Positions.

"During the 50 years I have been offered a large number of other positions by individuals or firms engaged in similar or different lines of business. I don't think I made a mistake in declining all these, and remaining with the stockyards company here. Some of the offers made were very attractive, but they did not prove as successful as anticipated.

"My principal idea was to advance, not alone myself, but the interests of my employers. In remaining with the stockyards company I decided it was to my advantage because my employers and the people with whom I came in contact are to my liking, and my employers have always treated me in a manner which has caused me to use every atom of endeavor in my makeup, physically, mentally and socially for their interests. As I continued in the business I made investments with money saved, and have financial interests here in the yards—the bank and other places—which serve to bind me closer to the stockyards and kindred interests.

Started at 50 Cents a Day.

"When I started working as a carpenter's apprentice I received 50 cents a day. That didn't give me much opportunity to save, but as I advanced, I made it a point to save something out of each pay, which developed into a fund, and invested carefully, is serving its purpose to my advantage.

"Too many of the young men of today figure in letting the future take care of itself. They should remember that they must look after their own interests. Nobody else will do it, and while a man is healthy, young and active, and capable of earning a salary, he can easily refrain from spending it all. Put aside a sum each week, and without depriving themselves of anything that they really need, they will be able to accumulate money, which invested in safe enterprises, will aid them when they need financial aid.

Opportunities Great.

"The opportunities for the young man of today are greater than ever in the history of the world. A young man should find himself. Discover what line of business or endeavor he desires to follow, and then when he is sure he is right, go in to work himself up to the top, regardless of hours or pay, and let the employer decide as to his value.

"I show no partiality among the employes here, the poorest paid employe, and the man engaged in the commonest of labor, are accorded the same audience with me on any grievance or anything else on which they desire to consult me.

"I know my employes by name. I speak to each one of them in a manner which, I believe, maintains that friendly feeling which should prevail in any working organization. The men do not hesitate to speak to me. I go among them, and in this manner I am able to judge the workmen. I never show partiality, never treat one better than the other.

Reaches Office Before Employes.

"I always make it a practice to get to the office before the other employes. When I worked in other departments of the yards, and had to start work at 7 a. m., I was always there before that hour. I don't recall ever being late. Now I am at the office before 8 a. m., although it is not necessary for me to get to the office at that time. I always like to be here when the employes come. The example may serve to instill promptness among the employes, at any rate it does no harm, and I feel better.

"My success in remaining in the employment of one concern 50 years, causes me to believe that such a method is a good way to make a success. Of course the employer and employe must be satisfied with each other, and both must work together for mutual success."

VALIER INVENTORY IS FILED

Personal Estate of Miller Fixed at $223,026.

GETS $15,000 FOR LOSS OF HAND

A. J. Kemp, a Switchman, Sued Branch of Terminal for $65,000.

A verdict for $15,000 damages was returned yesterday by a jury in Circuit Judge Falkenhainer's court in favor of Adam J. Kemp of East St. Louis against the East St. Louis & Connecting Railway Co., a branch of the Terminal Association, on account of the loss of his right hand in an accident in the Terminal yards in East St. Louis on Jan. 31, 1920.

Kemp was employed as a switchman and was pulling a pin in a car coupler when the car was set in motion, injuring his right hand so that it was necessary to amputate it. He sued for $65,000, alleging negligence.

RELATIVES WORK FOR STILLMAN SETTLEMENT

Percy A. Rockefeller, Brother-in-Law of Banker, Said to Be Taking a Part.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Members of the Rockefeller family who are related to James A. Stillman by marriage, and were formerly associated with him in the directorate of the National City Bank, are still working for a settlement out of court of his divorce case, according to reports today. It was also asserted that one of the movers in the attempt was James A. Stillman Jr., familiarly known as "Bud."

It was learned that when Mrs. Stillman went to Poughkeepsie about 10 days ago for a conference with John E. Mack, guardian-at-law of Guy Stillman, it was "Bud" who drove the touring car, which caused comment among the residents as it drew up in front of Mack's house, and one stylishly-dressed woman and four well dressed men alighted.

It was said today that one of the men was Harold McCormick Jr., son of the president of the International Harvester Co., who was reported several weeks ago as engaged to Miss Anne Stillman, daughter of the banker. The engagement was denied at the time. McCormick has previously appeared, however, with Mrs. Stillman at one of the referee's hearings, and is known as a friend of the family.

It was rumored about Poughkeepsie yesterday that another of the men in the car was Percy A. Rockefeller, but this could not be verified. Mrs. Percy A. Rockefeller is a sister of James A. Stillman. Her husband is a member of the Millbrook Hunt Club, which is 15 miles from Poughkeepsie.

Rockefeller recently denounced as "rot" the report that any of the bank's directors were trying to bring about a settlement. The wife of William G. Rockefeller, P. A. Rockefeller's brother, was formerly Miss Elsie Stillman, another sister of the banker.

Despite the repeated assurances that the banker intends to fight to the limit to divorce his wife, it apparently would surprise no one if there should be another adjournment when the case is called Wednesday before Referee Gleason in Poughkeepsie. Such an adjournment would give opportunity for additional negotiations.

TEMPLE ISRAEL HONORS FIVE MEMBERS WHO DIED IN WAR

In Presenting Tablet Rabbi Harrison Says Blessings of Grateful Nations Rest Upon Dead.

A bronze tablet upon which are inscribed the names of five members of the congregation of Temple Israel who died in the world war, and which has been placed over the main entrance to the temple, was dedicated Friday night in memorial services. An American flag and post colors were presented to the Goldman-Grodsky post of the American Legion as a memorial to the services of 137 others of the congregation who served and returned.

The bronze tablet bears the names of the following: Second Lieut. Jerome Lester Goldman of the Fifth Marines, who fell at Belleau Wood; Alfred Kreisman, private in the medical department, who died in a hospital at Fort Omaha; David Susman, who died at the Great Lakes Naval Training Station; First Lieut. Joseph Louis Swarts of the Medical Corps, who died at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and Lawrence Samuel Wise, who died at the Great Lakes hospital.

In making the presentation, Rabbi Leon Harrison, said, in part:

"There is one thought which I would ask you to carry always in your hearts. The measure of a human life is not taken in terms so crude and inexpressive as its span of years. Whether a man dies soon or late does not matter so long as he lived gloriously. The fruition of his service to humanity may come, as it came upon these five, in the full vigor and strength of young manhood. Yet who would dare to detract one leaf from the victor's crown gained by such an untimely end. The mantle of immortality and the blessing of a grateful nation rest upon them."

PEACOCK FEATHERS ON WOMEN'S SHOES SHOWN IN PARIS

PARIS, May 28.—Women's shoes display extraordinary styles this year at the shoe fair on Avenue du Cours la Reine. Many make a feature of birds. On one pair are the deep blue neck feathers of a peacock with a single eye cut from a tail feather set instead of a buckle. Another pair is manufactured from the scarlet plumage of a flamingo.

Even in leather shoes red (especially scarlet and pink) is popular for tops. In fact, women's footwear is of all colors this year.

Milliners also are now in their glory. They have sprung a surprise by launching a modified edition of the poke bonnet of our grandmothers. This model gives shade to the eyes but leaves the neck uncovered.

The toque and the broad brimmed hat appear to have passed the zenith of popularity and the poke bids fair to rule supreme.

1200 DOCTORS ASKED TO ATTEND WASHINGTON U. COMMENCEMENT

Special invitations to attend the sixtieth annual commencement, June 9, are being sent by Washington University to its school of medicine alumni, numbering about 1200, and favorable responses are arriving in volume to indicate large attendance. This is the first time an effort of this nature has been made to induce alumni of any special department of the university to attend commencement exercises.

Commencement arrangements are in charge of the Men's and Women's unions, and include luncheon to be served under trees lining the walk between Graham Memorial chapel and Francis gymnasium. Other special guests at the event are members of the classes of 1916, 1911, 1906, 1901 and 1890, these being the five classes allotted to this year under the regular order of their reunions. The two most recent classes are known to be planning special entertainments for their reunion, that of 1916 including a play in the gymnasium the afternoon of commencement day.

KENTUCKIAN HELD FOR FORGERY

Said to Have Admitted That he Did It to Support Family.

Charles R. Webb, 35 years old, of 619 North Thirtieth street, Louisville, Ky., was arrested last night on a telegram from the Chief of Police of Louisville stating that Webb was wanted there for forgeries totaling $2000. He was staying at the La Salle Hotel.

Webb is said to have admitted that he had committed forgeries, but that the amount was not in excess of $200. His salary of $35 a week, as cashier for a creamery company, was not sufficient to maintain his family, which included a wife and three children, he is alleged to have said, so he forged check to supplement it. He waived extradition.

NO FORMAL REPLY BY JAPAN ON YAP ISSUE

Proposal to Internationalize the Cables Affected Reported Probable.

By the Associated Press.

TOKIO, May. 28.—Japan, according to the best available information here, has not sent a formal communication to Washington as an answer to Secretary of State Hughes' note on the mandate question, but will inaugurate an exchange of memoranda in an effort to find a way to a direct settlement of the question of the Island of Yap.

This is described as in keeping with Japan's policy frankly to discuss with the new administration in Washington all problems between Japan and America. Japan was expected to offer some form of internationalization of the cables affected.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Proposals from Japan for internationalization of cables touching at the Island of Yap probably would be in line with suggestions made at the communication conference now in recess, it was said here today. The Japanese negotiators let it be known then that Japan was not averse to some kind of international control of the cables, provided that could be arranged without impairing the political control of Japan over the island under mandate.

American representatives at the conference were not willing to separate the issues, preferring to settle once for all questions as to legality of the mandates under which Japan holds possession of Yap, and the British occupy Mesopotamia and British Colonial possessions control former German-owned territories and islands.

It was believed the Tokio dispatch has reference to this situation in speaking of the political as opposed to the legal issues involves.

So far no move has been made in Washington to begin new exchanges on the subject. Officials on both sides have been looking forward to the consideration of the mandate question at an early meeting of the Supreme Council, in accordance with the promise of the French Government in answer to Secretary Colby's letter on the subject. It was said that if instructions from Tokio were on the way to that effect, however, there was no reason why another effort should not be made to secure a special arrangement for the joint or international operation of the Yap cables, leaving the Supreme Council to consider the political question involved in the mandate at its leisure.

C. OF C. OPPOSES SUBMISSION OF POLITICAL BILLS IN AUGUST

The board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce Friday approved a resolution recommended by the chamber's Committee on State Legislation opposing the submission at the special election in August of any question except whether a constitutional convention shall be held, and the proposed constitutional amendments removing the disqualification of women as office holders and perfecting the road bond issue amendment.

Reports from Jefferson City have indicated that Gov. Hyde may ask to have submitted at the election a referendum on bills which he expects to have passed at a special session of the Legislature if the measures consolidating State departments, passed at the regular session, are prevented from going into effect by the filing of referendum petitions. It is the administration idea that if the referendum petitions are filed, the Legislature can repeal the laws affected, and re-enact them with directions that they be referred to a vote at the special session. Under the petitions they cannot be voted on until Nov, 1922.

By its resolution the Chamber of Commerce has joined with the New Constitutional Association in opposing submission of other questions on the ground that they might interfere with a proper popular expression on the subject of a new Constitution.

THREE ON MOTORCYCLE INJURED

Mrs. Irene Lazzaro, 19 years old; her husband, Sam Lazzaro, 27, and Frank Birunda, 21, all of 1708 North Thirteenth street, were injured shortly after last midnight when a motorcycle on which they were seated was struck by an automobile between Tenth and Eleventh streets on Cass avenue. They were taken to the City Hospital, where Mrs. Lazzaro was found to have a probable fracture of the skull and the two men to have been bruised.

Lazzaro and Birunda had driven east on Cass avenue and had stopped in the middle of the 1000 block to call for Mrs. Lazzaro. When they were ready to ride away, a large touring car struck the motorcycle, throwing the three persons to the street.

BOY FALLS FROM CYCLE, DIES

An autopsy will be necessary to determine the cause of death of Alphone Schwald, 11 years old, son of Bernhart Schwald, a carpenter of 3242 Bent avenue, who was picked up, dead, after he was seen to fall from a bicycle in front of 4039 Humphrey street, at 1 p. m. yesterday.

Persons in the neighborhood saw him fall and then lie motionless. He was unconscious, and a physician, who was called, pronounced him cause. The police sent the body to the city hospital, and the receiving physician there also was unable to find any indications of the cause. The absence of any marks tended toward the belief that the boy had expired suddenly while riding.

AMERICAN LEGION'S ETIQUETTE OF FLAG FOR DECORATION DAY

In Raising or Lowering the Stars and Stripes It Must Never Be Allowed to Touch Ground.

By the Associated Press.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 28.—Etiquette of the Flag, which requires that pedestrians shall halt, uncover and face the Colors when they are borne past, have been announced here by the State headquarters of the American Legion, as part of the preparation for Decoration day, next Monday.

The Legion's Etiquette of the Flag follows:

"The position of the flag is aloft, from a pinnacle of a building, higher than the furniture of a room, and above the head of one carrying it.

"The flag must not be raised before sunrise or remain up after sunset. In raising or lowering the flag, it must never be allowed to touch the ground.

"When the flag is raised formally, all present should stand at attention with hand raised to forehead ready to salute. When the colors are passing on parade spectators, if walking, shall halt; if sitting, rise—and stand at attention.

"The flag hung out of doors should always fly to the breeze, preferably from a pole, and should never be fastened to the side of a building, platform or scaffolding.

"The flag shall never be placed below a person sitting. It should not be used as a cover for a table, desk or box, nor should anything be placed on it except it be a Bible. The flag should never be so placed that it will be struck by a gavel.

"The flag should not be worn as part or the whole of a costume. When worn as a badge it should be small and pinned over the left breast or on the left coat lapel.

"The flag should never be washed. When worn or torn it should be reverently burned.

"It is forbidden to deface, defile or cast contempt upon the flag by word or act. Any violation of this law is punishable by fine or imprisonment, or both.

"By law in Illinois it is forbidden to place any word, picture design, drawing, or advertisement upon the United States or State flags. Likewise it is forbidden to place any representation of the flag upon goods for sale.

"A statute provides that those in charge of public buildings and institutions shall display a flag at least four by eight feet on legal holidays and such other days as they may determine."

BODY OF MAN FOUND IN WEEDS IN EAST ST. LOUIS SUBURB

Two Bullet Wounds in Head and Coroner Says Death Occurred a Week Ago.

The body of an unidentified man, about 50 years old, was found yesterday afternoon in weeds near the tracks of the Alton & Southern Railroad at Washington Park, a suburb of East St. Louis.

Coroner Barker, who viewed the body where it was found, said the man had been dead at least a week. The body was removed to a vault in the cemetery, where it will remain until after the inquest Monday. Barker said the man had two bullet wounds, one on the left side of the head and the other in the roof of his mouth. A 32-caliber revolver, three empty cartridges and a loaded one were found near the body.

The man weighed about 150 pounds, and was about 5 feet 8 inches tall. He wore dark clothes, a brown cap with the name of "Nugent's Dry Goods Co., St. Louis," in it, a light colored shirt with a brown stripe, and had nose glasses.

VESNITCH, JUGO-SLAV LEADER, DIES IN PARIS

Former Premier and Minister to France Married American Woman.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, May 28.—Dr. Milenko R. Vesnitch, former Jugo-Slav Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, and lately Jugo-Slav Minister to France, died here today.

In 1906 he married Mrs. Blanche Ulman of New York.

Dr. Vesnitch, who was one of the signers on behalf of Jugo-Slavia of the peace treaty of Versailles, had a long career as diplomatist and statesman.

Entered Serbian Cabinet.

Early in the European war he entered the Serbian Cabinet, serving as Minister of Finance and later represented Serbia at various allied conferences in Paris and elsewhere. In 1917 he headed the Serbian mission to the United States, delivering addresses in the Senate and House of Representatives in Washington and after the armistice was named Jugo-Slav delegate to the peace conference in Paris.

He was on terms of intimacy with President Wilson during the peace conference and when the President was chosen chairman of the commission to draft the League of Nations covenant, he selected Dr. Vesnitch as one of the members of the commission.

The Serbian member took an important part in drafting the covenant and at one of the critical phases was designated with Lord Robert Cecil and Premier Venizelos, to settle some of the difficulties that had threatened to be insurmountable.

Helped Settle Fiume Dispute.

In the Fiume contest, Dr. Vesnitch took the lead in supporting the Jugo-Slav claims and it was largely through his influence and that of M. Trumbitch, Minister of Foreign Affairs, that President Wilson sought to reconcile the issue along the lines of Jugo-Slavia's contentions.

It was because of his firm and unyielding attitude on the Fiume question that Dr. Vesnitch became Minister of Foreign Affairs of Jugo-Slavia and later joined in drafting and signing the final agreement which settled the long-pending Fiume controversy.

MAN KILLS SELF AFTER SLIGHTLY WOUNDING WIFE

Granite City Tinner Foreman Had Quarreled With Woman Because She Refused to Sign Deed.

Charles Gentry, 28 years old, a tinner foreman employed at the American Car and Foundry Co., at Madison, Ill., shot and killed himself at 12:30 yesterday after firing five shots at his wife, Mrs. Kathryn Gentry, 25 years old, at her home, 2442 Dewey avenue, Granite City. One bullet inflicted a slight wound over the right eye and she suffered considerably from shock.

Gentry and his wife had been separated for some time. He had demanded that she sign a deed to their property, and, according to her story, had given her until noon yesterday to move. When he again demanded yesterday that she sign the deed she walked out of the kitchen, where they had been talking, into the back yard. Gentry followed her and fired five shots at her. He then turned the weapon upon himself and shot himself through the head, causing almost instant death. The shooting was in the presence of the 3-year-old son of the couple. They have another child, a girl, 7 years old. She was not at home.

Father, Farmer Near Toledo, Still Weak From Illness After Eating Bread, Visits Her in Jail.

CHEMIST'S REPORT ON FOOD AWAITED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

TOLEDO, O., May 28.—Elsie Grieder Weber, 19 years old, a bride, accused of attempting to poison her wealthy father and mother, her two sisters and three brothers, expects to be out of the Fulton County jail before Sunday morning.

Emil Grieder, the father, visited her today in her cell and, when he left, the girl was in tears. The father is still weak from the effects of his illess of last Saturday when he ate part of a slice of bread on which the authorities believe poison had been placed. His son-in-law, Arthur Weber, charged jointly with his wife of a wholesale poison attempt, also visited the jail. He promised to get sureties today for the $5000 bond necessary to take his wife home. His father put up bond in a like amount to release Weber.

In the meantime Dr. R. C. Longfellow, in Toledo, has several samples of food taken from the Grieder table for analysis. The authorities suspect a phosphorus poison had been placed in the coffee pot and tea kettle, mixed with ground coffee, sugar, salt and flour in the Grieder cupboard and dropped in the vinegar and cider barrel in the cellar. Other food had been sprinkled with a white powder and a pamphlet from a package of rat poison was found in a cupboard.

Prosecutor Canfield is awaiting the chemist's report, and the preliminary hearing of the pair before Justice L. H. Guilford Wednesday was postponed until June 2.

Denial by Prisoner.

Elsie Weber denied any knowledge of the attempt to poison her kinfolk. She first heard of it, she said, when she was summoned by telephone Saturday night.

"I never had any trouble with my parents," she says, "and beside I can account for every moment of Saturday when the time comes to tell a jury. Why, my father never punished me in his life. He bought me the piano and when Art and I were married in March, he turned one of his farms over to us and has been helping us ever since until we can get in our first crop. It is a story someone has made up about Arthur and me."

Elsie Weber and her husband, who is only 22, had been sweethearts for a long time before they were married. She is a pronounced blonde, with flax-colored hair that won't, as she says, "keep its curl." Her eyes are gray, inclining to green.

In Fulton County the alleged attempt to wipe out the Grieder family is the main topic of conversation. Grieder, who is accounted among the wealthiest farmers of the community, owns two large farms in Franklin township, the one he resides on in an impressive country dwelling, and the one his daughter and son-in-law are tenanting. They are about three miles apart.

Last Saturday morning Grieder and his family drove to Defiance for the day. On the way they stopped for a moment's visit with their daughter.

They expected to be gone until late evening, but the business that took the farmer to the city was finished sooner than he expected and they returned home about 3 o'clock.

Luncheon Was on Table.

Mrs. Grieder had prepared a luncheon before they left and food was on a table. The coffee pot was on the stove. When the family entered the house one of the boys picked a piece of bologna from the table and took a bite. He said it had a peculiar flavor and put it back on the plate. Grieder took a piece of bread from the table to eat as he walked towards the barn. Almost immediately he became ill. Mrs. Grieder detected a peculiar odor in the coffee pot. She telephones to Dr. C. E. Bennett here, who drove to the place and administered an emetic to the farmer.

The prosecution professes to attach some importance to a statement accredited to Elsie Weber when her mother telephoned that her father was ill. "It's good enough for him," the girl was quoted to the prosecution, "for telling me I stole."

Weber was arrested by Sheriff Ford Monday on a complaint sworn to by his father-in-law, and his wife was arrested the next day. The story is told in Wauseon that Grieder missed $60 from a hiding place in the house after his daughter had visited them three weeks ago. As there had been no other person in the dwelling who knew where the money was hidden, the farmer is declared to have accused Mrs. Weber of taking it. The girl denied it vehemently, it is reported, and left her parent's home in anger. The authorities believe there may be an interesting psychological link between the daughter's remark when she learned of her father's illness and the alleged accusation of three weeks before.

Grieder came to Fulton County from Switzerland more than 30 years ago, and obtained work on a farm. He was thrifty and shrewd, and in a few years he owned a farm of his own. He is regarded as one of the most successful farmers in the county.

20-Year-Old Girl, Wedded to Fred Connors, Safeblower, Says She Would Fix Lunch for Him to Take on Early Morning "Jobs."

Mrs. Lorna Connors, 20 years old and almost blind, has given a remarkable account of her experiences in the last 15 months as the wife of Fred Connors, 47 years old, safeblower and former convict who was captured Thursday night at the candy and notion store at 1714 North Taylor avenue which he had operated as a "blind" since last October, while committing safe robberies in St. Louis. Dynamite and nitroglycerin were found hidden there.

The young bride, totally blind when deprived of her glasses, told of cruel treatment by the safeblower and recounted how he would hide her eyeglasses and lock her in the explosive-stored house when he went out in the daytime and make her sit by his bedside to awaken him at a given hour when he went out at night to crack safes.

Mrs. Connors' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Wells, are both blind. They recently moved from Cuba, Mo., to St. James, Mo. Her mother, who has been in St. Louis a week, was with her in a room back of the Taylor avenue store Friday afternoon when she told of her experiences, which were published in detail in yesterday's Post-Dispatch.

Mrs. Connors told of meeting Connors for the first time in July, 1919, when she obtained work as a pantry girl at the Jefferson Hotel. Connors was a night elevator man there. They were married Feb. 23, 1920, she said, and went to live at 103 North Twelfth street. Not long after this, she said, Connors revealed to her that he was a safeblower, but induced her to remain with him, saying he had changed his ways and needed someone like her to keep him straight.

Lived at Various Places.

In turn, they lived at Eleventh and Salisbury streets, Ninth and Salisbury streets, on Geyer avenue near Missouri avenue, 113 North Sarah street and 2819 Dickson street. She said he did not keep dynamite and burglar tools until after they moved to the Dickson street address.

After telling how her husband apparently subsisted for a time on odd jobs and on money borrowed from her parents, she told of his departure from his promise to "go straight." When they were hungry last June, she said, he would go out in the morning and steal bread from boxes and milk from doorsteps and sometimes their only food for days would be bread and milk.

Once, she said, he came home with bread, butter and several dollars in pennies, which he said he had stolen from a Kroger store. Coming to the period of their married life when there were indications that he was committing more serious crimes Mrs. Connors said:

"On Veiled Prophet's night last year, he locked me in the house and went out. This was Oct. 5. When he came back he seemed to have plenty of money. He sent stamps to my folks to pay postage on some of our goods which he wanted them to send him. From that time we had more to eat. On Oct. 25 last he bought the stock of the Taylor avenue store for $260 cash and agreed to pay $13 a month rent for the store and rooms. He bought a player-piano on time payments.

"Shortly after we moved to Taylor avenue he made 'soup' (nitroglycerin) in the kitchen.

"I asked him what he was doing and he said: 'I'm making soup. It's bad stuff and might give you a headache.' He made me stay out of the kitchen while the 'soup' was cooking. About the same time he took up part of the kitchen floor and put sticks of dynamite under it where the policemen found them Thursday night. After that he wouldn't let me scrub the kitchen floor, fearing I might wet the dynamite and spoil it.

Always Carried Revolver.

"We didn't do much business in the store. He would open it between 7 and 8 a. m. Whenever he went out he would lock the doors and put up a sign which read: 'Closed; Back Soon.' He always carried a revolver, even if he only stepped out into the yard.

"The only time he would let me out of the house was around the middle of each month when he went downtown to pay bills. He would keep me dodging into doorways to avoid policemen and detectives. When he would see detectives on the street he would say: 'There's a couple of 'dicks.' He was always boasting that the detectives were his friends and that they respected him for his skill as a safeblower, but I noticed he was always anxious to avoid them. Sometimes when I was downtown with him I felt so tired of the way I was living that I thought of throwing myself in front of an automobile and getting badly hurt so they would take me to the hospital where I would be away from him.

"I was always afraid of him. He often told me that if I tried to leave the house he would fill me full of lead. Every night he would go to bed early and he would make me sit up so I could wake him at 2 or 3 o'clock in the morning to start out on a job. I would give him a lunch and he would take his bag of tools and go out. Sometimes he would come back in a shrt time and say there was 'too much moon' or 'the coppers were too thick' or he had found a place that didn't have a 'chest,' meaning safe.

"One day about dawn he came in with tears in his eyes and said he had shot a man. He said he thought the man was a 'copper.' I asked if he had killed the man and he said: 'I don't know. We'll have to wait and see the newspapers.' I suggested that we send some money to the man's folks, but he said we didn't have any more money than we needed.

"He always carried his tools in a flowered bag which he made himself from some portiere goods which had been left here when we moved in. He also put a lining of this goods in his overcoat pocket. One morning about two months ago he came home without his bag, tools, overcoat and hat. He was wearing a new cape which he said he had got by breaking a store window after policemen had chased him off a safe robbery job.

"He said he was on the roof of a building where he was going to blow a safe when he heard policemen rattling the door and snooping around the building. He told me that he pretended he was a policeman and leaned over the roof and pointed, saying, 'There he goes'. The policemen, he said, followed his directions and chased an imaginary thief, while he jumped to the roof of another building and got away.

"Thursday night, the night the detectives came here, and got him, he was going out on an early job. He had told me to wake him at 10:30 and I was sitting by his bed when the policemen came."

Mrs. Connors' account of the time her husband came home and said he shot a man confirms the police in their belief that it was Connors who shot Otto Bauer, a bread wagon driver, at John F. Luebke's grocery store, 4398 Olive street, on the morning of March 8 last. Bauer was putting bread in a box in the rear of the store when a man stepped from the doorway and shot him. It was found that an attempt had been made to blow open the safe in the store. Bauer, who has recovered, will be taken to see Connors in an effort to identify him.

The "job" on which the flowered tool bag, hat and overcoat were left behind was at the Missouri Packing Co. plant, 2734 Franklin avenue, March 14 last. Goods matching the bag and the overcoat pocket lining were found in Connors' store after his arrest.

To Detective Chief Hoagland yesterday Connors admitted the evidence was strong against him in the packing house case and later strengthened this admission by saying that he fled from the packing house roof when he heard the "rumble," meaning the sound of a policeman trying the door. Investigation showed that an effort had been made to blow the packing house safe.

Mrs. Connors, in her recital of her experiences, said Connors told her he had twice escaped from prison, once by knocking down a guard and once by scaling a wall with a ladder.

tained from 40 per cent dynamite, he said, he often was compelled to use several "shots" on a safe. At the West End Laundry, he said, he was compelled to use five shots, which kept him at work from midnight until 4:30 a. m. He said at other times the power of the nitroglycerine had deteriorated through age.

Corroborates Wife's Remark.

He was uninformed of what his wife had said concerning his operations, yet corroborated one of her statements in the course of his own recital. Mrs. Connors had told that when he was apparently about to be captured in the Missouri Packing Co. in an effort to blow a safe, he had shouted from the roof of the building to a policeman at the door below: "There he goes now; he just turned the corner." The policeman ran in the direction indicated and Connors escaped.

Connors described his blowing of the safe in the St. Agnes Coal Co. as his easiest job. He explained that all safes with two ets of tumblers have a day combination, or "day comb," as he called it, and a night combination. He said that the safe in the coal company had been inadvertenttly left with the day combination alone set, that he worked itopen with ease without explosive, blew the inner door with one shot and worked the combination of a smaller safe he found within, which contained $700.

Connors said that he prefaced a safe-blowing with a thorough study of the neighborhood, following the policeman on the beat and timing his rounds. He said that several times he was unable to finish his work before it was time for the policeman on the beat to return, and that on such occasions he slipped out, returning to finish his task after the policeman had come and gone again.

Escaped as Patrol Wagon Arrived.

He said that at the Mathis Fish Co. he had inserted one "shot" in the safe and was ready to blow it when an old man living above stuck his head out of the window and began to call "police." He said that as he escaped he heard a patrol wagon coming up the street.

At the School for the Blind, Connors said that he exploded one shot without getting into the safe, went upstairs, got a drink although he could hear persons moving about, returned to the safe, inserted another charge, exploded it and obtained $100. "I knew everybody in the place, except the superintendent, was blind, and I was not alarmed," he said. His wife, who is nearly blind, received instruction at this school.

He said that shortly afterward he met a blind man and mentioned this robbery. He said that the blind man said: "Yes, they got $700." He mentioned this in declaring that reports of losses in robberies often were exaggerated.

During the conversation Chief Hoagland asked Connors what, in his opinion, was the matter with the St. Louis Police Department.

"What do you mean?" Connors asked.

"Well," Hoagland replied, 'you have eluded the police for some time and often police officers are killed by criminals."

"Your police are too considerate of criminals," Connors said. "When you stop a suspect, it is with an apologetic manner. In Chicago and other cities they bump into a man and when he turns he feels a revolver in his stomach. He is told to 'elevate them' and he must do it in a hurry. You don't handle them rough enough."

Never Worked With Parties.

Connors is his talk with the Chief admitted that he had been a professional safeblower and said he never worked with a partner as he didn't like to be "hooked up with a phonograph," meaning a pal who might betray him by talking too much. "All the prison stretches I ever did came from being snitched on," he said. "It's more dangerous to work alone, but I'd rather be shot than turned up."

Chief Hoagland commented on the shortness of the fuses found at Connors' store. They were only three inches long. Most safeblowers use a much longer fuse to give themselves time to get out of the danger zone before the charge explodes.

'Sure my fuses are short," said Connors, "but I don't sit around and smoke cigars while I'm blowing a safe. I work fast, I do."

Connors was sent to the Columbus (O.) penitentiary from Springfield, O., Sept. 23, 1908, to serve a 15-year sentence on his plea of guilty of safeblowing. He escaped Feb. 9, 1910. He was rearrested in St. Louis at 6304 Spencer avenue in May, 1910. A quart of nitroglycerin was found on his premises. He was returned to the Ohio penitentiary May 10, 1910, and was pardoned Nov. 10, 1916.

HOUSE REPUBLICANS AT ODDS OVER TARIFF

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, May 28.—Republican members of the House Ways and Means Committee, preparing a final draft of the general tariff bill, are said tonight to be at odds over four important schedules in the measure. What is described as an open split has occurred in the writing of schedules for chemical, cotton, wool and silks.

Despite the lack of agreement on these schedules and the fact that some others have passed only the subcommittee stage, Chairman Fordney holds to his prediction of June 10 as the date of introduction. Some members of the committee, however, declare the House will not receive the measure short of Jun 20.

The chemical schedule, it is said, has resulted in a continuation of the fight originating in the Senate against the further use of restrictions, other than by tariff rates, on the importations of dyestuffs. Fordney is understood to have announced his vigorous opposition in the committee to any plan savoring of an embargo, although he is willing to allow the application of his rates.

The chemical provisions, it is understood, have been put at the bottom of the list of schedules awaiting consideration. No indication is given when they will be taken up again, and but few members are said to feel that the mere passing over of the provisions will eliminate the sore spots already caused.

Neither the subcommittee nor the full Republican membership has succeeded in establishing basic rates on the silk schedule, while sectional views are said to have been reflected in the attempt to fix rates on cotton and its products. The New England element in the committee is said to be fighting against the rates on cotton products, claiming they are disproportionate to the rates on the raw products.

Few members are willing to talk of the wool schedule, but it is learned that the division on wool rates centered around the same problem as those on cotton—disparity between the rates on the raw and manufactured products.

Subcommittee drafts of the schedules on earthenware, paper sundries and minerals are understood to have been accepted by the majority members of the committee.

Formal call for a caucus of House Republicans next Wednesday went out today. The conference will discuss and attempt to determine a party policy on the resolution of Representative Longworth of Ohio, which would make tariff duties carried by the general bill effective upon the date of introduction in the House. Representative Young of North Dakota, the only Republican member of the Ways and Means Committee to oppose the plan, announced today he would carry his fight against it to the caucus and declared he had assurance of strong support.

TOWN CLUB MEMBERS ENTERTAINED WITH PLAY

Under a sun as boiling and lingering, though not so humorous, as the Mikado's famous oil, a one-act play, "Told in a Chinese Garden," by Constance Grenelle Wilcox, received a private presentation yesterday afternoon in the grounds of the residence of Mrs. George T. Moore, wife of the director of the Missouri Botanical Garden. The performance was for the entertainment of members of the Town Club and their guests, and the audience consisted of several hundred women, to say nothing of three or four piteous males, who concealed their ignominy as best they could beneath umbrellas.

As the gathering basked in the heat like a throng of salamanders—for there was almost no shade—one became aware of certain quaint objects which outlined themselves against the cool blue shrubbery of the Botanical Garden. There was a pair of hairless iron dogs; behind them was a porcelain barrel, and at one side, adorning the stairway descending a terrace, banners of scarlet silk and enormous fish, with goggling eyes, made of paper, flaunted their vivid hues as a breeze came and went.

Dogs Brought From China.

The dogs, it proved, were brought from China by W. K. Bixby; the porcelain hogshead was imported from the Flowery Republic by Mrs. George O. Carpenter, and the fish, also of genuine Chinese fabrication, were loaned by Mrs. W. W. Boyd.

All of the costumes worn by the principals were likewise of authentic Chinese weave. A beautiful garment of embroidered blue silk, worn by the heroine, was loaned by Mrs. Oscar Johnson; and another of blue and gold magnificence was provided by Bixby for Miss Lillie R. Ernst, Assistant Superintendent of Schools, who also, in the character of a Scribe, donned a formidable pair of mustachios and a baritone voice.

The parts were assigned as follows: Tai-Lo, a nobleman disguised as a gardener, Dr. Fred A. Jostes; Li-Ti, a Chinese maiden, Mrs. Arthur Proetz; Wang-Chu-Mo, her father, S. P. Goddard; Poa-Ting-Fang, her villainous suitor, Blanchard McKee, and a scribe, Miss Ernst. Minor parts were taken by Miss Charlotte Taussig and Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk, as governesses; William Douglas, as a guard, and about seven other as coolies.

Details of the Plot.

Li-Ti is affianced to Poa-Ting-Fang, whom she detests, because she has heard that he has committed murder and robbery to seize a fortune. She had much rather linger among the flowers and listen to the handsome young gardener sing his songs and tell pretty fairy tales about the white and golden blooms. Thanks to the natural setting, the gardener had real flower beds in which to ply his trowel and real blossoms to clip for his basket of flowers.

Poa-Ting-Fang loses in the garden his emerald ring, valued at a thousand silver mines. Recognizing in the gardener his own nephew, who had run away to be a wandering minstrel, the rascally uncle accuses him of stealing the ring, and demands that the executioner be ordered to do horrible things to the culprit.

Now it is Li-Ti who has found the ring, and is keeping it secret because she hopes her incensed suitor will refuse to marry her, having lost the gem in her father's garden. But when it seems that Tai-Lo is about to be delivered over to the hangman, she rushes forward and frees him by surrendering the emerald. Tai-Lo thereupon succeeds in proving his identity, unmasks his uncle as a thief, and brings matters to a happy end.

Sages Quoted in Play.

The play abounds in the usual elaborate Chinese ceremonial and etiquette, and in high-flown quotations from the sages. Mrs. Proetz was charming as the heroine, and McKee rolled off his lines with resonant and unctuous scoundrelism. The governesses did their part humorously. All braved the afternoon sun with valor, despite the handicaps of grease paint, wigs and heavy garments.

The same cast has given this play twice previously. The first performance was also at Mrs. Moore's home on May 7, for members of the Wednesday Club. The second performance, a week later, was in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Hermann von Schrenk of Florissant.

A. H. HANDLAN FUNERAL TOMORROW MORNING

Picturesque Figure Among Business Men Dies at Summer Home at 77.

The funeral of Alexander H. Handlan, 77 years old, president of the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., whose death occurred at 1 a. m. yesterday at his summer home in Oconomowoc, Wis., will be held at 9 a. m. tomorrow at the New Cathedral. The services will be conducted by the Rev. Father Francis Gilfillan, pastor of the parish, and a close friend of the Handlan family.

Handlan had been in ill health for a year, suffering from heart trouble. He left St. Louis in January for Florida winter resorts, where he remained until a month ago, when he arrived at Oconomowoc, where his summer residence was one of the show places of the colony.

He was one of the picturesque figures among the older generation of St. Louis business men. Starting 52 years ago as a $75-a-month clerk in the small concern of M. M. Buck, a dealer in railway lanterns, he became one of the largest manufacturers of railway supplies in the West. His fortune made, he retired from active participation in the company's affairs about 20 years ago, but always had a keen interest in the business, and visited the office whenever he was in the city.

His Start in Business.

Two years ago, upon the fiftieth anniversary of his connection with the company, he related to reporters how he got his start in business. It was during the absence of Buck, who left the business in Handlan's hands. During the two months that his employer was away, Handlan took in $40,000 worth of orders, which was more than the concern had done in two years.

"When the boss got back," said Handlan, "and found what I had done, he raised my salary to $1600 a year, and gave me an order on the best tailor in town for a $10 suit of clothes." The following year Handlan bought an interest, and eventually bought his employer out.

In 1901 he changed the name to the Handlan-Buck Manufacturing Co., now located at 210 North Third street.

In relating two years ago some of his maxims for health and success, he said: "I never took a drink in a St. Louis barroom in my life. I am an inveterate smoker, and I eat what I like. Play your cards on the table. When you're hurt, don't show it. Always be able to lose. Be on the square."

He related many instances of refusing to obtain contracts by "fixing" dishonest purchasing agents. He said he didn't get business that way.

Seven of 15 Children Survive.

He was married in Nashville, Tenn., in 1866, by Archbishop Feehan, to Miss Mollie de Prez, member of an old French family. She survives him, as do seven of their 15 children. Handlan was the son of a Mississippi River steamboat captain.

The children who survive him are Maj. Edward R. Handlan, Alexander H. Handlan and Eugene W. Handlan of St. Louis; Mrs Lilliam Lemp of St. Louis, Mrs. Henry T. Hornsby of Joplin, Mrs. M. J. Trautz of Cincinnati and Mrs. Harry Bisbee of Kansas City.

It was said last night that all the children probably would be able to attend the funeral. Mrs. Handlan resides at the Buckingham hotel.

"What We Are Going to Do With the St. Louis Police Department"

TOLD BY

VICTOR J. MILLER.

New Police Board Head Is 32, Comes From Joplin, and Never Worries

THE experiment of placing a noticeably young and untried man at the head of police affairs here was tried for the second time, when Gov. Hyde appointed Victor J. Miller to the Police Board, with the understanding that he should be named as its President.

Gov. Stephens in 1899 appointed Harry B. Hawes, then 29 years old, as head of the Police Board, and Hawes held that place six years.

Miller is 32, and, but for his oddly graying hair, would look less than 30. He is deep-chested, with big skull, ruddy skin and a direct gaze which is usually qualified by a smile. He can smile when his reply to a question or a request is a decisive "Hell, no." Worry seems not to enter largely into his day's work and not to disturb his night's rest at all.

He is from Joplin, and his father was Sheriff there, in the frontier-like days of the "town that jack built." He studied in the University of Missouri before taking his law course in Washington University. He began practicing law after his graduation in 1910. Liability insurance was the branch of law which he entered and personal inquiries gave him a thorough acquaintance with some of the neighborhoods where policemen have most to do.

In Joplin, before Miller went away to school, he played on a local football team. In the war period, he took a First Lieutenant's commission at Camp Taylor, Ky., and was kept there as an instructor. "The Battle of Louisville was the only engagement I fought in," he relates.

Miller was treasurer of the Hyde Club here last summer, beginning his work for Hyde when the local Republican organization was for Hyde's opponent. His law partner, Clarence T. Case, who is from Northern Missouri, is a lifelong friend of the Governor.

Each Captain to Be Responsible for His District

Odds Have Always Been With the Criminal as Against the Public; Now We Are Going to Change This and Even Up the Odds, Says This Young Official Who Likes to Ascertain the Efficiency of His Men by Working With Them at All Hours of the Day and Night.

VICTOR J. MILLER, in three months and a half as President of the St. Louis Police Board, has done something besides presiding at board meetings. From the activity which he has shown, it may be suspected that he has read the law creating his office, which says that one in his position shall—

> "At all times of the day and night, as well on water as on land, preserve the public peace, prevent crime and arrest offenders."

There is more detail, in the law, as to what he shall do, and one has to read on quite a distance to find that he is not expected to do it all by himself—that there is to be a police force to help him.

"At all times of the day and night" is a line which Miller has taken literally. Raids and crook hunts have kept him away from home and from the movies, several nights a week. Thus far, he has worked on land, and not on water, but if any invading desperadoes should sail up River des Peres, he would probably not hesitate to man a flatboat with the headquarters force and go after them.

The first Saturday night after his appointment, last February, President Miller ordered, and took part in, raids on places suspected of selling liquor.

A few weeks later, he laid down new rules, tightening up the police hold on prisoners in the 20 hours' detention at headquarters, and closing sources of information, within the Police Department, which certain lawyers, bondsmen and even criminals had possessed. The transferring of most of the Central District clerks to other stations was connected with this endeavor.

In the last 12 days, following a series of selective tests of men in the department, and personal inspection of their work in night raids, arrests and searches, Miller has retired six officers of the department past or passing middle age, has demoted the Chief of Detectives, and has filled these positions, and a chance vacancy in the police inspectorship, with young men chosen by himself—in a few cases, by his colleagues on the board.

District Captains Prefer Sole Responsibility for Their Districts

A talk with Miller makes it clear that he has no regrets or misgivings about what he has done so far, and that he is rather impatiently waiting to do more things of the same sort.

Miller told a Post-Dispatch reporter, in his downtown law office, of things he has learned, and conclusions he has reached in his service with, through and over the police.

The most radical departure in method which President Miller and the present Police Board have made from the policy of the former Police Board has been the placing of complete responsibility on police Captains for conditions in their districts, and the elimination of the clean-up squad and other special squads, except the newly established homicide squad and the traffic bureau.

"The Captains approve of this change," Miller said. "They didn't like the idea of having special squads running around their districts and going over their heads on matters that they ought to know about. The special squads used to get the anonymous and other communications, which are an important source of information. The Captains would say, 'If we got those complaints, we could handle the cases ourselves.'

"Probably they were right, and we are going to see what they can do, each in full control of his district.

"The responsibility of every Captain for his district will be absolute, but we shall remember that the Central District and the other inner districts have naturally a larger amount of trouble and disturbance than the other districts.

"Certain murders, such as those committed in family or neighborhood quarrels, do not count against a Captain's record for keeping an orderly district. Only killings that grow out of crime are considered as properly belonging to the crime record of a district; other killings are crimes in the eyes of the courts, but are classed simply as events on the police records. There will always be a certain number of acts of passion and violence, committed by persons who are not otherwise criminals, and no effort of the police can prevent these.

"Every Captain has plain-clothes men in his district. He can undertake any investigation that is needed, without outside help. He can keep the crooks on the run, by energetic use of the power that is given him."

Trying to Even Up Odds for Public Against Criminals

President Miller was asked whether, under the rule of complete responsibility of each Captain for his district, a Captain would be held accountable for knowing of the presence of a criminal, lately arrived in the city, at any place in his district. The example mentioned was the case of the negro, Jordan, who killed Special Policeman Finn, and who had come here after serving a prison term in Texas.

"It wouldn't be reasonable to require a Captain to know at once of the presence of a negro crook in his district," Miller said. "It is hard enough to keep track of the white ones. The patrolman on the beat should know of the presence of any suspicious white person, and the Captain should be informed in that way, but it would be drawing it pretty fine to require them to know all negroes."

By centering responsibility in Captains, and making each Captain wholly responsible for his district, the Miller plan makes each district, in effect, a police department within itself, subject to general orders from headquarters, and to relief, in an emergency, from the headquarters reserve of detectives.

"What we are trying to do, in some of the changes we have made," Miller continued, "is to try and even up the odds for the public, in its contest with crime and criminals. It has seemed as if the odds all favored the crooks.

"That was the object of the rules, so much criticised, governing the holding of prisoners in the headquarters holdover. Now, the law provides that the Police Department shall hold a prisoner not more than 20 hours, and if no warrant or indictment is issued, that the prisoner shall then be released. That 20 hours, in my view, is a period of investigation. In that time there should be no hampering of the inquiry into a crime.

"Under methods of free communication, this 20-hour period has been a time for framing alibis and disposing of stolen property. That was the frequent purpose of secret conferences between prisoners and their visitors.

"The prisoner who asks for a lawyer can have one. If he is innocent, he will not mind having his conversation overheard by a policeman. He can tell the lawyer his friends' names, and consult him as to proper arrangements about bond. The lawyer can make a reasonable charge, but we don't intend that he shall make a charge based on his inside information as to how much the prisoner had when he was searched. So that is one of the matters of information that used to be handed out freely, which we don't intend to have given out from now on. Probably employes of the department will give such information now and then, but if we find it out we will throw them out of their jobs.

"The criminals have enough in their favor anyway. They have the processes of the courts to bring any witnesses whom they desire. They have friends to swear to alibis for them—most of the crimes are committed by men who, according to earnest and insistent alibi witnesses, were playing cards somewhere else at the time that the crime occurred.

"The criminal has a certain element of public sympathy and of dislike for the police, in his favor. He has the disinclination of witnesses to testify against him, sometimes because it is too much trouble, sometimes because it may be dangerous.

"The criminal also has, in these days, the automobile, which he can use to greater advantage than his pursuers can. That is the most dangerous and baffling element in the crime situation these days.

"Not a Gang in Operation in St. Louis Today," He Says

"There isn't a gang in operation in St. Louis today," Miller declares. "Only three who have been leading spirits in the Cuckoo gang, which used to infest lower Chouteau avenue, now remain at large. The arson and freight car robbery gang has been broken up. The last gang to be broken up is the Jefferson and Cass avenues gang, and I think that has been accomplished.

"As for the crime wave, that is a relative term, but it is true that there are times and conditions which make it easy to commit crime.

"If a town becomes known as having Judges and prosecuting authorities who can be reached, and policemen who forget things and pass up the crooks, that town will attract traveling crooks. They have methods of communication which inform them of such conditions.

"On the contrary, when the police in a city go after the crooks, and get the co-operation of the prosecuting authorities and the courts, the crooks will learn to stay away from that city. That is what we have done here. We have the best sort of co-operation with the courts and the prosecuting authorities, and we are not getting many traveling crooks here. We are pretty nearly down to where we have only our own local crooks to deal with, and the thing we have to do with them is to keep them moving, and make them get out of town or go to honest work.

"The hangouts of the local crooks are not hard to find. The same places are hangouts for visiting crooks, when conditions are favorable enough for them to come here. No visiting crook will do a job until he has reported to the keeper of some hangout.

"If he wants a bondsman later, the hangout-keeper will get one for him. Sometimes, when the inside information system was working well, the bondsman would get to the station before the prisoner would.

"The way to handle those places is to raid them whenever any job is committed. After the murder of Erris Pillow we arrested a lot of men, not including the men who are now under indictment for the crime. Through the prolonging of the Coroner's inquest they were held eight days instead of 20 hours.

"A very effective way to get crooks out of town, and to keep crooks from trying to locate here, is to drive out the women who consort with crooks. As long as these women are permitted to make good money in violating city ordinances the kind of men who get most of their money will be around to prey upon them. The way to handle them is to arrest them at every appearance, and hold them for the health authorities.

"To stop gambling games is also effective in driving out crooks. I would like to know today of any gambling game run for profit in St. Louis.

"Then there are some policemen so friendly with certain crooks that they will ignore everything except the actual commission of a crime in their presence. There are some of these policemen who are worrying about promotions now who would better worry about holding their jobs at all. On the other hand, I don't intend that men shall be transferred or reduced for doing their duty, as has happened to policemen in the past.

Few Crooks Who Can't Get Persons to "Front" for Them

"One thing I have learned in this work is that almost anyone, even a professional crook, can get some respectable person to go to the front for him. A crook knows a saloonkeeper, or politician, or somebody of better standing in the social scale than himself, and if he can get that person interested, the next thing is to get the help of someone higher up, and frequently you will see respected business men or ministers of the Gospel making representations in behalf of some man who is a plain crook.

"I have changed one idea that I had when I went into this work. I had the idea that a criminal, if given a chance, will reform. I don't believe so now.

"When a man has committed a robbery, or a burglary, and has not been caught, it seems to set something to going in his head, and if he gets the chance, or if anyone gives the suggestion, he will try the same thing again. The only way to prevent this is to keep him away from anyone who will encourage him.

"A man leaving the penitentiary knows that the police will know about him. He will make a mistake if he thinks they will make trouble for him just because he has been in prison. The best thing he can do is to go to the police, and tell them that he is out, and is going to work and stay straight. Maybe they can help him to a job—it has often been done. They will not bother him while he is working.

"The crooks know that the detectives will not, as a rule, bother a man who is working, and sometimes we find that a man has been working and at the same time committing crime.

"Criminals are made in pool halls, more than anywhere else. The old-time saloon was the harbor for thieves, but the pool hall was the place where they were made. We watch the pool halls, and when we find minors playing there we order them to get out and stay out. The law provides for permits, to be signed by parents, but the fact is that few parents will sign permits of this kind, and we have found that pool halls have a lot of permits signed in different names, and display one of them when an objection is made as to the age of some boy who is playing. We use our judgment in passing on these permits.

"When poor and ignorant persons see prosperous and intelligent persons violating the law, they learn disrespect for the law. The man who openly shows disrespect for the law, as many men do for the prohibition law, by violating it, is not a first-class citizen. A taxi driver, or a messenger boy, who sees men making easy money by violating the law with the connivance of supposed good citizens, is more likely to become a lawbreaker himself. That is not the fault of the prohibition law, which I neither attack nor defend in principle. It is the fault of the violators of the law. Those who disapprove of the prohibition law are no more justified, by that fact, in breaking it, than any violator of any other law is excused by his dislike for the particular statute in question.

"Good Crooks" Give Very Little Information to the Police

"The people we arrested in raiding Belvedere Joe's, who complained so vehemently, were the very ones who would have applauded us for raiding the Falstaff and other downtown places, if we had stopped there."

Miller does not credit crooks with giving much information to the police against each other. A "good crook," he believes, will seldom give any information which he knows to be of prime value to the police. Crooks, he says, suspect each other of "snitching" much oftener than the facts warrant.

"In the case of Michael McNamara," he said, "the other crooks knew that the detectives had kept him with them for two hours, and they seemed to have concluded that he had told all he knew. I only wish he had. What he told was of minor importance, and the same is true as to Allen Morris, who, in my opinion, was not killed for 'snitching' or on suspicion of doing so, but for a well-defined personal grudge.

"The inducement for crooks to give the police information is not so great as is sometimes supposed. The reason for this is that a crook would almost as soon take a 10 years' sentence as a five years' one, and a shorter sentence, as a reward, does not make much of an appeal to him. It is the certainty, and not the severity, of punishment, that deters criminals. As for any idea that any crooks are permitted to operate unmolested, as a reward for help to the police, I am certain that nothing of the kind is done.

"The police get a lot of anonymous communications, and these are read and followed up when there seems to be any likelihood that they will lead to anything. Stills are often tipped off in this manner, by neighbors who don't like the keepers of the still, or who object to the smell. For that matter, the police can usually smell out a still if they get very near to one.

"Reports are made to the police of a good many holdups and robberies that never take place. Sometimes the motive of such false stories is to cover up a theft or a loss due to carelessness. We have proved up some cases of this kind and obtained admissions, and the circumstances point to the same explanation in some cases where the persons have stuck to their story."

Pawnshop proprietors are given credit by Miller for co-operating with the police in most cases, though there have been instances to the contrary.

"Secondhand stores are more likely to get stolen articles than pawnshops are," he said. "The pawnshop squad looks over descriptions of all stolen property, and visits all pawnshops and secondhand stores. The pawnshop proprietors frequently detain men for us, or assist us to get men who appear suspicious. The real 'fences' are some pool halls and suspicious hotels."

Praise for the Men He Recently Has Promoted

Of the men who came to the top in the shake-up of the last 12 days, President Miller said:

"The men we have promoted are the men we believed to be the best for the places. They were not chosen because anyone went to the front for them. In the case of the principal promotions we made, we had received no letter or request. This was true of most of the Sergeants whom we made acting Lieutenants.

"In picking Elias Hoagland for Chief of Detectives, I am confident that we got the best man in the Detective Department. Other cities know him, and there have been several requests for the loan of Hoagland since I have been on the board.

"If I merely sat in my office and attended board meetings, I would have to judge all complaints and questions of personnel by the say-so of someone else. I wouldn't know. The way that I have undertaken to do it, by getting out and working with the men in the department, I learn what the circumstances are.

"If I am going to direct, I want to know what I am directing, even if it doesn't leave me much time at home in the evening, and even if it does interfere with my being at my office sometimes when I would like to be."

So far as the bigger task of catching criminals and discouraging crime will permit, Miller hopes, in the four years which he expects to give to direction of the police, to place the police force on more cordial terms with the public.

He mentioned the fact that public dislike for policemen sometimes goes to the point of sympathy with criminals. This, he says, is a real obstacle to the work of the police.

"There are a lot of people who wouldn't break the law themselves," he said, "who won't tell a policeman anything, or help a policeman even when the policeman's work is most necessary to the public welfare and safety. This is because of a feeling which they have absorbed against the police.

"On the other hand, some policemen are so used to this feeling against them that they take it as a matter of course, and don't think it worth while to be courteous to people."

Miller said he meant to insist that policemen should be more considerate in dealing with boys. "Some boys," he said, "are treated like criminals if they swipe an apple. Those are the boys who live in neighborhoods where they see criminals, and perhaps have relatives who have committed crime, and they need constructive effort to keep them from crime.

Says Boy Scouts Should Extend Work to River Districts

"The Boy Scouts should extend their work to the river districts. That is where they are really needed, more than they are among the boys who are well brought up anyway.

"The Juvenile Court has probably done good, but it has seemed to me that things were made too easy for the boy of good family, who is the very one who should be punished, because he knows better than to break the law, and that the friendless boy hasn't much of a chance."

Miller has read with interest the writings of R. B. Fosdick and others on police systems in this and other countries. He finds much of interest and value in their writings, but he indicates a wish to put them through a series of questions, such as Thomas A. Edison has been handing to college men. He would like to ask them if they can tell a crook when they see one. He says the men in the Detective Department can. He would like to know if there is any other city where the daily "show-up" of criminals to detectives is so thoroughly and effectively practiced as it is here. He thinks there is not.

"I don't believe in abusing anyone," Miller says. "But I don't feel that, just at this time, we should go up to a known thief and say, 'please come down and see the Chief.' The thing to do is to be sure he is the right man, and then be sure that he comes along with no delay."

Miller hopes to be able, within a year or two, to say with Capt. Miles Standish, "Like Caesar, I know the name of each of my soldiers." He says he now knows the names of nearly all the men in the Police Department above the rank of patrolman, and that he hopes to know every last patrolman, probationary and turnkey when he has had more time to get acquainted.

Having made the acquaintance of most of the Sergeants, he is now studying their records. There might be another Lieutenant needed some time, or, on the other hand, there might be a seargency needed for some energetic patrolman.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Unionism Not a Menace.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Personally, I never asked a man to join a union or to go on strike in my life, but I do believe that the unions have a sound place in the industrial world.

"Ardennes" blames the unions for the business depression, high prices, high freight rates, the calamitous housing problem, the extortionate repairs and improvement bills, the lack of new buildings; but he doesn't convince me, for one, that they should be blamed. The unions are human organizations and are subject to human limitations. They do things at times that seem to be dictatorial. Unionism is really the greatest educational movement of modern times. Unionism is causing the light of understanding to penetrate the gloom of the common concept of values. Unionism is not a menace. If we believe the end of government to be the means of acquiring property and of sanctifying property once acquired, then the union position is thoroughly wrong; but if we believe "the end of government to be the good of mankind" and the means to secure life, liberty and happines, then the union position is thoroughly correct.

The unions are showing that a virgin acre, a vacant lot, an empty house, an idle machine and a jobless man are worthless. They are not, perhaps, doing this intentionally, for I don't believe that every union man is "sold" on unionism; for they don't realize how solid their position really is. Eventually the public will see plainly what it is the unions are groping for blindly—the true yardstick of value, the "use" yardstick.

The unions are showing that competition does not create value, even though "competition is the life of trade." They are showing that trade is merely the transference of values already existing; it is uncreative. The unions are trying to learn why it is that the labor "commodity" should be the one and only back-acting, competing commodity in the entire range of matter. Why it is that all commodities with this one notable exception increase in price by reason of the competition of the users, while this one notable exception decreases in price by reason of the competition of the "commodity" itself.

The writer is under no special obligation to any union and feels that he is under every obligation to his country that 100 per cent allegiance implies. If he believed there is anything in unionism that menaced his country's well being he would denounce it to the full extent of his puny ability, because this is the greatest country on earth. But greatness in countries is a matter of relativity. In a really free country every man would have an opportunity to work for himself. In this country today there are millions of able-bodied men, who not only have no opportunity to work for themselves, but they have no opportunity to work for others.

There is a reason, and the unions are trying to learn the reason.

Training Camps.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The reported utterances in reference to training camps for citizen-soldiers, by Gen. John J. Pershing, ought to have the earnest and thoughtful consideration of the young men of our country.

Very few young men receive the physical training necessary to equip them for life's battles, and army training affords such discipline as a growing boy requires. A young man is taught valuable lessons he can gain from no other source.

Permit me to suggest that officers should be selected for these training camps who are big, intelligent, red-blooded men of proven ability to bring out the best qualities in those under their command.

In the late war a few petty tyrants placed that great body of intelligent men who served as officers in a false light, and these proposed training camps should demonstrate that a man can exercise discipline as an officer and yet maintain the whole-hearted respect of every man with whom he comes in contact. We had men in the late war who could do that (yes, thousands of them), and along with them, as in every walk of life, we had exceedingly "small potatoes."

My point is this: America must be a nation that fears no nation and of whom no nation is suspicious.

F. M. KELSO.

"Consumer's" Plea.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is quite interesting to read "Consumer's" plea for the coal dealers and miners. There is no law to prevent a dealer signing as "Consumer." A present daily fact is that one high-grade Illinois coal is stiffly held by nearly all dealers at a price $1 higher per ton than one well-known yard has been offering the same for many days past. If the company which has thus jumped over the fence is satisfied with its profit, why cannot the rest be content with the same? Another fact: I paid $1 less for this same brand of coal last summer than the combine now insists upon—bought from a regular combine member at combine price. So much for the statement that a price cannot be higher than in 1920!

STILL INDIGNANT.

OIL AND STATESMANSHIP.

The principal ingredient in statesmanship just now is oil.

It was oil that greased the way for the Colombia indemnity treaty. When our statesmen, who had previously opposed the indemnity as a confession of crime and a proof of moral weakness, found out that there were oil deposits in Colombia, the treaty took on a brighter tint, and under the lure of the oil field it went through. Of course, we did not pay the money for oil. Justice was our great moral object. Nothing makes the wheels of justice go like oil.

Oil was the theme of Secretary Hughes' note to The Netherlands, in which we threatened, if we were not let in on Dutch oil, to cut all foreigners out of American oil. This pot of oil is still boiling and it is yet to be demonstrated whether it will lead to a conflagration.

In his conference with the international bankers President Harding called attention to the fact that money loaned to Great Britain had been used to buy the oil deposits of Mesopotamia, where Americans had interests. He wanted finance so handled that we would have our full share of the grease of the world.

Oil again is the big obstacle to recognizing the Obregon Government in Mexico and renewing friendly relations with our neighbor.

Of course, the conditions laid down in the instructions issued to Mr. George Sumerlin, our special envoy in Mexico, do not mention oil. It is the protection of Americans, their lives and property, in Mexico which is our objective. We only want justice for Americans and assurance of protection and diplomatic appeal for them in questions affecting property rights, but the particular kind of property rights we want protected is rights in oil wells. The kind of justice we seek is a fair share of Mexican oil. We want rights to hold oil fields and work oil wells unobstructed by the Mexican Constitution and the Mexican courts.

In order to assure Americans their rights and opportunities in the Mexican oil fields, we demand that the Obregon Government pledge itself to change the Constitution of Mexico. We require the elimination of several provisions of the Constitution and the modification of others. We demand that Mexico reverse her policy of nationalizing her natural resources and protecting them from exploitation by foreigners in order that alleged rights of Americans in Mexican land and natural resources be protected.

What is the Constitution of another country compared with the oil interests of Americans? Down with all Constitutions that stand in the way of our oil men.

President Obregon protests that the Constitution does not affect the titles to oil lands now held by Americans and that he is willing to assure protection of all American rights, but he cannot change the Mexican Constitution or the nationalization policy to obtain recognition. The Mexican people would not stand for such a pledge and recognition obtained by it would be a mockery, because his government would be wiped out.

Well, what difference would that make to us? If he cannot change it, we'll change the Constitution and set up our own Constitution and Government for Mexico. This is the clear logic of our position in Mexico.

Never mind what happens to Mexico or what it costs to get Mexican oil for American oil men—the interest of the oil men is the big thing.

Justice and peace and international law are fine things, theoretically, but as a practical proposition, oil is supreme.

OUT OF THE RUBBISH.

"The Woodrovian League," says the New York Tribune, "centered in a world organization of which all nations were to be members. The Harding League"—referring to the Government's decision to be represented on the Supreme Council—"if it may be called such, partakes more of the nature of an alliance."

Now, it so happens that in the grand assault on the hell-breathing "super-government" last summer and autumn a favorite argument of the army of attack, in which the Tribune was one of the color bearers, was that the "Woodrovian" League was a military alliance, whereas the nebulous Harding "association" was the real, all-inclusive league to be desired.

But why quibble over the details of a chase that has long since been ended? Wilson was the quarry. The League of Nations was his stronghold. One had to be "got" in order to "get" the other. It was "got." But the thing which the new administration is as far as ever from getting is a way to satisfy the public demand for Wilson's aspirations without using Wilson's tools.

THE JOKER IN FARM CONTROL.

Farm produce prices no longer are to be subject to the caprice of the stock markets and grain exchanges. Those institutions, already doomed to legal death, would have been starved, were they to live, by organized market control exercised by the agricultural interests.

The Illinois Senate has just passed a bill which will turn the Chicago Board of Trade over to the State Director of Agriculture by placing in his hands the power of license. Each individual operating on the board also would be subject to the State Department of Agriculture. The bill further extends to the organized association of grain dealers and farmers full rights and privileges now held by members of the board.

Even without this legislative interference, however, the farmers plan, by a recently organized arrangement, to control their own market. The project was outlined a few days ago at a meeting of the Illinois Bankers' Association at Mount Olive, Ill. The speaker was George A. Fox, secretary of the Illinois Agricultural Association, who thus explained the plan of the Committee of Seventeen:

> Farmers in each congressional district unite once a year and elect a delegate to the national body. This assembly then meets and elects a commission which dictates the sales policy for all farm products. Each individual is under contract to the commission to market his grain through the national association.
> At harvest time the grain is concentrated at centrally located granaries, where the commission takes charge of it and sells it only as there is a demand for it.
> Thus promiscuous dumping of grain and other products which will be handled in the same way is prevented. Then a tariff wall is raised against Argentine wheat. The commission is in this way enabled to sell all the world and receive full benefit of the law of supply and demand. Stock gambling will be wiped out under this plan. Grain monopolies and price-fixing will be done away with.

The interesting point relative to this frank plan of market control, a control for which we are endeavoring to punish other lines of business, is the result to be attained in improving the condition of the farmer. Mr. Fox in his address referred to "two years of wildcatting in farm lands" as one of the causes that "have placed three farmers in 10 wholly at the mercy of their bankers." But what was it that instigated the wildcatting? Obviously war prices. Prices raised by any other cause would be of the same effect on land values and speculative dealing.

If farmers profiting by their own organized monopoly expect any better return on their business on the basis of marketable land values under a new regime of high prices they are doomed to disappointment. Present owners of land will reap a benefit. New purchasers will be squeezed. Eventually the tiller of the soil will be back on his old margin of gains.

ARKANSAS ROAD FACTS.

The State of Arkansas, in proportion to its wealth, has undertaken an ambitious road construction program—the construction of 9000 miles of permanent, hard-surfaced roads at a total cost of $100,000,000. That mistakes were made in this road legislation, and that there has been waste and extravagance in the expenditure of the large funds, is undeniable. But the sensational story of ruin and confiscation in Arkansas, printed simultaneously last March by a New York newspaper and the St. Louis Globe-Democrat, was feverishly overdrawn.

The Post-Dispatch is pleased to observe that the Globe-Democrat has repented of its blunder and is now attempting to correct the misstatements to which it first gave currency by ascertaining and publishing the facts about the Arkansas road project.

Those facts, however, have already been printed. Immediately on the appearance of the unfortunate story in the Globe-Democrat of March 26 the Post-Dispatch sent a member of its staff to Arkansas to get the truth of the situation there by first-hand investigation. A week later, in the Post-Dispatch of April 3, the results of that inquiry were published. It was shown that the reported confiscation of property by excessive taxation was not true; that the financial distress of Arkansas farmers was not due to road taxes, but to the fact that, like farmers in many other States, they were unable to sell their crops except at a loss. Certain examples of especially appealing misfortune, such as the impoverishment of widows and orphans, were found to be fictitious. The inquiry disclosed that the average road tax was 36 cents an acre, at present construction costs, the tax to be levied for a period of 20 years and totaling $7.20 an acre. In some instances this tax was equivalent to the full value of the unimproved land—that is, unimproved by good roads—which gave color to the assertions of confiscatory taxes by ignoring the period over which the payments are spread and the benefits accruing to the property by the investment in good roads.

That the program was over-ambitious is now thoroughly understood and pretty generally admitted by the citizens of Arkansas. It is also recognized that serious mistakes were made in the enabling acts of the 1919 Legislature, and the special session of last year, by which special improvement districts were authorized and designated. By this plan the cost of building roads is assessed, in the form of taxes, against the land on both sides of the highways, according to the resulting benefits. It should be understood, however, that some such plan as this was necessary inasmuch as the Constitution of Arkansas forbids any city or county from issuing bonds for improvements. The special district plan had been successfully used in the construction of levees and drainage districts and, it was argued, was just as available for building good roads. The acts, however, creating those districts were hastily drawn, were passed as emergency measures, thereby exempting them from the popular judgment of referendum, and though certain safeguards and rights of appeal were given the people the legislation was faulty in many respects and has been productive of some unhappy consequences.

Probably the greatest weakness in the Arkansas road enterprise was the failure to provide for uniform, centralized State control by which a State system of highways could eventually be built. That failure accounts for the criticism that the money is being spent in a sort of helter-skelter, happy-go-lucky fashion, without method or objective, and that when the program is finished, though Arkansas will have a big mileage of good roads, it will still be lacking a highway system. That such a defect should be remedied while yet there is time, is obvious, and a considerable public opinion is said to have been marshaled in that behalf.

Meanwhile Arkansas is going on with her road program. Further, she has already built many miles of splendid roads, and has many more miles in process of construction. And those roads are adding immensely to the value of the property which is being taxed to build them.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT SITUATION IN CANADA.

JUST A MINUTE . . .

Written for the POST-DISPATCH

HOW SLEEP THE BRAVE!

How sleep the brave who sink to rest
By all their country's wishes blest!
When Spring with dewy fingers cold
Returns to deck their hallowed mold,
She there shall dress a sweeter sod
Than Fancy's feet have ever trod.

By fairy hands their knell is rung,
By unseen forms their dirge is sung;
There Honor comes, a pilgrim gray,
To bless the turf that wraps their clay,
And Freedom shall awhile repair
To dwell, a weeping hermit, there.

Once a year at this season the School of Journalism at the Missouri State University has the newspaper world in and thoroughly discusses the business. Don't imagine the floor necessarily tips up when newspaper men from the big cities step into the arena. Usually they sit huddled offside in a more or less frightened group while country newspaper men tell them what newspapers ought to be like. The other day the publisher of a country newspaper somewhere in Iowa took the platform. He fixed us with about as hard a look as anybody ever saw while he recited our injustice to ourselves and our native towns. He had stuck to his native town and had done something for it. The rest of us had yielded to the allurements of newspaper life in the big cities, leaving our native towns to make out without us. His look grew harder than ever as he assured us that we had done nothing for our native towns and not much for ourselves. He, on the contrary, had done something for his town as well as himself. He had it on us. There was no doubt about it. We could have sunk through a hole in the floor had there been a hole. Our native towns needed us, and we needed them! We had never thought of it before. It sounded credible enough. It was true of us, goodness knows; and it was probably true of our native towns. Who can say? Anyway, that was an awful half hour.

HERE IS ONE FOR MR. EDISON.

(Monroe County, Mo., Appeal.)

While Mr. Edison is exposing the ignorance of college graduates, we venture the assertion that the old wizard lacks something in knowledge himself. Could he tell a waiting public how to make clabber superlatively good? It is a safe bet that he could not. He probably uses white sugar on his, like most everybody else whose parents paid improper attention to the fundamentals in their early education. But the only way to make clabber measure up to the supreme height of deliciousness is to besprinkle it with brown sugar, as any old negro mammy or white descendant from an original first family of Virginia will testify. This very likely is the first time most readers of this paper ever saw an item in print about clabber. It probably is due to the fact that most writers are entirely ignorant of its merits and delights and to the further fact that most people look upon clabber as a sort of poor relation, about which it is not good form to speak. But, ladled from earthen crock or jar into a generous-sized dish and treated to a dash of brown sugar, it has a flavor and tang that is not only indescribably delicious, but is thought to have been the original ambrosial nectar about which Diana of the Ephesians and Isis of the Egyptians divided the gods of two ancient civilizations into warring camps. Too bad that some of those college students who got such a raw deal from Mr. Edison were not sufficiently posted on the clabber and brown sugar combination to use it as sort of flare-back to the ignorance exposure game he started.

SIN-ICISM.

I accept, Mr. Cann; I accept.

There is nothing I would rather be than the Secretary of the Treasury in 1924 under the Just a Minute administration.

It is needless to say that a man whose initials are P. A. Y. will make an efficient treasurer of any man's country.

To further substantiate my claims to efficiency, I must refer the American public to the few unfortunates who have at various times in their careers known me as their creditor. Yes, they will do me credit.

Certainly, I favor a change in the position of Postmaster-General. Very recently I addressed a letter to no less than the honorable President Harding, in which I requested a reply by return mail. It is four days now since I wrote, and no reply has been forthcoming. No doubt Mr. Hays is having trouble in reorganizing the mailing system, but it is high time that he began delivering important letters.

You have made a wise selection, I think, in naming Fannie Hurst as the future Secretary of War. But there will be those who differ with you. What does a woman who only eats twice a week with her husband know about war?

And as for you. If you name yourself Chief Enforcement Eighteenth Amendment Officer, you certainly will be "rushing the Cann."

Patience Worth as Secretary of Foreign Affairs! A most wise selection. The Ouija Board is much more reliable than most of our diplomats when it comes to entangling alliances.

There is one member of the Cabinet whom you have neglected—the Secretary of Interior. Here I would suggest some capable poker player who has had numerous experiences in drawing to inside straights. Such a fellow knows more about inside matters than all the Congressmen asleep. Yours for Us,

PAUL ARTHUR YAWITZ.

The vote of 74 to 0 for the Borah amendment to the naval bill must have indicated that the Senate had no opinion. Certainly had it had an opinion, there would have been some division. The fact probably is that not even the people in the Senate who were most active in opposition to Article 10 believe we can have either disarmament or peace by agreement. That has been tried for thousands of years, and we have only gone to more terrible wars than we had before. Mr. Wilson proposed something else. He lost; but if his proposal had been adopted in the Senate by unanimous vote it would not have meant anything, either.

The MIRROR of PUBLIC OPINION

From Il Bollettino of New York City.

In deciding the problem of immigration, Congress should have considered the agricultural question more seriously. Even though it may be true that in the United States just at present there is an overabundance of labor, no one can deny that on the farms and in the agricultural sections it is still impossible to obtain help, and that in the United States there are miles and miles of uncultivated land which must remain so because the men cannot be found who will work them. If the legislators believe that the unemployed will go to work on the farms, they are greatly mistaken, for all those men who left the farms to come to work in the factories have now become accustomed to another life and will never go back to rise with the sun and go to bed with the sun, at the salary of $50 per month. The fields will remain unplowed. The agricultural problem might have been solved very satisfactorily if the immigrants had been disciplined and encouraged to settle in the agricultural sections. Congress failed to do this, and for another 12 months agriculture will remain paralyzed, to the great disadvantage of all the American people, who for so long have been looking forward to some reduction in the cost of living.

WOMEN IN CHURCH WORK.

From the Flint (Mich.) Journal.

A CLERGYMAN in St. Paul, Minn., created considerable excitement in religious circles the other day with a statement that in his church men were becoming more active and women less so as church workers. If it be true that women are losing a measure of their zeal for church work, the first theory advanced, perhaps, will be that their new political status has increased their active personal interest and spread the exercise of their energies over a larger area. In other words, their attention has been divided more evenly between the church and religious effort on the one hand and social, political and economic affairs on the other. In the end, that which seems immediately ominous of a religious slump probably will prove to be only the dawn of a new and a greater day for the church, with men standing 50-50 with the women in promoting the spiritual life of the nation. Religious optimists will solace themselves with the thought that the women in this country are going through a novel psychological experience which tends to deflect their minds more or less from former objectives and to make inroads upon the affections they have been wont to lavish on the church, and that when the flush of the novelty wears off, women will be found in support of all phases of church work.

AMERICAN TROOPS IN GERMANY.

From the Living Age.

FRANKFURTER ZEITUNG prints an editorial note to the effect that its office is receiving complaints from Coblenz regarding the interference of the American authorities in business affairs. On account of the high pay of American troops and the fact that they receive this pay in dollars, prices are much higher in the American zone than elsewhere in the Rhine Valley. Naturally the residents of that region wish to see prices reduced. Frankfurter Zeitung questions whether the German authorities could have accomplished more than they have done in this direction. In any case, the American authorities have imposed heavy fines upon German firms for profiteering, and several merchants have been forced to close their places of business for this reason. American officers and especially the women of their entourage, are among those who bring these complaints before the authorities. This daily observes: "The American officials are certainly not actuated by improper motives (in their price control), but they should bear in mind that they do not possess the expert knowledge of local conditions necessary for wise intervention in the business affairs of a foreign country. They ought to leave these matters so far as practicable to German officials."

If you want True Music you must choose
The NEW EDISON
"The Phonograph with a Soul"

CONSIDER your object in buying a phonograph. It is to bring true music to your home—the living performances of great singers and instrumentalists, of great bands and orchestras.

Over five thousand times, before more than five million people, the New Edison has stood side by side with the living artist in a direct comparison test, and no one has been able to distinguish between the living performance and the RE-CREATED performance.

The New Edison is the only phonograph manufactured that sustains this test. It is the only phonograph that has actually proved beyond question that it gives you true music.

IF you buy phonograph records, or player-piano rolls, if you play or sing, you should have a copy of "What Edison Likes in Music." It tells Mr. Edison's 25 favorite tunes,—gives his views on music,—and names 6 selections which he thinks everybody ought to own. Get your copy. It's free for the asking. Use the coupon.

GANZ MAKES DEBUT AT HUGE CONCERT NOV. 11

First Pair of Regular Concerts of Symphony Orchestra Will Be Nov. 11 and 12.

The novitiate of Rudolph Ganz as director of the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra will open Nov. 6 with a mammoth popular concert at the Coliseum. The first pair of regular concerts will be given Nov. 11 and 12 at the Odeon. Rehearsals will begin on Oct. 31.

New players of first oboe and English horn have been engaged from the personnel of the defunct National Symphony Orchestra of New York, according to a report from Assistant Director Fischer, who is in the East. Otherwise, it is stated, there will be few changes in the orchestra's membership.

Director Ganz will pay a brief visit here on June 15 and then go to Chicago to conduct his summer master class of piano students. He will sail for Europe on Aug. 3 for a six weeks' stay abroad, returning here with his family the last week in October.

The 10 concerts which the orchestra will give in Kansas City will occur on Thursday afternoons and Friday evenings. The matinee concerts will be arranged especially for children and will have the co-operation of the Kansas City Board of Education. The evening concerts will be like the regular concerts here, and distinguished artists will be engaged as soloists.

In the campaign to raise a $300,000 guarantee fund for three years, $52,000 has thus far been pledged, it is announced. The statement is also made that the season subscription sales are now 50 per cent larger than at this time in any previous year, and that a large percentage of the subscribers are new.

TEACHERS VOLUNTEER FOR TEST

Teachers in the Wellston High School volunteered Friday to take the survey and physical examination which Wellston school children are undergoing at the hands of a committee of health organizations in St. Louis County's first school health demonstrations, and which includes tests in weight, vision, hearing, breathing and chest expansion.

Miss Emma L. Brown, chief nurse of the United States Public Health Service, and Miss Jannette Flannagan, head nurse at the Red Cross Health Center in Wellston, are in charge of the demonstration. Miss Brown started last week a series of tooth brush drills in the schools of Wellston. Each child is taught a series of motions which are made in the thorough brushing of the teeth and this is done "by the numbers" as the manual of arms is performed in the army.

Pain is the penalty we pay for disregarding the laws of health.
You should have your eyes examined at least once a year so that incipient eye trouble may be detected and quickly corrected by properly prescribed glasses before pain in the form of nervous headaches gives notice of impaired vision.
For 15 years I have prescribed lenses and fitted glasses for thousands of clients who take pleasure in recommending my services to their friends and acquaintances.

Sidway
TRADE MARK
Reed, Fiber and Collapsible Baby Carriages

WHEN baby reaches the toddling age, how many, many times she wants to get up and down, in and out of her carriage. The full collapsible Sidway Sulky is just the thing for her then. She rests comfortably on its well padded bed, she can climb in and out herself, or other children can help her. If she wants to sit up, just fold up the front part of the bed and adjust the back and hood to suit. Rain won't hurt this vehicle. Its Fabrikoid upholstery, side curtains and hood are waterproof and it folds up in one motion into a space 8½ by 17 by 30 inches. Hang it on a hook out of the way. Take it anywhere with you—on the train or in your car. You'll appreciate its light weight, too; going up and down stairs will be nothing to dread. And it's built of steel to last. Write for dealer's name and valuable book.

SIDWAY MERCANTILE CO.
1121 Fourteenth St., Elkhart, Indiana
St. Louis Office (Wholesale Only)
1209 Washington Ave.

Larger than the Sidway Sulky, yet folding flat, is the Sidway Collapsible carriage. It too can be taken along when travelling; yet when in use it is roomier than other types of carriages. It's an all-weather carriage, the upholstery and hood being of waterproof Fabrikoid. Equipped with storm front when ordered. Has long resilient springs which can be adjusted as baby grows heavier. Elegantly finished.

The gondola shape for reed buggies is popular everywhere. Here is a beautiful vehicle—the Sidway Gondola—symmetrical, roomy, and having the very finest corduroy upholstery and the most careful reed weaving. The long springs are wonderfully resilient. The long pusher arms make turning and lifting front end easy.

Sidway reed, wood, fibre and collapsible carriages are made in endless variety by the world's largest manufacturers of baby carriages.

The June Sale of Blouses

THE most tempting styles are offered at great savings in this annual sale. Every garment is marked at a special price. Each charming model is a "good buy" because of its very unusual value.

At $1.98

Colored checks hold a high place in the favor of the mode just now, and a checked Blouse with white organdie collar and cuffs is particularly smart. It has real tailored lines, though lace edged collar and cuffs of organdie give it an airy finish.

At $2.98

A group of semi-tailored French voile Blouses combines the thin airiness with a trig, tailored style. Half-inch tucks, the only trimming besides the cleverly perfect finish, are very effective on voile. The cut and fit of the Tuxedo style model will please you.

At $5.00

A great choice of dainty Blouses is found in this low-priced group. The collarless type, which is a favorite of smartly dressed women this season, appears in a number of models. Frills with insertion and a Val. edge, or plainly bound, are airy enough to please the most frivolous mood and are always becoming when worn with sweater or coat. Tie-backs of decided charm have individual air.

At $7.50

Short sleeved Georgette Blouses. Could anything be cooler and more attractive just now? The lace frills, of course, are a most important reason why these Blouses are eminently desirable.

Importance of Being Comfortable

Physical discomfort is contrary to Nature's plan; and if the cause is not removed, the ultimate effect may be anything from a local pain up to a breakdown in physical vigor.

Shoes are a particular source of discomfort, because the average human foot is taxed more than any other part of the body. We all walk —some more than others—but we all do walk and are glad of it.

Some walk in intermittent pain. Some chuggle along like a motor with two cylinders not working—because the efficient human foot is hindered and restrained by inhuman shoes.

Some walk along briskly, with enjoyment and "pep." These are the ones who wear good shoes like Cantilever Shoes, with room for the toes, with lines shaped to the natural foot, with flexible shank which fits up snugly and bends with the foot arch. Thus, the arch muscles, being unrestrained, help along and gain strength through exercise (a cheap way of keeping the foot well).

Not only is your foot comfortable, but in Cantilever Shoes you are following the dictates of Fashion in wearing smart looking oxfords with walking heel.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED IN HENDERSON CASE

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28.—The Supreme Court Thursday reversed and remanded to the Circuit Court for a new trial the case of Devereaux Henderson, a member of the law firm of Henderson & Henderson, in the Central National Bank Building, who was convicted and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary on a charge of receiving stolen property.

The allegation against Henderson was that he had received an automobile which belonged to Adolph Kroner of Kansas City and which had been stolen from in front of Union Station in Kansas City.

The case was reversed and remanded by the court on the ground that an erroneous instruction had been given by the trial court to the effect that to be guilty of receiving stolen property a person need not have absolute personal and certain knowledge that it was stolen, but such knowledge as would "put a reasonably prudent man on his guard," and that "mere possession of stolen property raised no presumption of knowledge that it was stolen."

Henderson insisted during the trial that in obtaining possession of the car he was acting for a client and that he had no knowledge the car had been stolen.

A. F. LA PIERRE RELEASED FROM BOND. UNDER PERJURY WARRANT

Federal Charge Grew Out of Divergent Statements as to Place of Birth.

Arthur F. La Pierre, president of the Lyre-ola Manufacturing Co., was discharged on his $2500 bond in the Federal Court today under a warrant issued in April charging him with perjury in stating, in his application for passports, that he was born in this country, whereas in applying for citizenship he had declared himself a citizen of Italy.

Investigation showed that La Pierre, in applying for passports, had merely stated that "to the best of his knowledge and belief" he was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., and was taken back to Italy by his parents at an early age, but he had been unable to find a record of his birth in Brooklyn and on the advice of an attorney had applied for naturalization.

District Attorney Carroll, moreover, in making inquiry about the law, was advised by the State Department that inasmuch as La Pierre was under no obligation to have passports there would be no offense against the Government in any statement that he might make.

La Pierre has gone back to Italy. When the grand jury returned a partial report, recently, it was incorrectly reported that an indictment had been returned against La Pierre.

PANTOMIME TO BE PRESENTED BY WASHINGTON U. STUDENTS

"The Grim Jester," Adapted From "Masque of the Red Death," Will Be Given This Week.

A pantomime, "The Grim Jester," adapted from Edgar Allan Poe's "The Masque of the Red Death," will be presented by students of the School of Fine Arts of Washington University tomorrow, Tuesday and Wednesday nights, at the school gardens, Lindell boulevard and Skinker road.

For a number of years the Art Students' Association has given two pageants, one in midwinter and the other at the term's end. The proceeds are used to maintain scholarships for students of unusual talent.

Everything that goes to make up the play is the work of students—building the stage, installing the lights, dyeing and stenciling the fabrics, designing and making the costumes, and modeling and coloring the stage accessories. The play is written or adapted and acted by students.

ART MUSEUM OBTAINS ITALIAN BAS-RELIEF

The sculpture collection of the City Art Museum was augmented recently by a fifteenth century Italian bas-relief in bronze. The relief is 2 feet 7 inches by 1 foot 7 inches and bears a profile portrait of a warrior wearing a crested helmet and a cuirass. It is modeled in a style typical of the early Italian Renaissance, exhibiting in its simple planes and graceful decorations, the influence of classic Roman art. An inscription, Capil. Col. C. F. Berg., identifies the subject as a portrait of Capilliata Colleoni, a fourteenth century Italian nobleman, lord of the stronghold of Brivio near Bergamo and a captain-general of the Roman church under Urban V.

Capilliata Colleoni is of especial interest as an ancestor of the renowned Venetian military leader, Bartolomeo Colleoni, whose famous equestrian statue at Venice is thought by many critics to be the most impressive statue of the type in existence. The relief portrait of the older Colleoni which the museum has acquired is said to have been originally designed as a decoration for the base of this famous statue of Bartolomeo Colleoni.

The Museum's bas-relief is ascribed to the well-known Venetian sculptor and bronze founder, Alessandro Leopardi, who completed in 1496 the casting of the above-mentioned equestrian statue of Bartolomeo Colleoni which had been modeled by the Florentine Verrocchio, who died before the work was finished. While the horse and figure of this magnificent group are now thought to have been designed entirely by Verrocchio, the graceful pedestal upon which they stand was undoubtedly the work of Leopardi alone. The theory has therefore been advanced that the bronze relief acquired by the Museum was intended by Leopardi to serve as a part of the decoration upon this pedestal, since it presents the apparently somewhat conventionalized likeness of one of the distinguished ancestors of Bartolomeo Colleoni.

Leopardi did not hesitate to sign, in large letters, the equestrian statue of Bartolomeo Colleoni, as though it were his own work, omitting all mention of the name of Verrocchio, the principal artist. The Museum possesses a full-sized plaster cast of this group, which may be seen in Sculpture Court.

A large collection of painting and sculpture by contemporary artists of Switzerland will be placed on exhibition at the Museum today. The collection arrived in St. Louis late last week. The portraits by Philip A. de Laszlo are still on view.

America's Most Comfortable Car

ON roads where others falter—slowly move along in second gear, perhaps—nine times in ten your Holmes rides through on high, with speed and perfect comfort to all passengers.

And so, to the experienced motorist who always has felt that some day such a full-sized air-cooled car would be, Holmes performance is a revelation. The wide and roomy body, the magnificent appointments, the longer wheel-base, the more powerful motor, the perfect cooling, the decisive mastery of road conditions—these are the things that reveal Holmes' true greatness.

And the secret of Holmes supremacy is founded primarily on a single part—the Aeroduct. For it is the Aeroduct—used exclusively on the Holmes Series 4—that for the first time permits the successful application of air-cooling economy and efficiency to a full-sized car.

Real Estate "For Sale" Signs Taboo.

GALESBURG, Ill., May 28. — The sign "For Sale" is taboo in Galesburg. The Galesburg Real Estate Board has ruled that its display on houses has a tendensy to cheapen the property, overcoming all the good it does as an advertisement.

ELKS' MYSTIC HOUR TO BE OBSERVED MONDAY

Services Will Be Held in Bellefontaine, Attended by Members and Lodge Guests.

The annual mystic hour of St. Louis Lodge No. 19, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, will be observed at Elks' Rest, in Bellefontaine Cemetery, tomorrow night. The members and guests of the lodge will assemble at 10 o'clock at the upper Florissant avenue gate of the cemetery and will be escorted to the burial plot by the Elks' Band and the Elks' troop of Boy Scouts.

The cemetery gate will be open from 10 to 10:15 p. m. only, it is announced, to admit those who wish to attend the exercises.

Observance of the mystic hour originated with the St. Louis lodge, at the suggestion of Jules Bertero, secretary, and was begun in 1917. Because of the attention which this observance has attracted in other parts of the country, it is expected that a number of leading Elks, from distant lodges, will attend tomorrow night's observance.

Among these expected guests are William M. Abbott of San Francisco, grand exalted ruler; former Gov. Tener of Pennsylvania, Fred Harper of Lynchburg, Va., Edward Rightor of New Orleans, James R. Nicholson of Boston, Robert W. Brown of Louisville, Joseph T. Fanning of Indianapolis, Bruce Campbell of East St. Louis, John P. Sullivan of New Orleans, William W. Mountain of Flint, Mich.; Judge John C. Karel of Milwaukee, the Rev. Dr. John Dysart, grand chaplain, and Fred C. Robinson of Dubuque, Ia., grand secretary.

The program at Elks' Rest will include reading of Bryant's "Thanatopsis," the singing of lodge odes, invocation by the grand chaplain, songs by the Elks' quartet, a memorial address by Grand Exalted Ruler Abbot and the "11 o'clock toast," by Ernest F. Oakley Jr.

WEBER IMP. & AUTO CO. TAKE LEXINGTON LINE

On June 1, the Weber Implement & Automobile Co. will take over the distribution of the Lexington Minute Man Six throughout the territory tributary to St. Louis. The car in the past has been represented by the Superior Motor Car Co., which is retiring from the automobile business.

The addition of the Lexington to the other Weber lines, the Maxwell, Hupmobile and Chalmers, will give that company a complete range of price from $845 to $4250. The standard open touring models of the Lexington range from $2285 to $2985.

The Lexington gained a great deal of prominence last year when two of the cars, equipped with the new Anstead engine, won first and second places in the Pike's Peak Hill climb classic. The manufacturers have featured the new power plant which is of the six-cylinder overhead valve type with a number of special devices developed by the Lexington engineers. A shipment of the complete line of body styles is en route.

BRISCOE TO ADD SPECIAL EQUIPMENT

Announcement was made last week by the Briscoe Motor Co. that there would be no price change at the present time, but that in place of a price adjustment a number of accessories and special equipment would be placed upon all models as standard equipment.

All cars will be furnished with bumpers, front and rear; wind deflectors will be placed on the windshield and mats on the running board. All models will also be equipped with motometers and the open cars will have gypsy curtains at no additional cost. According to advice from the factory, this additional equipment is equivalent to a marked reduction in the price.

What New York Thinks of The Dorris

THE LEE ASSOCIATES
NEW YORK

Twenty Seventh
Nineteen Twenty One

Carlton Motors Corporation,
Park Avenue at 53rd Street,
New York.

Dear Sirs:

We purchased a Dorris Coupe September 9, 1920, and have found it a most satisfactory car for all purposes. We have in constant use, by various members of the family, three [redacted] [redacted], [redacted], one [redacted] [redacted], one [redacted] in addition to the one [redacted] and one Dorris car mentioned above.

These cars cost from $9,000 to $15,000 with the exception of the [redacted] and Dorris, and all the cars mentioned had limousine or coupe bodies except the [redacted].

The Dorris car has had over 10,000 miles of use under the summer, fall, winter and spring conditions prevailing in the Eastern states and we have found it fully as satisfactory in speed, power and flexibility as any of the cars mentioned and more economical in upkeep although its cost was only $6,400.

Since 1904 our family have used nearly all important makes of foreign cars and several of the more important cars made in the United States and we feel that the Dorris car is in all respects, except in that it is not so well known, fully as satisfactory as any of the cars we have used.

Yours truly,
Lowell W Lee

The seven other cars owned by this family are familiar to all motorists. One is a very high-priced Italian car. Names on request.

Appeal for Readjustment of Tax Burden—Frampton Represents St. Louis.

On last Monday a committee of 10 large automobile distributers from different sections of the United States appeared before the Finance Committee of the Senate for a conference over the tax situation as applied to automobiles and trucks and the motor car industry. R. C. Frampton, of the Hudson-Frampton Motor Car Co., and president of the St. Louis Automobile Dealers' and Manufacturers' Association, represented St. Louis on the committee.

"We endeavored to impress upon Senator Boies Penrose, who is chairman of the Finance Committee, and the other committeemen, that the automobile industry was entirely willing to shoulder its just share of any taxes which it might be necessary to impose," said Frampton yesterday, in discussing the conference. "We emphasized, however, that the war was over, and that we felt that any new tax policy should be equally distributed over all industries, and that no one line of business should bear more than its share.

Represented Industry.

"We went before the committee as representing 35,000 automobile dealers, 33,000 garage men and 45,000 repair men, a total of 113,000 business institutions. We pointed out the fact that each of the 9,000,000 automobiles and trucks now in use serve approximately four people, and any burden placed upon the automobile indirectly affected over one-third of the population of the country.

"As an example of the absolute utility of the motor car, we cited statistics which showed that the automobile, during 1920, carried four times as many passengers as the railroads and street cars, and that trucks hauled half the tonnage hauled by all of the railroad lines combined. Of the 9,000,000 head of livestock shipped in 1920 over half were transported by truck.

Recommended Sales Tax.

"Our committee discouraged the idea of a Federal license system, and asked for the repeal of the excess profits tax, and a modification of the higher brackets of the income tax. In place of these we recommended the establishment of a general sales tax.

"It is, of course, impossible to say at this time what was accomplished by the meeting, but we received an extremely courteous hearing from the Senators, and feel that we were successful in impressing upon them the important part which the automobile and the motor car industry is playing today in the business world."

EXPERTS TO LECTURE ON MOTOR CAR UNITS

Three lectures, covering three important units in motor car building, clutches, axles and motors, will be delivered to the employes of local automobile dealers and manufacturers, Tuesday night, at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, 511 Locust street. The lectures are given under the auspices of the St. Louis Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association and the National Automobile Dealers' Association. Clutches and their repair and adjustment will be discussed for 30 minutes by C. H. Athlene, expert from the Borg & Beck factory; axles will be explained by H. T. Retert of the Timken Axle Co., and motors will be the subject of Paul Lund, expert from the Continental motor factory.

All mechanics, service men and salesmen are invited. No tickets or identification will be required. The lectures wil begin promptly at 8 p. m. Tuesday, at the hall on the eighth floor at 511 Locust street.

Holds Close Sale Contest.

The Velie Automobile Co. is holding a very spirited sales contest, the winner of which will be given a trip to the Indianapolis Decoration Day races. Four members of the sales organization, E. J. Brandt, G. H. Hine, Bob Holcomb and J. E. Johnson, are practically tied for first place, and it will be probably train time before the winner is definitely decided.

Announcing

The Premocar "Magic Six"

IT is with pardonable pride we announce that we have secured the Premocar "Magic Six" for distribution in this territory.

The Premocar is the greatest value on the automobile market as can be seen from the standard units used in its construction.

There are the six cylinder Falls valve-in-head motor, Timken axles, Borg and Beck clutch, Wagner starting and lighting, Spicer universal joints, Connecticut ignition, Stromberg carburetor—all high-grade units the quality of which is recognized wherever automobiles are known.

In appearance, The Premocar has graceful lines—a streamline effect. It has a wheel base of 117 inches and is mounted on a 7-inch frame. The seat cushions are deep, with high backs, and an exceptional spring suspension gives the car splendid riding qualities.

Power, dependability, comfort and economy are the outstanding features of The Premocar. It's an unusually fine light car at a very moderate price. Telephone for a demonstration today.

BUICK AND SCRIPPS AT LOWER PRICES

No Change, Except in Price, to Be Made in 1922 Buick Series.

The present line of Buick six-cylinder cars will be carried through the 1922 season, according to an announcement made public by the Buick Motor Co. yesterday. Although the new series will be identical with the present Buick models, in all except serial numbers, the prices will be from $270 to $660 less than the present prevailing prices.

As in the 1921 line the new series will be comprised of seven different models, three of which are open cars and the balance closed models. The old and new prices of the various models are as follows: Three-passenger roadster, formerly $1795, now $1495; five-passenger touring, formerly $1795, now $1525; three-passenger coupe, formerly $2585, now $2135; five-passenger sedan, formerly $2895, now $2435; four-passenger coupe, formerly $2985, now $2325; seven-passenger touring, formerly $2065, now $1735; seven-passenger sedan, formerly $3295, now $2635.

The Scripps-Booth, another General Motors unit, announced reductions ranging from $190 to $270 on all models. The touring car and roadster, which were formerly priced at $1545, are now selling for $1295 and $1275, respectively. The sedan was reduced from $2295 to $2100, and the coupe from $2215 to $1950.

TRUCK MEN TALK ROADS.

W. H. Caruthers discussed "Road Conditions in Missouri" with about 30 members of the Commercial Car Bureau at a luncheon at the Claridge Hotel, Wednesday. The bureau is to join issues with the Automobile Manufacturers and Dealers' Association and the Roads Committee of the Chamber of Commerce to arrive at a road program which will be approved in the rural districts, for the proper placing of the $60,000,000 road bond money in Missouri. C. E. Pagett, chairman, presided at the meeting.

Forshey to Sell Trailers.

Fred W. Forshey, formerly manager of the motor service department of the Columbia Terminal Co., has resigned to take charge of the management of the Lapeer Trailer Co., which will distribute the Lapeer line of heavy duty trailers throughout the St. Louis territory.

I Could Write a Book on Economy

Sure I could! I could use a pad of paper an inch thick and wear out a gross of good lead pencils before I got it all said. I could tell you about some fellows with ideas about saving round iron dollars that would make the old eagle fold up his wings and laugh.

What would you think—say—of a chap who bought a tin automobile and then spent enough on repairs to buy a limousine and hire a chauffeur to run it? Maybe you'd say there "ain't no sich animule," but, believe me, there is—and he's got a brother—the fellow who buys a battery with his eyes shut and don't wake up until he's hit in the nose with a big fat bill for re-insulation!

You may not believe it, but once in a while we get hold of an owner who says straight off that he don't care a continental about this economy thing and that he wants his battery fixed. Do we fix it? You bet we do, and send him away with a first-class job as reasonable (maybe more so) as he could get anywhere.

But sometimes, just to post him, we put in a word about the builders of 173 makes of cars and trucks who pay more to have Willard Threaded Rubber Insulation!

Why Waste Any More Money on Ordinary Insulation?

When it comes time for your old battery to die, why not just let it go and get a brand new Willard Threaded Rubber Battery?

Of course, it can be fixed—we could repair it if there wasn't anything left but the two handles. But the time always comes when it doesn't pay to bother with repairs.

In the ordinary battery the insulation is usually the first thing to wear out. Why? Because it is wood, and wood is softened by long soaking in battery solution and is likely any time to warp, split, puncture or rub through so that the troublesome short circuit gets in its work and starts the battery toward an early death.

Any good battery man can put new pieces of wood between the plates, but the best of them can't tell you how long your battery will last after the operation. And nobody can repair the damage already done to the plates.

The only way you can get Threaded Rubber Insulation is to buy it in the battery, and it's only in one kind: the Willard Threaded Rubber Battery.

If you believe in cutting out waste in the operation of your car—if you want to get down to a rock-bottom cost basis—if you want to put an end to unnecessary worries—begin by buying a Willard Threaded Rubber Battery just as the Willard Service Man says in his column.

Ask for it by its full name, and be sure you see the red Thread-Rubber Trade Mark on one side of the battery case.

One dollar and 40 cents will furnish pure milk for one tenement child for an entire week!

Seven days of life at an average cost of 20 cents a day—those bits of silver which you thoughtlessly toss on the cigar stand or soda fountain would mean life and health for some unfortunate child if given to the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund. And reports from the St. Louis Pure Milk Commission, the agency through which the Fund administers pure milk to tenement children, indicate that appeals for free milk will be more numerous this year than ever before, many requests having been received in the last week.

The Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund has undertaken to raise $8500 to be devoted entirely to supplying certified milk and the ice necessary to keep it fresh, to poor families in which there are small children. Since the campaign was opened on May 15, in addition to $200 donated by the Post-Dispatch itself, only $154.85 has been received.

Directors Issuing Ice Tickets.

Because of the exceedingly warm weather of the last week the directors of the work have issued tickets for free ice earlier than usual. The work is being launched on a larger plane than ever before and the money to defray the expenses must be forthcoming.

It surely cannot be that the people of St. Louis fail to realize the menace to the lives of children from polluted milk and other food; or that they lack understanding of the vital necessity of maintaining milk distributing centers and clinics in the poorer districts of the city. As was pointed out in connection with the opening of the Milk and Ice Fund campaign, a good-sized fund must be raised to furnish milk and ice this season for children whose parents are not able to buy those necessaries or many babies who otherwise might be saved will not survive the heated period.

Church Society Sends $10.

Only $11.50 has been added to the Milk and Ice Fund in the last four days. Ten dollars of this amount was sent by Mrs. Harry C. Avis, Buckingham Annex, treasurer of the Women's Society of St. John's M. E. Church South. This is the regular yearly donation of that organization.

Six children conducted a nickel show at 4427 Pershing avenue last week and earned $1.50 for the fund. They are now engaged in selling tickets for a second entertainment to be given next week. Those participating in the work are: Eugene, Joe, Leo and Rose Henschel, and Ralph and Henry Ecoff.

OLD BARROOM AT STATION TO BE USED FOR FARM EXHIBIT

Will Be Occupied Under Five-Year Lease for Permanent Display of Southeast Missouri Products.

The old barroom in Union Station, which has been vacant since prohibition, will be occupied under a five-year lease after July 1 by a permanent exhibit of the agricultural products of Southeast Missouri.

The exhibit is part of a co-operative effort on the part of farmers and business men in Southeast Missouri to develop their community under the guidance of the Southeast Missouri Agricultural Bureau.

At a meeting at Sikeston last week a guaranty fund of $26,000 a year for five years for the work was obtained from farmers and business men. It is expected that nonresident land owners will contribute sufficiently to make the annual budget $40,000. A. I. Foard of St. Louis, formerly county agent of Scott County, will have charge of the exhibits and the development work.

The eight counties comprising the Southeast Missouri Agricultural Bureau are Butler, Cape Girardeau, Dunklin, Mississippi, New Madrid, Pemiscot, Scott and Stoddard. It is stated that the purpose of the campaign is not sale of land but development through the coming of new residents.

What the Man in the Street in Japan Thinks of Disarmament and How He Wants It Accomplished

People Hostile to Attempts to Saddle on Taxpayers Burden of an Armed Peace—U. S. Looked to for Leadership.

By Adachi Kinnosuke.

American Correspondent of the Tokio Jiji.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Japan has made a little discovery lately. It struck her like a sudden break of dawn at midnight and she is taking it like another Paul on the road to Damascus. Her discovery was not much; she discovered that figures, just plain rows of numerals, are sometimes as sensational and blood-curdling as sword and fire.

On the day before Christmas last year Baron Korekiyo Takahaishi, the Finance Minister of Japan, stood before the lower house of the Diet and mentioned a few strings of figures. In the financial year of 1921 the total expenditure of Japan amounts to 1,562,000,000 yen (about $786,000,000). Out of that total the army is to spend 263,000,000 yen, not quite, but about 18 per cent of it; and the navy 498,000,000 yen, which is a little over 31 per cent of the total. In other words, the navy and army of Japan are to spend about 49 per cent of the total. According to the latest census just completed last year, there are 55,960,000 people living in Japan proper; the people in Corea, Formosa and Southern Manchuria count only when the Government spends appropriations—not when it comes to putting up the money. Therefore, the total expenditure of Japan for 1921 means about 28 yen for every man, woman and child in the empire. That is a great deal of money in the light of the financial ability of the Japanese people, and about 14 yen of the 28 are going to be spent by the navy and the army.

The budget told the people at the same time that the Government had only 10,000,000 yen to cover the salaries of all the teachers employed in the public schools of the empire; that is to say, less than one-seventieth of the army and navy appropriations; and this single fact alone made an astoundingly profound impression on the people of Japan. The Japanese are almost fanatical in matters of education; they are actually more anxious to be educated than to eat. Today Japanese children are being taught under what is called the "Nibu Kyoju-So"—that is to say, the morning and afternoon shift system. Even then there are not enough educational facilities for all the children of school age. Education is compulsory in Japan. The result is an astounding sight of the Government compelling the children to attend school under the penalty of law and at the same time turning them away from the schools when they flock to them. People are told that the Government has not enough funds to provide more schools. Yet the budget tells them that they are about to spend in the coming fiscal year more than 760,000,000 yen for the army and navy.

All Talking of Disarmament.

Small wonder then that a curious sight greets a traveler as he enters Tokio nowadays. The "militaristic" Japan of which he has heard so much is suffering from an acute epidemic of disarmament. Almost all the metropolitan dailies are making front-page features of it. Politicians are flocking to it as to a newly discovered gold mine. Everybody seems to be talking about it all at once.

On Jan. 29 of this year there was a great gathering of star reporters of the Tokio newspapers at a famous restaurant in Marunouchi called "Chuwo-Tei." Mr. Ozaki had asked them to gather there; he wished to talk to them. Without question he is the most picturesque figure in the political Japan of today.

Yukio Ozaki had served as Minister of Education in the Okuma-Itagati coalition cabinet of 1898, then as Minister of Justice in the Okuma regime of 1914, he was the Mayor of Tokio for nearly 10 years and has always held a commanding position in the House of Representatives of the Diet ever since its first session of which he was a member. In no sense can he be classed among irresponsible political upstarts eager to turn every sensational movement into political capital. "Reduction of naval armaments," was Ozaki's theme that day. And he talked to them a long, long time, discussing the questions from (1) the financial, (2) diplomatic, and (3) the national defense standpoints of view.

50 Per Cent to War Purposes.

He pointed out what the figures of the budget so eloquently set forth, namely, something like 50 per cent of the total expenditure of State is devoted to military purposes, then the natural effect of such a tremendous and disproportionate appropriation of national funds to the navy and army stunted industrial enterprises and crippled communications of the country at the time when the Empire is suffering from growing pains. Turning his attention to what our neighbor Powers think about the military activities of Japan, he went on:

"Japan is now in a completely isolated position intentionally." He pointed to the suspicion with which the naval expansion program is being reviewed by the people of the United States, Canada, Australia and other British colonies in the Pacific. He pictured the utter futile folly of Japan ever thinking of a naval race with the United States or with England. Moreover, he pointed out what the great naval authorities like Admiral Lord Fisher think of the capital ships for the construction of which Japan today is taxing its people to the point of exhaustion, in the naval struggles of the future. He closed his speech to the reporters with a strong plea that Japan should take the leadership in disarmament, that she should not hesitate to blaze the path if other great Powers refuse to head the movement.

This speech of Ozaki received an unusually large space in all the leading newspapers throughout the empire.

Ozaki Not Alone in Move.

Ozaki is by no means alone among the political leaders of Japan in urging a drastic and immediate reduction of armaments. A few days after his speech at the Chuwo-Tei restaurant, Mr. Nishikura of the Kokumin-To, or People's party, spoke on the floor of the House of Representatives. Like Ozaki, he, too, emphasized the startling proportion of naval and military expenditures in the budget.

"When it is remembered," he went on to say, "that a very large proportion of national expenditure is taken up by naval and military expenses, it should be very difficult for Japan to clear herself of the charge imputed to her by the Powers that the military party reigns supreme in this country."

Mr. Hamaguchi, one of the leaders of the Kensei-Kai, or the Opposition party, speaking also on the floor of the House of Representatives, declared:

"I am no pacifist. I am not blind to the necessity of some naval expansion in case America, for example, pushed forward with her gigantic naval expansion scheme. * * * With America in this mood, Japan will be called upon to attend to an expansion of her naval strength. But Japan's financial resources do not allow her permanently to compete with that country in naval construction."

In fact, in an extended debate in the Diet on the question of armaments in general and of a "naval holiday" in particular, there was not a strong dissenting voice raised anywhere from any quarter.

Press Up With Politicians.

And the press? It is not a whit behind our politicians. The Tokio Jiji, which prides itself as being the London Times of Japan, has been the banner bearer for the disarmament movement from the start. It devoted its first editorial of the year to this question of disarmament and pronounced it the most important problem before the people of Japan today and of the world. After reciting the familiar and obvious arguments for disarmament it came flatly out with: "Japan should propose a reduction of armaments to Britain and the United States. * * * Japan should curtail her army on her own motion and without awaiting the signature of a reduction agreement. * * * If America takes the lead in reduction in armaments it will be easiest to arrive at a naval agreement. Perhaps Great Britain is

MISSOURI GIVES $125,308.69 FOR THE IRISH CAUSE

QUOTA PLEDGED BY STATE IS EXCEEDED

Original Figure Set Had Been $100,000 and Campaign Is Regarded as Highly Successful.

A detailed statement of receipts and expenditures of the Missouri collection for the American Committee for Relief in Ireland has been rendered by R. F. McNally, vice president of the National Bank of Commerce, who is treasurer for the fund.

It shows that the total of contributions was $125,308.69, now on deposit. The expenses of the collection, $5050, were defrayed by the national committee in New York.

The Missouri committee closed its active campaign on March 28, but subscriptions are reported still coming in. The chief sources of funds were reported by McNally as follows:

Public School Donations.

Included in the $19,999.48 secured through sealed collection boxes is $2218.62 from the teachers and pupils of the public schools. The subscriptions of the teachers and pupils in the parochial schools are included in the church subscriptions.

Total subscriptions received from towns outside of St. Louis, including East St. Louis, which was in the Missouri District, were $55,925.54 to May 26. The leading downstate town was St. Joseph, the committee of which reports pledged subscriptions to the amount of $36,000. Of this $16,150 has already been paid to the treasurer. The next largest downstate subscription was $18,000 received from Kansas City. East St. Louis has contributed $10,688. Sedalia sent $3500 and Moberly $2600.

Pledge Was for $100,000.

Inasmuch as the Missouri Committee had pledged itself to raise $100,000, McNally stated that the campaign must be considered very successful. Missouri was the first State to organize and the first State to complete its campaign. Moberly was the first city in the United States to exceed its quota in the Irish relief movement.

McNally said that he wished to especially emphasize the fact that the entire collected fund was upon deposit in the National Bank of Commerce, St. Louis, at the disposal of the national treasurer, John J. Pulleyn, cashier of the Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank of New York.

Friends Tell of Life of David I. Bushnell, Who Began With $25 and Made Million

"Father of Seed Business" and Amateur Archaeologist Garnered Much of Fortune From Buffalo Bones—Left $507,000 to Charity and Friends.

Details of the life, activities and benefactions of David Ives Bushnell, millionaire seedman and amateur archaelogist, who died in St. Louis on April 29, three days after his seventy-fifth birthday, have been learned from members of his family, friends and business associates, many of whom were named as beneficiaries of the will. Legacies totaling $507,000 were mentioned in that document, with provision that they be increased according to the size of the estate.

Although the inventory of the estate has not been filed, it is stated in reliable sources that Bushnell left enough to provide a million dollars for the legacies after the payment of the inheritance tax.

Bushnell was not generally known outside the circles of his trade, the local group of archaelogists and a select circle of friends. Nevertheless, he was a frequent contributor to practical charities and he left legacies to the amount of $80,000 to churches and charity. Friends were left $89,500 and faithful employes were bequeather $37,500. Relatives received $300,000, but his wife, who divorced him in 1900, was left nothing.

Cared Little for Publicity.

The story of Bushnell's life was not obtained in its entirely from any one person. Some who were interviewed were not familiar with all periods of his career, and some of those who were most familiar with him, his business associates, were reluctant to discuss his life. "He was conservative and did not care for publicity," they said. "We do not think he would want us to discuss these things."

Bushnell's ancestors were of pure English stock and they had been settled in Massachusetts for several generations when he was born in the village of Sheffield April 26, 1846. His father was a farmer. His mother died when he was young and when he was 12 years old his father was married again, this time to a widow, whose two sons helped make home life unpleasant for David. Finally David "ran away" to a relative's, three miles off, and there he remained, doing the chores and attending school.

His father saw to it that he was sent to an academy at New Marlboro, Mass., where after several years he was requested to leave because of a boyish prank by himself and other lads. They had carried a calf to the belfry of one of the buildings and tied it there to outsound the bell with its bellowing. So at the age of 18 he returned to his father's and was given the choice of working on the farm or taking $25 and setting out to make his own way. "Let me try the farm for a day," he said, and took out a team and plow. At noon he tied the team under an apple tree, went in for lunch and requested the $25.

Worked in Hat Factory.

He went to Danbury, Conn., 60 mile saway, and worked in a hat factory for two years. Then he represented the firm in New York for a year, until it failed. After that he came to St. Louis and became a "mud clerk" on the boats of the Northern Packet Line, which ran to St. Paul, Minn. He afterwards told that he arrived here with just a few dollars. It was not long before he fell in love with Belle Johnston, daughter of a captain of the steamboat line, whose father's cousin was Gen. Albert Sidney Johnston, and whose mother was a cousin of Gen. Robert E. Lee. She was born in Kentucky. They were married here on Nov. 21, 1872, when she was 15.

Mrs. Bushnell has made her home with her son, David Ives Bushnell Jr. in Virginia and in Washington, D. C., for the last two decades. They came here for Bushnell's funeral, which was held Sunday, May 1, and remained for several weeks afterward, revisiting old scenes. At the Jefferson Hotel the other day she related incidents of Bushnell's career and told of their wedding journey.

"The day of our marriage dawned lovely, autumnal weather," she said. "By noon the sky was dark, and at 3 o'clock, when the guests were arriving in their carriages, it was necessary to have someone constantly sweeping the walk clear, the snow was falling so fast. After the ceremony we crossed on the ferryboat to the old East St. Louis Relay Depot, for construction of Eads Bridge was just under way. Ours was the last ferry to cross the Mississippi that winter. Mr. Bushnell had been granted only three or four days' leave, which we spent in Chicago. When we returned the river was frozen, and we drove across in a carriage."

Took Over Employer's Business.

Shortly before his marriage Bushnell had entered the employ of F. A. Seavey & Co., grain merchants, as assistant bookkeeper. The next year Seavey failed. Bushnell and the head bookkeeper, Robert Niggeman, took over the business as D. I. Bushnell & Co., which still remains as the name of Bushnell's firm. Bushnell's investment in the new firm was somewhat larger than Niggeman's; he put in $5000, which he obtained by mortgaging a little tract of land in the Berkshire Hills, which had come to him as a birth gift.

For a number of years the family lived on $1200 a year, while Bushnell kept $100 a year for himself, for carfare, tobacco and all his incidentals. The rest of his share of the profits went to pay off his note. After that was paid it was possible to expand the business. On all sides the statement has been made that Bushnell's fortune is simply due to the healthy growth of the business and Bushnell's wise investment of his profits. The firm has specialized in the sale of field seeds at wholesale, though it does some commission business.

Gathered Bones for Fertilizer.

Bushnell was not long in the seed business when he conceived the idea of gathering buffalo bones for fertilizer from the Western plains. That idea has been termed the genesis of his fortune. At that time there were three large mills in North St. Louis, each of which daily ground several carloads of the bones. Large quantities of bones were gathered for Bushnell, in Kansas, Nebraska, Oklahoma and Texas. That phase of the business fell off, perforce, as the herds of buffalo disappeared. A more recent activity of the firm has been the subsidizing of farmers in counties north of St. Louis to grow seed crops.

Bushnell's mode of life was quiet and he was not known as a spender, but rather as a diligent worker. One of his associates said: "He was looked upon as the 'father' of the seed business and was beloved by every seedsman in the United States; he was personally acquainted with nearly every one of them. The business has been nationwide."

Robert W. Pommer His Partner.

Robert W. Pommer, who lives at 1925 South Compton avenue, and who came from Germany in the '70's, became Bushnell's partner in 1885 and prospered with him. He started working when Niggeman was in the firm. He is 67 years old, and, naturally, was one of Bushnell's closest friends. He was named one of the three executors of the estate, along with Henry A. Baker, an attorney, and Fred B. Chamberlain, a manufacturer, other old friends.

The partnership of Bushnell and Niggeman was founded in 1873 at 18 South Main street, where the Merchants' Exchange had its quarters in a high room on the second floor. Bushnell was an active member of the exchange and there is said to be but one surviving member who joined before he did. The firm moved to 17 and 19 south Main street, and in the late '80's to its present location, an old loft building at 105-11 North Second street. These sites are all in the vicinity of the original St. Louis and some years ago the Missouri Historical Society and Bushnell placed a bronze tablet on the front of the Second street warehouse. The tablet's inscription is: "On Sept. 26, 1768, 120x150 feet

FISK TO ESTABLISH SIX NEW MARKETS FOR CURB TRADING

The establishment of six new curb markets, making 12 in all, was announced yesterday. Director of Streets and Sewers Fisk, whose department has charge of the markets, said the new ones were made necessary by the demands of farmers, who declared the present markets are so crowded as to have insufficient space at the curbs, and of householders and neighborhood merchants.

The new markets will be at Page boulevard and Marcus avenue, Page boulevard and Hodiamont avenue, Union boulevard and Easton avenue, Broadway and De Soto avenue (5100 north), Broadway and Baden avenue, and at Warne and Florissant avenues.

The new markets will be established soon. At first, 10 farmers will be assigned to each one.

The existing markets are at Twentieth street and East Grand avenue, Easton avenue and Sarah street, Easton avenue and Deer street, Grand and Gravois avenues, Broadway and Chippewa street and at Broadway and Schirmer street. From 20 to 30 farmers have been coming to each of these markets.

The curb markets are open on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday mornings. The farmers usually arrive about 6 a. m. and remain as late as 11 a. m. The season lasts for more than five months, starting early in May.

ROAD EQUIPMENT AT UNIVERSITY

Washington to Teach Road Building This Autumn.

Special equipment of an expensive type to be used in the courses on road-building materials which are to be inaugurated at Washington University this fall, is arriving and will be installed in the civil engineering laboratory this summer.

Mainly it is for testing the various materials. The courses extend over two years, three semesters being in the civil engineering department and one in the chemistry section. The equipment being introduced is designed to make the standard tests on materials as developed and specified by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads. Two of the new courses on highway engineering will be under direction of W. W. Horner, chief engineer of sewers and paving in St. Louis, as lecturer.

MUNCIPAL OPERA TO OPEN TUESDAY WEEK

General rehearsals for principals and chorus begin at noon tomorrow, in preparation for the opening of the third season of municipal opera, which will occur on Tuesday night of next week with a presentation of the popular operetta by Oscar Straus, "The Chocolate Soldier." The performances will be given at the open-air theater in Forest Park. The season will continue for eight weeks, beginning on Tuesday night of each week and concluding on Sunday night.

Miss Katherine Galloway, prima donna, and Miss Rhoda Nickells, ingenue, both newcomers in the organization, are already in the city. Other principals are due tomorrow morning—Frank Moulan, principal comedian; J. Humbird Duffy, tenor, who is also a newcomer; James Stevens, barItone, who has not yet sung at the municipal opera; Miss Mildred Rogers, contralto, and Charles E. Gallagher, bass. Harry Hermsen, second comedian, a native St. Louisan, has been here for some weeks.

Information as to Principals.

Miss Galloway, the prima donna, is a Kentuckian by birth, and received her vocal training in New York under Dudley Buck. Her first professional appearance was in "Molly O," a musical play produced about seven years ago. Excursions into vaudeville, stock engagements and a season with the Morati Opera Co. preceded her engagement with Henry W. Savage's "Have a Heart" company, which appeared here several years ago. Later she was heard at the Shubert-Jefferson Theater as prima donna with the extravaganza, "Monte Cristo Jr."

J. Humbird Duffy is a well-known light opera tenor and has appeared here with several theatrical productions, notably Andreas Dippel's production of "The Lilac Domino." Two weeks ago he created the role of Aramis in a new operetta, "The Three Musketeers," at the Manhattan Opera House, New York, the cast of which he leaves to fill the local engagement.

James Stevens, baritone, has been identified with many light opera productions. It is said that he has appeared in more performances of "Robin Hood" than any other singer. He scored a success in a recent revival of "Roy Roy" in New York.

Miss Nickells was born at Leavenworth, Kan., and reared in the vicinity of Kansas City. She studied voice in St. Paul and her first public appearance was as a church singer there. She entered vaudeville and first visited this city in an act at the Columbia Theater. She sang the ingenue and later the prima donna role in "Flora Bella," had a season with "Flo Flo," a musical comedy, and last season supported Fritzi Scheff in "Glorianna."

Frank Moulan Returns.

Frank Moulan was leading comedian of the Municipal Opera cast of 1919, and later appeared for 40 weeks at the Park Theater, New York, in a revival of Gilbert and Sullivan works. He was also a member of the cast of the successful musical play, "Lassie."

Miss Rogers and Galloway have been with the Municipal Opera since its inception, and Hermsen was second comedian last year.

ECZEMA

Also Called Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Water Poison, Weeping Skin, Etc.

For fifteen years I have been treating one disease alone, ECZEMA. I have handled over one million cases. I do not pretend to know it all, but I am convinced the disease is due to an excess of acid in the blood, and closely related to rheumatism and cancer. This acid must be removed.

Eczema is called by some people Itch, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Pruritus, Milk Crust, Weeping Skin, etc. I am fully convinced Eczema is a curable disease, and when I say it can be cured, I mean just what I say—C-U-R-E-D, and not merely patched up for a while to return worse than before. It makes no difference what other doctors have told you, or what all you have tried, all I ask is just a chance to prove to you that this vast experience has taught me a great deal that would be of help to you. If you will write me today I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing, guaranteed treatment that will do more to convince you than I or anyone else could in a month's preaching. It's all up to you. If you suffer any more with eczema and refuse to merely write to me for free trial, just blame yourself. No matter where you live, I have treated your neighbors. Merely dropping me a postal today is likely to give you more real comfort in a week than you ever expected to enjoy again. Do it right now, your very life may be at stake.

prepared to reduce her armament and Japan also will be glad to rearrange her program."

The Asahai of Osaka claims a daily circulation of over half a million and is unquestionably the most popular daily in Japan. It is the voice of the people of Japan in a large sense. It is unanimously, enthusiastically, persistently for disarmaments. It looks to America for leadership in the movement, as do most of the Japanese supporters of reduction in armaments agitation.

The Osaka Mainichi, which ranks only next to the Asahai a sthe popular favorite among the Japanese dailies and which enjoys the daily circulation of more than 400,000, is also strongly for the reduction of armaments as the direct road to international peace. After criticising and denouncing Mr. Kahn's contention that the extension of armaments is the best means of preventing war it cites the example of President Monroe a century ago regarding the restriction of naval armaments on the Great Lakes: "There are neither warships nor forts, nor big guns, nor even guards along the American-Canadian frontiers. When this is compared with the circumstances which attended the European war, it will be seen how fallacious is Mr. Kahn's plea that armament expansion is the best means of preventing war between Japan and America."

Militarist Formula Laughed At.

The Yamato of Tokio laughs at the hard-worked, threadbare, one-track prayer-formula of the militarists: "For defense of the country," and asks: "Has any country ever said that it is expanding its armaments for the purpose of aggression? A country which enlarges its armaments always says that it is doing so for the sake of self-defense and this was precisely the attitude assumed by Germany before the war."

The Nichinichi of Tokio joins the chorus, pleading, as so many other expressions of popular mind of Japan, that America should assume the leadership in the world's greatest movement of today.

But what about the people of Japan, what have they done on this most important question, what have they been saying about it?

In the city of Tokio on the 5th of March of this year a huge mass meeting was held. College boys were there, working men and women of Japan were there. But neither of them dominated it. For there were also present at the meeting an almost unprecedented number of men of business, financiers and men of affairs. In fact they made up a goodly portion of the gathering. Tokio had never seen a meeting just like that.

There to Talk Disarmament.

Disarmament was the theme which had collected all these people together. Mr. Sanji Muto presided over it. Muto was the representative of Japan's capitalistic interests at the International Labor Congress held at Washington in 1919. Speaking with considerable emphasis, he declared that it is a height of impudence on the part of any Japanese to advocate an armed peace at such a time when business was gasping in the depth of depression. He questioned the wisdom of the budget in which almost 50 per cent of the expenditure was for the army and navy.

He denounced as a crime any attempt of putting the already overburdened taxpayers of the empire under the ruthless screw of a monstrous naval race. The mass meeting cabled to President Harding and Senator Borah its urgent plea for their efforts in behalf of the disarmament movement.

People Fought to Hear Him.

Meanwhile down South, in the city of Osaka—sometimes called the Manchester of Japan, because it is the industrial center—and in Kobe, the greatest of all the Pacific ports at present, outraking Yokohama, Hongkong, San Francisco and Seattle and in the ancient city of Kyoto, Ozaki addressed a number of meetings. And everywhere he spoke the people literally fought for a chance of hearing him. Following his speeches in Kobe, Kyoto and Osaka he had 7000 blank postal cards distributed among his audiences and urged them to express their desire on the question. Out of the number 2060 were returned to him. Of this number 2000 indorsed his views and his agitation against naval expansions, and 60 were against him. Recently Ozaki has been lecturing through Northern Japan, continuing the postal card distribution, and has received 16,000 cards, 93 per cent of these replied favoring disarmament.

In the face of all this clamour the Government evidently felt constrained to make some sort of explanation about its naval program. And it has explained through the Minister of the Navy, before the Diet and through the press, somewhat like this:

It is on the ancient naval program of 1906 that the money is being spent. It should have been completed years ago. But it was not, simply because Japan did not have enough money to complete it. The expansion program has paraded through different sessions of the Imperial Diet in all sorts of masquerade. In the days of Okuma Cabinet it went before the Diet under the guise of "six-four" program (six battleships and four battle cruisers). In 1916 it was presented as "eight-four" program, and it was only after the unprecedented war prosperity in Japan that the present "eight-and-eight" program was boldly unveiled. The Government points out that compared to the American naval program it is exceedingly modest. The act of Congress of Aug. 25, 1916, authorized the building of 16 capital ships of the most modern and formidable type for the American navy—10 dreadnaught battleships and six battle cruisers of the total tonnage of 640,600. The Government invites the people of Japan to compare this to what is so thunderously denounced as "the tremendous naval program of Japan." But even the Japanese Government, which is bound to defend its naval program, does not hesitate a second; is, indeed, in an indecent haste, to declare that it is altogether willing and ready to welcome any sort of naval holiday in principle and always provided that it be made practicable through an international agreement among the leading naval Powers of the world.

Ozaki Resolution Voted Down.

But on Feb. 10 the House of Representatives of the Imperial Diet voted down the Ozaki resolution for naval reduction by an overwhelming majority of 285 against 38 in favor of it. It fell like a bolt out of the blue to some of the American advocates of disarmament. In Japan nobody was surprised in the least. For the meaning of it all had little to do with disarmament. It was Ozaki and his political friends who were crushed on that day—not the movement for the reduction of armaments.

On the 4th of February Ozaki was read out of his party, the Kenzei-Kai. His independence of action in connection with a party bill on universal suffrage and the light and airy manner with which he ignored the pleasures of the leading lights of his party in his action on the floor of the House proved a bit too much for the Kenzei-Kai men. That at least was the reason given by the Kenzei-Kai. Now the Kenzei-Kai, as everyone knows, is the opposition party to the present Government. It is the Kenzei-Kai which had been assaulting the Government measure for the present naval program with might and main. But when the Ozaki bill for the reduction of naval armament came before the House, the most natural thing on earth—in fact, the only thing that could possibly have happened, did happen—namely, the opposition party joined with the Government party, the Seiyukai, in burying it under an avalanche.

10c a Package for The Best Epsom Salt

You pay no fancy price for the purity and superior strength of Allan's Epsom Salt. The Sanitary Sealed Package costs only 10c. It brings you the very best Epsom Salt.

Your physician insists on purity in the medicine you take. Allan's is pure. Take it with half a fresh lemon squeezed into a glass of water, and a little sugar added. Then you know the dose is pure. The fruit acid—if it is fresh and pure—helps Allan's Epsom Salt to act quickly and makes it tasteless.

It's easy to say "Allan's," and it means a lot, for it's pure.

ASKS ROCKEFELLER TO CREATE THOUGHT FUND

J. C. Cabanne Would Have Commission Furnish Advice to States or Nations in Trouble.

J. Charless Cabanne of 4334 Westminster place, president of the St. Louis Dairy Co., in a letter which he has written to John D. Rockefeller and which he has given out here for publication, suggests to Rockefeller that he establish a fund of $50,000,000, the income from which would be used to organize a commission of representative Americans who would "send to cities or states or nations in trouble written thoughts of how best to alleviate their troubles or sufferings."

The letter is as follows:

"I think you are a great man because you have made the largest fortune for yourself and given away more money to charity than any man who has ever lived.

"I respectfully submit for your consideration the following pen picture: The greatest force in our world for the development of man is thought. As a man thinks he acts. If he has kind, good thoughts, he does kind things and is a good citizen. If he has selfish, unkind and bad thoughts he is a bad citizen.

"As the majority of the citizens in a city or State or nation think, they do, which is the road to success and their betterment, or the road to their deterioration and downfall.

"Your great donations to charity show that you want to do for the betterment of mankind what is best for it is why I submit to you this thought picture for the betterment of mankind. The plan is to create and organize a commission. The commission should be composed of six men in New York City, who should be representatives from six elements of the body politic of New York. Those six elements should be, first, professors of education; second, the Chamber of Commerce of New York; third, transportation, the railroad men; fourth, the agricultural element, the farmers; fifth, the newspapers; sixth, the bankers.

"To organize the commission, these elements of the body politic should each one of them in New York City hold a mass meeting and elect a candidate or member of the commission.

"The commission after its organization would send to cities or states or nations in trouble, written thoughts of how best to alleviate their troubles or sufferings.

"To create and maintain such a commission will require a great deal of money. If you would put in trust now or by will $50,000,000, the income from which should be used to maintain the commission and enable it to tell the people of the world its thought conclusions for the betterment of mankind, I predict that the work of the commission will result in the creation of an international congress composed of citizens from the various nations and an international court for the adjudication of disputes and conflicts between the nations. To help along the cause of peace and good will between the naitons of our world, the advice of the commission will bring about disarmament, universal brotherhood and a union of the nations of the world within the next 100 years, because the work of the commission will educate the majority of the people of the world to think that way."

Girls, Don't Wash Your Face

Use Liska cold cream instead (you have never used anything like it). Just try it once and you will never be without it. Soap and water has a tendency to make the skin rough, and does not cleanse the skin as thoroughly as Liska cold cream. To prove it make this test: Wash your face with soap and water, dry thoroughly, then apply Liska cold cream, massage it well into the skin, then wipe off the superfluous cream with a soft white cloth; examine the cloth and see how much dirt has accumulated thereon. Liska cold cream cleanses, softens and beautifies the skin. For sunburn or after a dusty auto trip there is nothing like it. It's fine after shaving, too. Let hubby or brother try it. Just compare Liska cold cream with any other you have ever used and you will need no further argument to convince you that it's the best. It's put up in tubes, the only sanitary way. Try it tonight. You will be delighted. At toilet counters everywhere, including Wolff-Wilson, Judge & Dolph, Johnson Bros. and the Enderle Drug Co.

We Guarantee Every Article to Be Priced on Replacement Value of Today

Planning for the largest June selling in the history of our Institution

We wish to assure every purchaser and guarantee every article to be upon replacement value of today. Should there be any inadvertent omission in this respect, we will cheerfully make prompt rectification.

* * * * * *

¶ A time of rapidly changing conditions always throws a heavy strain on the working relations between beings.

¶ This is emphatically true of the relation of store to customer. It was true during the long period of strongly rising values in merchandise which came to an end last Summer. It has been doubly true during the rapid fall of prices which succeeded it.

¶ These are days when business houses as well as individuals should have creeds and live up to them.

¶ In times of rapidly shrinking values in merchandise, it is the duty of the store, as Vandervoort's sees it, to guarantee to the customer that the price of each and every article represents only present replacement value plus a fair profit, without regard to the cost of the article when purchased. In other words, the merchant, when notified of price reductions by manufacturers and jobbers, should immediately give his customers the benefit of them.

¶ To do this and preserve resources unimpaired means redoubled vigilance and increased effort; but such vigilance and effort are as much a matter of course in a business organization of the first rank as the special services of the sailor in the hour of storm.

We guarantee that every article in our stock is priced on the basis of its replacement value, as measured by the latest available quotations. Should any price fail to conform to this standard, it is a failure of inadvertence, and not of intent, and will, if pointed out, be immediately corrected.

¶ It is with deep satisfaction that Vandervoort's views the history of the long period of rising prices which culminated in the Spring of 1920. During these months of steadily increasing cost of living our customers gave abundant proof of their confidence in our safeguarding of their interests through careful buying and efficient store administration.

¶ When this period came to an end this house was richer in its most precious asset—good will—than at any previous hour of its history; and it is with still deeper satisfaction that we have noted in the buying policy of our customers during the recent months of declining values, the evidence that, under merchandising conditions exactly the reverse of those of a year ago, this confidence continues unimpaired. We gratefully acknowledge this public recognition of the attempt to live up to a definite business creed.

of this property sold for $120, including a log house 10 feet square."

David Ives Bushnell Jr., the son, who is an archeologist, ethnologist and anthropologist at Smithsonian Institution, said that his father was no more than an amateur archeologist, in spite of his deep interest in the science. As to the origin of his father's interest, the son said: "Possibly he came across an Indian arrow-head as he strolled in the fields. The relics of the Indians were his chief interest. He acquired a large private collection of relics of the aboriginal inhabitants of the Mississippi Valley."

Bushnell's collection of specimens is not known to have included any great rarities or objects of unusual note. It was considered, however, as representative. He was president of the St. Louis Archeological Society and was instrumental in obtaining for the Missouri Historical Society's display at Jefferson Memorial the Meadows collection of flints from a farm in Tennessee. He was interested as an amateur in the collection of unusual coins and postage stamps. These colections he kept at his home and he directed in his will that they should go to his son. The archeological collection will likely go to the Missouri Historical Society, which was bequeathed an oil painting of Marquette.

For years Bushnell lived in a rented apartment at 4254 Olive street. He acquired a house at 3 Princeton place, University City, and his furniture was moved there on the day he died at the Missouri Baptist Sanitarium after an illness of three days from bronchial pneumonia and heart disease. His health was poor for years, but he continued to visit his office almost daily until his last illness.

Owned Valuable Property.

Bushnell owned valuable property in various sections of the city. He had slightly more than a half interest in the Bushnell-Pommer Realty Co., which holds about 20 lots here, on which the total assessed valuation is $398,870.

Bushnell's will stated that when his wife divorced him, March 26, 1900, alleging cruelty and abuse, he gave her $76,641 and title to their residence at 3830 Delmar boulevard. It wae further stated that this represented one-half of his estate at the time and was intended as settlement in full of all claim she might ever have on the estate. She did not ask for alimony in the suit, which was heard in 10 minutes. The couple had separated Aug. 1, 1899. Records show that the divorce was granted by default and that Bushnell did not attend the hearing, but Baker, the attorney, entered his appearance for his client. The wife's petition charged violent and profane language on the part of the husband. It was alleged that when they were in Florence, Italy, in 1898—during a tour of Central America and the Mediterranean countries—he used such language towards her that she fainted. In July of that year, it was further alleged, when she asked for money for their son Bushnell replied, "You have been robbing me for 20 years for that boy."

The $300,000 Bushnell bequeathed to relatives was equally divided between his son, his brother, S. H. Bushnell of Sheiffield, who is 87 years old, and a nephew, Arthur Ives Hoyt, of Sheffield. Special mention was made of "the first shirt I ever wore," which he bequeathed to his son. An interesting story attaching to that simple statement was related by Mrs. Bushnell:

"The first shirt Mr. Bushnell ever wore was a tiny garment which was actually his first article of clothing. His mother made it for him out of the finest homespun and it was beautifully trimmed with English thread lace. When my son was born this shirt was sent to me from Sheffield to be young David's first garment. He wore it and I treasured it in the old-fashioned trunk that Mr. Bushnell had used when he went to Danbury. A dozen years ago, when we were living in Virginia, my son visited his father and was asked for that little shirt. His father wished to have it, but I could not bear to part with it and tenderly consigned it to the flames of an open wood fire, sighing. Then I got another little shirt of coarser homespun, lacking the lace, which was perhaps the third or fourth garment Mr. Bushnell ever wore, and my son sent it to his father. It was placed in a frame with the inscription as to its significance, and kept in Mr. Bushnell's bedroom. He never knew the difference."

Gave Much to Charity.

Bushnell's associates related after his death that he frequently gave considerable sums to charity, how much nobody knows. He preferred what he considered practical charities, and was a benefactor of the Missouri Tuberculosis Society, Union Mission Association and the Mothers' and Babies' Home. When he visited Sheffield a year ago he gave money to several small churches there. He was connected with no church, although he frequently attended the Congregational. His will left $50,000 to be distributed among St. Louis charities by the executors, with the exception of the Y. M. C. A. and the Provident Association. Some who knew Bushnell intimately hinted at certain personal reasons for this provision. A preference was expressed for the distribution of the money among homes for aged persons and children and to the Salvation Army. He left $5000 each to the Congregational, Episcopal, Methodist and Catholic churches and the Friendly Union Library of Sheffield and the Congregational Church at South Egremont, Mass.

The will included legacies to a number of employes of the seed firm who had served there for years, provided they are still there. To the one who has been there perhaps the longest, C. E. Haley of 2732 North Euclid avenue, he left $5000 and his fishing tackle. Haley has been with the firm for 35 years. He and Bushnell were both ardent fishermen. Four other employes are to receive $5000 apiece. They are James A. Walsh, cashier, there 19 years; W. W. Jackson, there 30 years; E. W. Kaltwasser, three meroe than 30 years, and L. E. Hamilton, there 26 years. Three who have been with the company from 10 to 12 years will receive $2500 apiece. They are, respectively, Frank J. Reeves, Frank Fette and Charles G. Grone. The sum of $5000 was left for Pommer to distribute among the porters and drivers, about 10 in number.

Legacies to the amount of $89,500 were left to 26 friends of Bushnell, 17 of whom were St. Louisans. These friends range in age from persons of his own generation to children, the youngest of whom is 7. A statement of these legacies and, in the case of St. Louisans, of the friendships which prompted them, follows:

Miss Maude Hindman, 5330 Bartmer avenue, designated in the will as "my faithful nurse," in which position she served for 12 years, $10,000.

Mrs. Jennie Heinrichshofen, 410 De Baliviere avenue, a saleswoman in the suit department of a downtown store, whose husband, who died 17 years ago, was Bushnell's cashier for many years, $10,000. Heinrichshofen was a business competitor of Bushnell in his later years but they remained friends. Miss Alvina Kolb, Mrs. Heinrichshofen's sister, who lives with her, $2000.

The Rev. Dr. Baxter P. Fullerton, 4225 West Pine boulevard, secretary Presbyterian Board of Home Missions, who was formerly pastor of the old Lucas Avenue Presbyterian Church, frequently attended by Bushnell, $5000.

Henry A. Baker, University Club, one of the executors, who taught Bushnell's son at Smith Academy and thus became a friend of the father, $5000.

Fred B. Chamberlain, 4312 McPherson avenue, a manufacturer, another one of the executors, who for years met Bushnell daily on the floor of the Merchants' Exchange, $5000.

F. W. Van Valkenburg, his wife, and daughter, Miss Marie, 3714 North Euclid avenue, $2500 apiece. Van Valkenburg was formerly in charge of a Hawaiian plantation and when his wife brought Miss Marie, who is now a teacher at Bates School, to America to be educated, Bushnell was on the same ship and formed a friendship which continued after the family moved here.

To the three children of Dr. M. L. Klinefelter, 5842 Clemens avenue, Bushnell's physician, $1000. The children are Marion, 11; Rosemary, 9, and Cornelia, 7.

Mrs. Marie Eisenstadt, 4950 Lindell boulevard, whose first husband, James V. Johnston, was Mrs. Bushnell's brother, $2500.

Miss Goldie A. Harrington, 3512A McKean avenue, a notary public at 415 Pine street, who did work for Bushnell for years, $1000.

Mrs. Andy Hittick, St. Louis, wife of former porter for Bushnell, $500.

Legacies to Others.

Legacies to persons out of town were:

Raymon Hoyt, Sheffield, $10,000 and "my pick-up books."

The Rev. Harry G. Sanborne, Oakland, Cal., $5000.

Gates and Sarah Sanborne, Philadelphia, $2000 apiece. Mrs. Sarah D. Burns, West Pittston, Pa., $5000. Chester G. Dalzell, South Egremont, Mass., $5000. James Bushnell Richardson, Providence, R. I., $2000. Mrs. Idress Alvord, Urbana, Ill., formerly Miss Idress Head, who was librarian of the Missouri Historical Society, $1000 (reduced in a codicil from $5000). Mrs. Bettie Ertel, Armstrong, Mo., $5000.

It is provided that any heir contesting the will is to forfeit his or her bequest. Should the estate amount to a million dollars, each cash bequest would be approximately doubled.

Bushnell's body was placed in the receiving vault at Bellefontaine Cemetery, while arrangements are being made for a mausoleum in the cemetery in his memory. This is in accordance with a request he left.

The Test of Comparison

YOUR purchase of an automobile, if wisely made, will be determined only after a down-right, relentless, thorough comparison of values.

Your investment will be made in that car which stands the acid test—with a wide margin to spare.

You buy other things that way—why not automobiles?

You will find them absolutely round and straight up and down.

You will find we have effected an exceptionally close piston fit, at the same time avoiding the possibility of their sticking or freezing.

In these new pistons we have created a piston efficiency that is not surpassed, if equaled, in any other engine.

APPENDICITIS

Appendicitis attacks at any moment, even persons seemingly in good health. Usually, however, it is preceded by stomach trouble or constipation. Many people have a bowel movement every day, but it is not a COMPLETE movement, and much old, stale matter stays in the system to ferment and cause trouble. Often there is only a small passage in the center of the bowels, while the sides are covered with old, hard matter, which sticks to the bowels and often poisons the system for months, making you feel tired all the time and "half-sick." Even if your bowels move slightly each day, that is not enough. There must be an occasional THOROUGH, complete cleansing to bring out all the accumulated, poisonous waste matter.

Appendicitis is an intestinal infection spreading to the appendix, and it can be guarded against in the same manner in which you guard against the spread of throat infection (sore throat). When you have sore throat, you can often prevent further trouble by using an antiseptic wash or gargle to destroy the germs, and a laxative to carry off the poisons from the body. Very similar treatment is necessary to guard against appendicitis. But instead of an antiseptic wash for the throat, an INTESTINAL antiseptic is necessary and a COMPLETE drainage of the bowel system.

INTESTINAL ANTISEPTIC

There is now offered to the public a preparation having the DOUBLE action of an intestinal antiseptic and a COMPLETE system cleaner. This preparation, known as ADLER-I-KA, acts as follows:

It tends to destroy or remove harmful germs and colon bacili in the intestinal canal, thus guarding against appendicitis and other diseases having their start here. It is the most COMPLETE system cleaner ever offered to the public, acting on BOTH upper and lower bowel and bringing out foul matter which poisoned the system for months and which nothing else can dislodge. It brings out all gasses, thus immediately relieving pressure on the heart and other vital organs. It is astonishing the great amount of poisonous matter ADLER-I-KA draws from the alimentary canal—matter you never thought was in your system. Try it right after a natural movement and notice how much MORE foul matter is brought out which was poisoning your system. In slight disorders, such as occasional constipation, sour stomach, gas on the stomach and sick headaches, one spoonful ADLER-I-KA ALWAYS brings relief. ADLER-I-KA is a constant surprise to people who have used only ordinary stomach and bowel medicines and the various oils and waters, on account of its rapid, pleasant and COMPLETE action.

REPORTS FROM PHYSICIANS

Case Called One of the Most Dramatic Medical Science Has Observed in St. Louis.

PRIEST GAVE CLERK BLOOD THREE TIMES

Pernicious Anemia Overcomes Man Despite Efforts of Physicians to Conquer Disease—Was Ill Nearly Year.

Matthew O'Day lost his long fight for life. Eight transmusions, in which six persons contributed a total of more than six quarts of blood, were not sufficient to cope with pernicious anemia, and O'Day succumbed at 11:15 o'clock Friday night, thus closing one of the most dramatic cases ever observed here. The details were printed exclusively in Friday's Post-Dispatch.

Since Dec. 13 last, a gallant but losing battle had been waged in his behalf almost constantly. The presence of a young wife and a baby boy at his bedside heightened interest in the circumstances, and, although he was utterly dependent upon philanthropy, the most extraordinary efforts were made to save him.

O'Day was a clerk, 89 years old, and lived at 5200 Paulian place. When he became ill last June he had been married about a year. In December his failing condition necessitated blood transfusion, and M. T. Harvey, the traffic superintendent under whom he worked at the Wagner Electric Co., volunteered to give a pint of his own blood.

Priest Gave Him Blood.

This was the first of eight transfusions, the last of which took place at the hospital Friday. The Rev. Father Patrick J. Canty of St. Mark's Church, O'Day's parish priest, gave blood three times, and was himself brought under a physician's care as a result of his sacrifices, the last of which was made last Tuesday.

Much of the efforts in O'Day's behalf were made possible by the activity of Mrs. Anna Kaplun, a socal worker in the social service department of Washington University, who solicited all the blood which was infused into the patient's veins.

She finally exhausted all the available supply, and was compelled to resort to advertising. A "want ad" inserted in last Sunday's Post-Dispatch, brought responses from 24 persons, eight of whom were women, offering to give their blood, and it was from one of these, a young woman, that the last transfusion took place.

Physicians were doubtful Friday as to whether O'Day could stand another transfusion. But he was sinking rapidly, and it was decided that the operation was the only chance to save him. One and three-tenths pints were transfused Friday. O'Day rallied temporarily, but his vitality had fallen so low that he could not assimilate the last infusion, and his death followed.

Church League Cared for Family.

During his illness, his wife and child were provided for by the Catholic Woman's League, whose aid was invoked by Mrs. Kaplun. With the exception of two weeks' care for which his church paid, O'Day received free care at the hospital, and no charge was made for the surgical services performed for him.

Aside from being an example of what may be done for a helpless, though deserving sufferer, the case was remarkable for the sympathy which it called forth, and for the human kindness displayed by persons who had never heard of O'Day, and yet who volunteered to give their blood for him.

$2,000,000 HOLDING COMPANY IN GROCERY MERGER ORGANIZED

Scudders-Gale, Amos-James and Haas-Lieber Firms to Consolidate, but Operate Independently.

The organization of a $2,000,000 holding company for the consolidaton of the Scudders-Gale Grocery Co., with a similar combination effected last year between the Amos-James Grocery Co. and the Haas-Lieber Grocery Co., was announced yesterday.

The three companies will continue to operate independently as formerly except that duplication of effort will be eliminated where possible. The three companies will maintain their present executive and sales forces, except that A. H. Gale Sr., who has been connected with the Scudders-Gale Company for 50 years, and J. W. Scudder, who has been with the firm a shorter period, will retire from active business, retaining an interest in the new corporation.

Explains Row at Negro Church.

Rudolph Smith, a field representative of the Universal Negro Improvement Association, stated to the Post-Dispatch yesterday that when he was struck at a meeting Monday night of the association by the Rev. William A. Venable, negro pastor of the True Vine Baptist Church, he was reading a statement of the Advisory Committee urging removal of the officers, not urging the removal himself, as was stated in an account of a police court action Friday in which the preacher was fined $50 on a charge of peace disturbance.

"KEEPING FIT" CAMPAIGN TO BE CONDUCTED AMONG BOYS

Twenty-five organizations have united in forming an executive committee that is to conduct a "keeping fit" campaign among boys during the months of June, July and August at the request of the public health services of the Federal, State and City Governments. It is hoped that 20,000 boys will be reached in illustrated talks on how to preserve their health.

Dr. James Stewart of the hygiene department of the public schools is chairman of the committee. Other organizations that have undertaken to assist in getting the message over are the Y. W. C. A., the Y. M. H. A., the Rotary and Kiwanis clubs and the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

Leaving the City This Summer?

If so, you'll want to know what's going on at home and should have the Post-Dispatch sent by mail from the publication office. The mail rate includes postage. Drop a line to the Post-Dispatch Circulation Department a few days before you go, or if you prefer, telephone Olive or Central 6600.

"DeLuxe" The Bedspring LUXURIOUS

What Causes The Nightmare?

If you are perfectly comfortable you can't have a nightmare—remember that. So be very careful what you eat and how you sleep.

Ordinary coil, woven wire or national springs do not accommodate themselves to the needs of the human anatomy. The body has to assume a strained, unnatural position. Thus, one's sleep is restless and troubled with dreams that make one wake up tired.

The De Luxe Bedspring is constructed scientifically to conform to and support the human body gently, easily, without undue pressure at any point. You can't lie uncomfortably on a De Luxe as it can't sag. A grown-up and a child can lie side by side, each on his own level.

Examine the De Luxe at your dealer's. The more carefully you compare the De Luxe with any spring at any price, the more certainly you will recognize its superior, luxurious comfort. It is always finished in Rome Gray enamel, and on the side rail appears the Rome Quality Trade-Mark, which identifies all Rome products. For wood or metal beds.

HART INTRODUCES BILLS TO CANCEL BUSCH LINE CLAIMS

BILLS WOULD GIVE COMPANY NEW START

Railroad to Connect Its Line With Free Bridge if Ordinances Are Passed.

Proposed ordinances desired by the Manufacturers' Railway (Busch line) to relieve it of liability under its franchises for the payment to the city of $25,000 and forfeiture of the franchises to the city, or the payment of $80,000, are before the Board of Aldermen, having been introduced at Friday's session by Alderman Hart of the Twenty-eighth Ward.

Coupled with these relief provisions there are new franchise grants to the company, permitting it to extend its line north on Second street from Plum to Walnut streets, and enabling it to serve industries now inadequately cared for with railroad facilities.

The request of the company for relief is the result of an inquiry instituted a year ago by Comptroller Nolte. This inquiry developed the fact that the Manufacturers' company had not paid to the city sums in accordance with franchise requirements that it pay $5000 a year for 10 years from 1908 and $10,000 a year thereafter. This amount totaled $80,000.

What Company Agreed to Do.

In addition there were requirements that the company complete rail inclines on both sides of the Mississippi, operate a ferry car transfer and build a belt line on the east side. Failure to meet these requirements, an old ordinance stipulates, the company should pay the city $25,000 and forfeit its franchises. It has not complied with these provisions.

The proposed new ordinances set out that the necessity for the rail inclines and the car ferry are obviated by the construction of the free bridge, and it is proposed in lieu of those provisions to stipulate that the manufacturers' company shall connect with the free bridge, and with the municipally owned switch track extending from Arsenal street to the Chain of Rocks, and with other connecting lines.

At the time Comptroller Nolte began his investigation Mayor Kiel opposed forfeiture of the franchise or efforts to collect the $80,000 on the ground that the company had not been operated at a profit. He said forfeiture of franchises would place an obligation on the city to operate the line, and that he was of the opinion a private company was in a better position to do that than the city.

Government Leases Land.

The Board of Aldermen passed an emergency bill leasing to the Government for 25 years with a privilege of renewal for another 25 years 100,000 square feet of land near the foot of Rutger street for the construction of Government river docks, which are expected to cost approximately $300,000.

The lease provides for no compensation to the city until such time as the docks are operated at a profit, at which time the profit shall be divided between the Government and the city on proportionate investment of each, the land to be figured at a valuation of $100,000.

The bill redistricting the city into wards also was passed. It changes the boundaries of all wards. Mayor Kiel has said he would sign the measure, and it is expected it will become operative within a few days.

AUTOMOBILE CLUB'S OUTING TO ORPHANS TO BE HELD JUNE 15

The Automobile Club of St. Louis is preparing plans for the annual outing for orphan children, which this year will take place June 15. Members of the club are urged to lend their cars and the services of themselves or chauffeurs from 9 a. m. to 1 p. m. on that day to assist in the entertainment.

Last year a few children were disappointed because of the lack of machines. The children are called for at the various orphan homes and taken back. Usually the cars have assembled in front of the St. Louis Club in past years and traveled west together. Last year the children were taken through the Zoo. C. P. Van Graafeiland is chairman of the Children's Day Committee.

GOLDEN JUBILEE CELEBRATION AT SACRED HEART CHURCH TODAY

The Catholic Church of the Sacred Heart will hold golden jubilee services at 10:30 o'clock this morning, at which a memorial to the late Rev. J. J. McCabe, who had been pastor of the parish for the greater part of its 50 years' existence, will be unveiled. Father McCabe died in 1918.

Priests who will take part in the jubilee ceremonies will be the Rev. P. H. Bradley, celebrant; the Rev. Joseph Cruse, deacon; the Rev. Joseph A. McMahon, subdeacon; the Rev. J. J. Towers and the Rev. W. A. Riske, master of ceremonies, and the Rev. J. J. Thompson, who will deliver the jubilee sermon. All these clergymen have at one time been stationed at the Sacred Heart Church.

The ceremonies will be preceded by a parade of all the parishioners led by the parish drum and bugle corps. The procession will form at the parish school at 9:30 o'clock. At the conclusion of the mass a dinner will be served by the women of the parish to the visiting clergymen, charter members and choir.

The Rev. P. J. Dooley has been pastor of the church since the death of Father McCabe.

Cornell-Wood-Board

Amounting in all to $11.00 per 1000 square feet within 6 months

Notice of another reduction in the price of Cornell-Wood-Board is being sent by the Cornell Wood Products Co., of Chicago, to 10,000 Lumber and Building material dealers throughout America.

This latest cut of $3 per thousand square feet follows reductions of $4 in January and $4 in December—making a total saving of $11.

The increasing demand for Cornell-Wood-Board has disclosed that previous reductions received the public's appreciation of this company's effort to bring down building costs.

This latest reduction should hasten the construction, remodeling and repairing of Summer Cottages, Homes, Stores, Offices and Garages, which can be quickly and economically paneled with "Oatmeal" finished Cornell Board instead of lath and plaster.

CHANDLER SIX

Price Always Kept Low
And The Reasons Why

THE Chandler price has always been kept low without sacrifice of quality. This has been made possible by the most efficient management, the most modern factory and the highest financial credit with sources of supply, together with the fact that we have always built one chassis, developed and refined as the years have passed, but never abandoned because constantly more popular.

Some lines have manufactured simultaneously as many as three or four distinct models—not styles of bodies, but chasses. They have come and gone. You can probably imagine what such a policy means in manufacturing cost, in selling prices and in the resale value of such cars.

Chandler resale value is relatively higher than that of any car, after a like period of service.

GROCERS WANT TO HELP LOWER FOOD COSTS

Not to Blame for H. C. L.

The idea that the rank and file of grocers throughout the country are boosting prices for the sake of realizing exorbitant profits is absolutely false.

Retail prices have gone up because the retailer has been compelled to put them up. The grocer has to pay more for his goods, more for rent, more for clerks' salaries; consequently, must charge more.

Shortage of raw materials, of productive labor and a demand that has far outstripped production are the direct causes of present-day prices. As a rule, the grocer is transacting business on the same percentage of profit as in the days of low selling prices.

Grocers depend upon you for a livelihood. They know just as you know that to cheat in any way, shape or form, would kill their trade outright. Common sense says that no intelligent grocer will attempt to "kite" prices beyond legitimate profits. He can't afford to.

BUSINESS NOT A BED OF ROSES

For Man Behind Counter

Because of a scant supply the grocer often has serious trouble in procuring merchandise. He has to stand the sharp cut of complaints from buyers because of high costs. He all too frequently is blamed, when absolutely blameless. And is not, on a whole, making a wider margin of net profit than he did when conditions were normal, trade better satisfied and business transactions decidedly more pleasant.

The grocer is your servant. He is in business to serve your requirements. He doesn't make you a slave to high costs. He is in exactly the same boat you are in. He sells goods you want and ask for. He must meet your demands or get out of business. He has no choice in the matter. He can't go contrary to your wishes.

The consumer can do more towards restoring prices to normal levels than the grocer can. This can be accomplished with positive certainty by buying only food products of sound value and proven economy. Careless buying and rank extravagance are unquestionably vital factors in maintenance of high costs.

When a consumer forces a grocer to sell a sixty-five-cent article where a thirty-five-cent article would answer the purpose equally well he is encouraging production of high priced goods of short value and hampering the manufacture of food products of sound value and fair prices. On the other hand, when the consumer insists on goods of inferior worth he is inviting inevitable waste that stands for loss rather than economy. In such occurrences the consumer, not the grocer, is at fault. For, remember, the grocer must give you what you want despite the fact that he would rather supply your requirements with goods of sterling value at a minimum cost.

FOOD PRODUCTS

Of Utmost Purity and Food Value

If you will but consult your grocer regarding the true values of different grades of goods, you most assuredly will increase the purchasing power of your dollars and strike straight at one of the main roots of high costs by weeding out extravagance.

What the buyer demands more than any other one thing determines the market price of commodities of all sorts. If you demand full-value foods, insist upon having them, you will get them and at legitimate prices. Persistent demand for top-price goods of questionable value will then be sharply curtailed and production stimulated in lines of maximum merit. And with this increased production will come lower costs, just as sure as day follows night.

The solution of the problem so far as the consumer is concerned is simply this: select only proudcts of recognized value, sold at lowest prices permissible under present conditions—eliminate waste—don't encourage the production of price-heavy products—co-operate with your grocer—don't lose sight of the fact that he must cater to your wishes. Your demand for the right type of goods is the best means at your command to straighten out topsy-turvy conditions which are a burden to the conscientious manufacturer, the square-dealing grocer and the consumer who are putting forth every effort under the sun to reduce the high cost of production, high cost of merchandising and high cost of living.

Mr. John A. Ulman, President of the National Retail Grocers' Association of the United States, an eminent authority on food values and intimately acquainted with manufacturing and marketing conditions, urges close co-operation between retailer and consumer and careful discrimination in the selection of merchandise—as a means of restoring prices to normal and promoting the distribution of the best grade of goods.

JUNE 7 TAG DAY FOR VETERANS' CLUBHOUSE

City to Be Canvassed by Women's Organizations for Contributions to Fund.

Tuesday, June 7 has been chosen as Tag day to raise funds for a clubhouse for the St. Louis Chapter of the Disabled American Veterans of the World War, and hundreds of women who were prominent in war work are volunteering to assist in the campaign. N. A. McMillan is chairman of a group of business men acting as an advisory committee.

Mrs. John H. Holliday, who was chairman of the St. Louis committee of the Woman's Liberty Loan Organization, is chairman of the Tag day committees, Mrs. J. P. Higgins, chairman of the Liberty Loan Ward and Precinct Organization, and Mrs. George A. Bass, chairman of the Organization Division of the Food Admininstration, are vice chairmen.

Headquarters of the committee have been opened on the second floor of the St. Louis Union Trust Building Co., Fourth and Locust streets, where a meeting will be held Tuesday morning at 10:30 of the women who will act as chairmen of the districts.

Four-Minute Men to Aid.

Men who acted as Four-Minute Men during the war will speak next week in a number of picture shows, and slides are to be run in the shows. Mayor Kiel will issue a proclamation next week calling upon the city to lend its support to the efforts in behalf of the city's disabled heroes.

A letter from W. F. Carter, president of the St. Louis Chamber of Commerce, to Mrs. N. A. McMillan expressed the indorsement of the chamber as follows:

"The Chamber of Commerce is heartily in favor of, and indorses all proper efforts that may be made looking forward toward the comfort and welfare of the veterans of the war, and especially those who are handicapped in life because of wounds or disability incurred in line of duty. We consider the proposition of a clubhouse for the use of the disabled veterans as strictly in line with this idea, and therefore I am writing to say that this project has the chamber's hearty indorsement. I hope that our good citizens will respond freely to your appeal for funds for the clubhouse."

City Divided Into Districts.

The city has been divided into 15 districts for Tag day, each one to be in charge of an organization, with women on the streets and soliciting funds in offices and residences. The organizations and chairmen of the districts are: No. 1 Catholic Women's League, Mrs. Theodore Benoist; No. 2, Woman's Auxiliary of the Eighty-ninth Division, Mrs. F. A. Wind; No. 3, Patriotic Societies, Mrs. William Bagnell; No. 4, Woman's Auxuliary of the Twelfth Engineers, Mrs. John A. Laird; No. 5, College Club and the Art League, Mrs. Roscoe Anderson and Mrs. Lon Hocker; No. 6, Eighth District of the Federated Clubs, Mrs. John S. Payne; No. 7, Miriam Lodge and Gertrude Society, Mrs. Sam Spiegel; No. 8, Woman's Auxiliary of the 128th Field Artillery, Mrs. Alfred Boehmer; No. 10, Woman's Auxiliary of the Spanish War Veterans, Mrs. Louis Dragon; No. 11, Board of Religious Organizations, Mrs. L. J. Brooks; No. 12, Red Triangle, Y. M. C. A., Mrs. William S. McChesney and Mrs. John Vimont; No. 13, not yet assigned; No. 14, Comforts Committee, Mrs. William A. Stickney and No. 15, Mrs. Harry Hoffman and women of the Twenty-seventh Ward.

What Gives Owners Such Faith in Essex?

The people who know Essex rely on it chiefly, for the simple reason they have never encountered a situation of which it was not master.

More than by any other factor men have been guided in their preference for the Essex by the endurance and reliability which unmistakably sets it apart from other light cars.

Yet the confidence of Essex owners that their car will go anywhere, with a possibility of trouble so remote that it does not even enter into calculations, contains something more than a feeling of absolute assurance in its mechanical reliability.

No car could possess a more sincere belief in its goodness, its every-day dependability, and its capacity to do the task assigned without fret and fuss, than that which 50,000 owners bestow upon the Essex.

To Whiten and Clear the Skin

Muddy or sallow complexions, or skins that are marred by freckles or blemishes, should be cleared and whitened in a very short time by using the following:

Mix some glycerine and zintone and dissolve in water. You will find the result to be a beautiful white cream, and by its liberal use a tremendous improvement will be noted in the complexion within a few days. The ingredients may be obtained in any drug store.

You Who Have So Often Wished for Something That Really Would Take Away the Wrinkles.

Just learn what a difference there can be between a cream freshly made at home and one that has been standing for months on a druggist's shelf.

The skin can be brought back to its original plumpness and vigor by the following formula. An astonishing result is the quick disappearance of wrinkles, little and big, crows' feet and lines of age. It is simple and can be prepared in a few moments, by adding to half a pint of water one tablespoonful of glycerine and two ounces of eptol, obtained from your druggist. This takes years from your appearance and is always sure and positive in its work if you will apply it liberally, every day.

To Have the Arm Pits Soft and Free from Hair.

You can be sure that there is but one sensible way to remove hairs from the arm pits, and, in fact, from any part of the body. It is foolish to "burn" them off, injuring and spotting the skin. Just moisten the hairs with sulfo solution. This will actually dissolve away the hairs completely, and leave the skin superbly soft and smooth. It will not irritate the most delicate skin.

Sulfo solution may be obtained at nearly any drug store

For Rough, Freckled or Blotchy Complexions

The freckling, discoloring or roughening to which delicate skins are subject after exposure to wind or sun, often appearing at this season, may readily be gotten rid of. Ordinary mercolized wax, spread lightly over the face before retiring, and removed in the morning with soap and water, completely peels off the disfigured surface skin. Get an ounce of the wax at any druggist's. There's no more effective way of banishing freckles or other cutaneous defects. Little skin particles come off each day, so the process doesn't even temporarily mar the complexion, and one soon acquires a brand-new, spotless, girlishly beautiful face.

Wrinkles caused by weather, worry or illness are best treated by a simple solution of powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in one-half pint witch hazel. Bathing the face in this produces a truly marvelous transformation.

Two Theaters Dispute Claim Of "Coolest in the World"

THE claim made by the Missouri Theater, where Elsie Ferguson scored an instantaneous hit yesterday afternoon when her wonderful picture-drama "Sacred and Profane Love" began a week's engagement, that it is "The Coolest Theater in the World" has not been allowed to go unchallenged. Last week when the official temperature of St. Louis was up in the 90's the thermometer inside the Missouri showed but 65. However, Johan Petsky, a fur buyer recently back from Russia, says that in Moscow last winter he attended two theaters when the temperature in the buildings was 10 below zero. No theaters in this country, however, have attempted to dispute that the Missouri Theater, during the summer, is "the coolest theater in the world," and a first-class summer resort.

BETTER POSITION OF RAILROAD LIST FEATURES MARKET

Securities Too Irregular Past Week to Afford Any Definite Signs With Regard to the Future Trend—Deflation Period Discussed.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The Evening Post, in its weekly copyrighted financial review, says:

"Business developments during the past week have brought signs of further improvement, though the evidence is not so pronounced as the state of trade earlier in the month had led many to expect. Some of the recent events which seemed for a time to be indications of returning prosperity, have proved to be of transitory effect. There has been an unfavorable reaction in the securities and foreign exchange markets and a slackening in the operations of several industries which earlier in the spring gave promise of renewed activity. As is common in this stage of readjustment, however, there is a conspicuous lack of uniformity in the trend of different lines of business. In this phase of the business cycle there is a confused crossing of lines with improvement in one quarter being offset by slackening or liquidation in another. There is much in the present situation to support the view that the process of liquidation is now nearing its end, and that business has already emerged from the bottom of the trough of depression. It is axiomatic that financial improvement must precede improvement in trade and industry, and the steadily increasing strength of our banking position is therefore of good omen. The lowering of the discount position rate has favorably affected the business morale and with present tendencies continuing, a further reduction of money rates is possible within the near future.

"The course of events overseas has likewise affected business in this country in a very irregular way. While the settlement of German reparations question should normally have produced a favorable reaction, such a tendency was offset to some degree by the Silesian controversy and the increasing industrial tension in England resulting from the coal strike. The strength manifested by the foreign exchanges for several previous weeks suddenly gave way to weakness, and the steadily accumulating gains were abruptly nullified. The violent fluctuations proved as puzzling in the foreign as in the domestic markets, and political disturbances speculative operations and unusual financial operations by foreign Governments were all offered in explanation. While it is possible that each of these may have played its part, the weight of opinion inclines to the view that the predominant factor was preparation for the payments to the allies by Germany at the end of the month.

Check in Declines.

"While the trend of wholesale prices and of living costs continues downward, the decline appears to have been definitely checked in the case of certain staple farm products, notably cotton and wheat, in which liquidation had been unusually severe. Consistent gains were made in the price of wheat during the first half of the week, and although the market declined abruptly towards the end the net result was a small advance. Cotton showed weakness in the first few days, but reports from private sources, indicating an unfavorable condition, brought a rally at the end of the week. An increase in the consumption of both wool and cotton, with consequent reductions in the heavy surplus stocks is shown in the latest Government reports and this points towards some easing in the condition of frozen credits.

"The securities market, which is supposed to foreshadow coming conditions in business, has been too irregular during the past week to afford any definite signs with regard to the future trend. As compared with their performance earlier in the month, stocks have generally shown a reactionary tendency, but recent market operations have been too largely of a professional nature to serve in their alleged capacity as a business barometer. The outstanding feature of the week was the improvement in the market position of railway stocks, which is partly to be attributed to the prospective wage reductions by the Railroad Labor Board and partly to the better financial conditions of the roads, as indicated in their published statements for April. These show not only a small increase in gross income, but also a reduction in operating costs. Coupled with these factors is the report showing a substantial decrease in the number of idle freight cars.

"The steel trade which also was once regarded as a good business barometer, ceased some months ago to exercise any such function. Recent expectations of revival in the iron and steel industry has not been realized and the operators expect no increase in orders in the summer months, which are normally a dull period. While the new prices arrived at some weeks ago when the independent companies raised their quotations and the United States Steel Corporation reduced its prices have been generally maintained, buyers are holding off in anticipation of further recessions. At present the output of the steel mills is only about a third of the capacity of the plants, with the corporation getting rather the larger share in the distribution of orders.

Nearing Deflation End.

"With such a reduced scale of operations it is maintained by representatives of the steel industry that present prices are not profitable and that further reductions must wait on a revival of business and lower costs of transportation. The operators, however, have now a disposition to shade prices when booking exceptional orders.

"While there is good ground for the belief that the country is nearing the end of the period of deflation, there now appears to be very little basis for the view that the end will be signalized by a general upward turn of prices, such as occurred at the end of the short periods of depression that came with a fair degree of regularity at three or four year intervals the last two decades. In 1903-04 the period of readjustment lasted 16 months, in 1907-08 13 months in 1910-11 14 months, in 1913-15, 16 months. If the country were now in one of these minor periods of depression there would be some reason to expect recovery within the maximum period of duration of the earlier periods. As prices began to break after reaching the peak in March, 1920, this would fix the date of recovery, at the furthest, at July of this year. There is strong evidence, however, that the country has entered one of the major price cycles like those that began in 1815 and in 1865, and in each case, as in the present instance, at the close of a great war. If this judgment is correct, there is reason to believe that, as in the two earlier movements, substantial business recovery will be attained while the curve of price levels still has a gradual downward trend."

"With the Stock Exchange closed today and with a Saturday half holiday in London causing the foreign exchange markets there to close before the opening in New York, there was no trading in securities and sterling in this market. Cables from London indicated some reaction from the decline in exchange on yesterday and the nominal quotation of sterling in this market today was $3.89¼ as compared with a closing price the day before of $3.87⅝."

SEE NO IMMEDIATE FUNDING OF DEBT OF BRITISH TO U. S.

London Financiers Believe That Service Even on British Debt Will Not Be Fully Resumed for Another Year—Problem of Exchange.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch and New York Evening Post.

LONDON, May 28.—Broadly speaking, the views of the National district concerning the international political and economic outlook are slightly more hopeful. Optimism, however, is temporarily checked by the severity of domestic and local difficulties. It is impossible to ignore the extent to which our coal and other strike movements are believed to be situated by foreign bolshevik influences. Indeed, that circumstance probably generally explains the difficulty of reaching a settlement even when the main parties concerned in the dispute, like the capitalists and the rank and file of labor, apparently are ready to agree.

Lord Inchcape has issued a stern warning pointing out that, as compared with pre-war years, we are exporting hardly more than half in value of the very things on which our industrial life depends.

No Funding Expected Soon.

President Harding's statement on British loan arrangements, though closely involving expectations, requires certain explanations. We, for example, believe that service on the British debt will not be fully resumed for another year, which would suggest that a funding operation will not be immediate. Moreover, quite apart from any inconvenience to our own exchequer the disturbance to exchange when service is resumed might also adversely affect your own trade activities, though it is recognized, of course, that such a check to trade might even emphasize your demand for gilt edged stocks, including British bonds.

Our monetary position is directly involved in the coal situation, a real settlement of which will make the bank rate 6 per cent, after which the tendency will be most uncertain, because the policy will be closely to watch developments. Any indications of speculative activities would involve a quick rise in the rate, but the absence of such tendencies and indications of improvement in genuine trade might occasion a 5 per cent rate.

Exchange and Exports.

Insufficient attention is given to the prolonged phenomenal activities of the exchanges, which now constitute an important item in invisible importance. Because London is the chief center of exchange operations it is believed that exchange profits constitute an important invisible export item in spite of our adverse trade balance.

Foreign Exchange and Domestic Money

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28.—The movements of foreign exchange during the past week were of a disturbing character and the fluctuations in leading European exchanges were wider than at any preceding time during the current year. The chief feature was the decline in sterling exchange of 14 cents from the rate prevailing a week ago. This collapse in the market for sterling exchange unsettled the entire European exchange situation and was the cause of a good deal of conjecture and general search for some special reason for the sudden downward movement.

In international banking circles it was insisted that many factors contributed to cause the break in exchange on Monday. One banking institution here sold £12,000,000 for a single client, but in addition to that selling there was heavy buying of dollars in London by Germany in connection with reparation payments to be made in the shape of credits accumulated in this city.

It was insisted that the sterling exchange had been overbought by speculative interests and by some people who are said to have thought the strength prevailing recently was of a lasting character. In the past two days, when the decline was most violent, reports were current that the British Government had been a buyer of exchange for the purpose of stabilizing the market, and that it had withdrawn this support. In some circles it was insisted that the heaviest selling of sterling was for speculative operations for foreign account.

French exchange had an extremely wide range, falling from 8.68 to 8.15. The exchange position of the group of countries designated as neutral in war time also collapsed, guilders checks falling from 36.05 to 34.40, and pesetas checks declined from 13.83 to 13.05.

A better situation prevailed in Latin-American countries, paper pesos checks on Buenos Aires moving up from 31.50 to 34.00.

Prime mercantile paper, 6¾ to 7 per cent.

Prices were only nominal in the foreign exchange market today, as the London market closed before the local opened.

—SPECIAL DAILY—

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Wall street has shown again this week that it is more concerned with the immediate facts of trade and corporation earnings than it is with the continued improvement in the credit situation, or the long range optimism commonly expressed by leading business men. The price movement on the Stock Exchange has been very uneven and some groups have offered better resistance than others to selling pressure. But the market has been compelled to give its attention to the passing of dividends and cutting of dividends which is going on in various lines of industry, that the readjustment of prices and output has not yet been completed. These have been the important considerations for the moment, but the time is coming, and it seems close at hand, to some, when the market for securities will be more responsive to the broader veiw of things.

This view stresses the many indications that commercial and financial conditions throughout the world are gradually getting back to normal. First of all is the remarkable recovery in the banking system with the Federal Reserve ratio back to the highest in nearly three days. Second, there is the change in the economic position of Europe from one of greater uncertainty to one of more promise. The allied nations have balanced their budgets, brought through careful economy their purchases in the foreign markets below the level of their sales, and have within the last six months been paying off war debts at a rapid pace. The next step may be the funding of our Government loans to Europe, reckoned at some $25,000,000,000. This was hinted at publicly by the President of the United States this week, who made the point that these credits would then become a live asset for the benefit of the American people. The obvious way in which such benefit would be conferred would be through applying the interest which Europe would pay on this funded debt to meeting the interest on our war obligations, thereby lifting quite a part of the present burden off the shoulders of the taxpayers.

Steel as a Barometer.

In the third place, there is the deflation which has occurred in prices, in industrial production and in wages. While it is true that in certain directions this readjustment has not been completed, this should not obscure the fact that in many other directions it has been very thorough. It is time, some claim, that the old idea of steel being "the barometer of trade" was abandoned. The history of the last two decades, they point out, contains several notable instances where the general trade movement has been only slightly affected by very wide fluctuations in the steel business. Moreover, it is contended, steel is usually the last to conform to a downward swing in industry and the last and most reluctant to recover. There is to be further cutting of steel prices, some think, as Judge Gary and the other leading representatives of the industry have said as much, they argue. But this should not take away from the importance of the reported turn for the better in textile manufactures, in hide and leather and shoes, in the distributive trade and—more striking than any—in railway traffic

The Railroad Situation.

The excellent showing in railway statements for April bears out the other testimony, such as the idle car statistics and the figures on car loading, to the effect that the railroads passed through their darkest hour two months ago, and since then have been on the mend. One of the main causes—scarcely yet appreciated—for the sudden slump in railway traffic beginning with the month of January, was the violent decline in our foreign commerce. As the president of the New York Central pointed out to the Senate Committee on Interstate Commerce, the decrease of $67,300,000 in exports for January and the $265,000,000 decrease in imports was accompanied during that month by a falling off of 33,600,000 tons in the haul of the railways.

In March the export decrease rose to $432,000,000 while the reduction in imports amounted to $272,000,000. But by that time the railroads had inaugurated their drastic program of retrenchment and the effect of this was visible in the series increases in net earnings despite the falling off in gross. The April accomplishments along this line were still more signal than those of March. What this means for the investment group is summarized by the controller of the New York Central, who, commenting upon his company's April net of $4,100,000 or $2,900,000 more than the income of a year ago, said:

"These figures should be distinctly encouraging to all interested in the wellbeing of the railroads."

Discounting Bad News.

With the progress thus made in reducing operating expenses, the 15 to 25 per cent wage cut, which it is expected the Labor Board will announce on Wednesday, ought to be satisfying to all except a few roads which have been running badly behind. Another week or so is expected by some to see a number of other industrial companies reducing or passing their dividends, but this action has been so well advertised in most instances, that it is hardly likely to have much further effect.

WHEAT MARKET SLOW AND NERVOUS IN CHICAGO TRADE

CHICAGO, May 28.—Trading in wheat, corn and oats was dull and featureless on the Chicago Board of Trade today. Only professional traders seemed to be in the market and their trades were mostly of the evening up variety. Closing prices were generally a fraction higher except for May wheat which was bid up in the final hour for a net gain of ½ to 2¾ cents. July wheat finished ½ to ¾ cents net higher, corn options were ⅛ higher and oats varied from ½ lower for May to ⅛@¾c higher for other months.

Business in July wheat was done with an eye to the action of May. There was some support of deferred deliveries on the breaks, but about equal selling orders came out on bulges. Reports were somewhat more favorable but the avsence of export and foreign exchange developments made the situation too uncertain to admit of extensive trading.

Corn showed moderate firmness early, but weakened whenever any selling started. Cash houses were on both sides of the market. A difference of 1¾ between July and September caused some buying of the former and selling of the latter. Oats followed corn.

Provisions averaged a bit higher, but trade was unusually light despite the increase in hog prices.

Dry Goods Market.

NEW YORK, May 28.—Wholesale dry goods markets were generally closed today, traders getting an early start on the extra vacation Monday. Hesitation in importing engagements became general, because of the uncertainty regarding values that would be imposed on incoming merchandise under the new tariff law.

Exchanges Closed Monday, Decoration Day; No Stock Sessions Held Yesterday

THE New York Stock Exchange, New York curb market, New York Cotton Exchange and St. Louis Stock Exchange were closed Saturday, and will not reopen until Tuesday morning.

The St. Louis Merchants' Exchange and Chicago Board of Trade held sessions Saturday, but will be closed Monday, along with the other exchanges, in observance of Decoration day.

The local livestock and produce exchanges also will be closed Monday.

WILD FLUCTUATIONS IN WHEAT WEEK'S FEATURE

Wild fluctuations in the wheat market during the past week, dependent largely on weather changes which might make or wreck the winter crop, were also given impetus by abnormal supply conditions affecting the windup of contracts for May delivery. On the whole, bulls had the greater advantage.

Wheat climbed rapidly most of the time during the first part of the week, high temperatures and absence of moisture arousing apprehension, field experts meanwhile sending crop damage reports first from Kansas, then from Nebraska and later from Missouri. The Kansas yield in one sensational message was pictured as having shrunk 35,000,000 bushels from what the Government report had pointed to. Meanwhlie, the U. S. visible supply total dropped to below 10,000,000 bushels, and the stock of wheat in Chicago fell to nearly nothing, threatening a last-of-the-month squeeze against May shorts. On the other hand, bears had an inning toward the end of the week, owing to liberal shipments being headed to Chicago from other leading terminals, and because of timely general rains. Violent breaks in exchange rates on Europe tended also to weaken values.

Unusually active shipping demand for corn to go East gave decided strength to corn and oats, despite big receipts of corn.

In the provision market, slackened call for meats, together with downturns in the value of hogs acted as a counter-balance against the effect of higher prices for grain.

July Wheat Higher Saturday.

July wheat ruled strong and higher on the Merchants' Exchange Saturday, but little interest was shown in May. Deliveries on May contracts did not measure up to expectations, only 5000 bushels being delivered, and this being held by the recipient. Cash wheat markets generally were lower. Locally there was a drop of 1c to 4c in soft and 2c on hard winter. Elevators and local outside mills bought. Some shipping orders also were filled. A sale of May wheat at $1.50 was made after the close.

Cash corn and oats were in fair to good demand. Corn offerings were cleaned up at steady to ½c higher prices.

St. Louis grain receipts today were: Wheat, 49 cars local and 46 through; corn, 89 cars local and 23 through; oats, 39 cars local and 15 through; hay, 185 tons local and 34 through.

Northwestern car lots today were: Duluth, 64; Winnipeg, 111.

Stocks in St. Louis public elevators today were: Wheat, 103,286; corn, 364,950; oats, 354,954.

Comparative primary receipts Saturday were: Wheat, 1,201,000 bushels, 901,000 last week, 685,000 last year. Corn, 1,469,000 Saturday, 509,000 last week, 547,000 last year. Oats, 797,000 Saturday, 445,000 last week, 529,000 last year.

Comparative primary shipments Saturday were: Wheat, 719,000 Saturday, 796,000 last week, 893,000 last year. Corn, 764,000 Saturday, 370,000 last wek, 245,000 last year. Oats, 356,000 Saturday, 322,000 last week, 592,000 last year.

FORDS RUN 34 MILES ON GALLON GASOLINE

Start Easy in Coldest Weather—Other Cars Show Proportionate Saving.

A new carburetor which cuts down gasoline consumption of any motor and reduces gasoline bills from one-third to one-half is the proud achievement of the Air-Friction Carburetor Co., 486 Madison St., Dayton, Ohio. This remarkable invention not only increases the power of all motors from 30 to 50 per cent, but enables every one to run slow on high gear. It also makes it easy to start a Ford or any other car in the coldest weather. You can use the very cheapest grade of gasoline or half gasoline and half kerosene and still get more power and more mileage than you now get from the highest test gasoline. Many Ford owners say they now get as high as 45 to 50 miles to a gallon of gasoline. So sure are the manufacturers of the immense saving their new carburetor will make that they offer to send it on 30 days' trial to every car owner. As it can be put on or taken off in a few minutes by anyone, all readers of this paper who want to try it should send their name, address and make of car to the manufacturers at once. They also want local agents to whom they offer exceptionally large profits. Write them today.

HOG MARKET LOWEST IN MORE THAN FIVE YEARS

COMPARATIVE RECEIPTS.

	Last Wk.	Prev. Wk.	Yr. Ago.
Cattle and calves	15,991	15,520	18,343
Sheep	24,181	19,255	13,776
Hogs	71,799	55,008	85,514
Horses and mules	468	630	948
Totals	112,439	90,413	118,581

Drastic declines in virtually all departments of the market featured the livestock trade at the St. Louis National Stockyards the past week. Liberal receipts, especially of hogs and sheep; unsatisfactory markets at the big Eastern beef centers and the advent of summer weather were the main factors in causing the severe break in prices.

Receipts of cattle and calves for the six-day period totaled 15.991 head, a large percentage of which embraced common grass stock. Barring a number of consignments of good to choice steers or yearlings, quality of the offerings averaged medium to plain. The run included about 60 cars of South Texas range cattle, the bulk of which was shown in quarantine alleys.

The beef steer market broke 25@50c Monday, followed by marked weakness in trade succeeding days up to Thursday, when, under the influence of diminished receipts, decline was checked. Compared to a week ago, most steers averag 50@75c lower, the greatest depreciation in price having occurred on the heavier grades. Some medium and light-weight steers appeared no more than 25c lower.

Top prices for the various weight steers were as follows: Yearling weight (under 1000 lbs.), $9.15 per 100 lbs. for short load; heavy-weight steers, $8.75 for drove averaging 1304 lbs. to the head; extreme weights, $8.15 paid for 1714-lb. bullocks. Bulk of all native steers sold from $7.50@8, with Texas beeves selling through a range of $5.75@6.30. In addition to packer outlet for steers, there was a fair order demand, over 65 cars of steers being shipped North or East.

The trend in prices was also downward in butcher stock. Choice yearlings broke 25c, medium and common kinds 50@75c. Top was $9.15 and the bulk sold from $6@8, commoner kinds dipping as low as $5. Butcher cows broke 50@75c, extreme cases ruling off $1. The range in price was from $4@6.50 and the bulk late in the week sold from $4.50@5.50. Canner and cutter cows ruled steady to 25c lower, the range in price being from $2@4. Bulls declined 25@50c, the smaller figure applying most generally to beef grades, the larger to bolognas. Sales ruled from $3.90@5.50 most generally, light-weight butchers scoring up to $6.

Receipts of stocker and feeder cattle comparatively light and demand was small. Values declined 25c on most grades, extreme cases reflecting a break of 50c.

In common with other stock, veal calves hit the toboggan, values closing $1.25 lower than a week ago. The bulk of lights during the week sold from $8.00@9.00. Common and throwout calves and southern yearlings finished unevenly lower.

Receipts Depress Hogs.

Sharply increased receipts had a very depressing effect on the local hog market, which drifted back to the low level of April 26, which represents the lowest point since January, 1916. Market is $1.00 to $1.25 lower than it closed a week previous. Trade closed last week at $9.25, whereas the top in the final session the past week was $8.10. Considering the way the bulk of the hogs sold in the two closing sessions, it is safe to call the market the lowest in over five years. Pigs closed a good big dollar lower and rough hogs 75c off. Pigs and light shipping grades were most favored and sold at $8 or better, with best light butchers at $8, good 200-pound hogs $7.75@7.90 and stronger weights, $7.50@7.60. Rough sows sold at $6.50 largely at the close and stags at $5.50. Receipts for the week were 71,799, as against 55,008 a week previous.

Sheep and lamb supply during the week just closed was by far the largest of the year. Packers having access to a supply of 25,000 took freely of the better kinds and ignored the plainer offerings. This was the condition all during the week, but most pronounced near the closed when the condition amounted to nothing less than demoralized on medium, plain and light lambs. Sheep were in the rut all week, but were unsalable at the close unless shown with some good lambs. Prices are $1.50 lower all along than the close of the preceeding week. Choice spring lambs are bringing $10.50@11; culls, $5.00; medium, light and plain kinds, unsalable. Fat sheep sold from $4.50@5.00 early, but at the close heavy sheep brought only $3.00 and choice light ewes $4.00. Canners sold from 50c to $1.00 and choppers $2 per cwt., at the close.

Horses Shade Easier.

Due principally to slightly increased receipts, the St. Louis horse market failed to average as strong last week as the week preceding. Horses on commission totaled slightly over 550 head and a fairly early clearance of these was made.

Buyers form the South and East engaged in the competition, demand showing a preference for the medium and low priced stock. Eastern work horses and chunks moved in reasonably good order, also most grades of Southerners. Demand was not so broad for the big draft types.

The average trade in mules for the week was not materilly changed. Activity was directed almost wholly to extra big mules or miners, with just a little outlet for good pitters. Common and green stuff found demand negligible. Receipts were fair, offering on commission embracing slightly over 200 head.

The Doctor's Advice

by Dr. Lewis Baker

Lady writes: "I am writing for advice to cure myself of pimples and boils. My skin seems too oily."

Answer: The organs which eliminate waste matter need attention. Obtain Sulpherb tablets (not sulphur tablets) and take regularly as per directions for several months.

Answer: To relieve chronic cold, sore throat, bronchitis, I would advise the use of concentrated essence Mentho-Laxene. Purchase this at any drug store in 2½-oz. packages and mix according to directions given on bottle and you will very shortly be relieved of bronchial trouble. This will not only relieve, but will correct, and is very pleasant to take.

"Father" writes: "Should a man of forty-six find himself utterly incapacitated? Am weak, nervous, timid, self-conscious. Do not sleep well. Arise with a tired feeling, lame back and often have severe headache in the back part of head. Fickle appetite, but when I do eat, do not get strength."

Answer: To use a common expression, "you have exceeded the speed limit" and your nervous system needs the aid of an invigorating tonic medicine. Get a tube of Cadomene tablets. Take as per directions and continue treatment several months if necessary.

Young Miss writes: "My hair is combing out, my scalp itches and dandruff is much annoying, and I want something to cure these conditions."

Answer: For hair and scalp troubles I have never found anything to equal the beneficial results of a thorough treatment of plain yellow Minyol. It is cooling, cleansing and invigorating, and thousands now use it regularly as a hair and scalp tonic.

"Restless" writes: "I am uneasy about my health. My kidneys and bladder are not well. Have spells of depression, do not sleep well. My ankles puff, and under my eyes I have 'bags.' Please prescribe."

Answer: Your symptoms indicate you need treatment to tone up the functions of kidneys and bladder. Obtain in sealed tubes Balmwort tablets and take as per directions for several weeks, or until relief is experienced.

Mr. A writes: "When a person becomes uncomfortable from excess fat do you believe in reducing with medicine treatment?"

Answer: The treatment of excess fat for reduction can be carried out safely with Arbolone tablets. I do not advise indiscriminate medication, but this treatment seems to be uniformly successful.

Acting "under a grave emergency," the Tuberculosis Society yesterday notified Mayor Kiel that it would guarantee the salaries of the three municipal visiting nurses whom Comptroller Nolte has ordered dropped by June 1 because of lack of funds, until the city can make provision for them out of the municipal treasury.

In announcing this offer, the exact amount and character of the work now being performed by the three nurses was set forth, as follows: They are caring for 1428 cases, 1050 of which are child welfare cases; 312 tuberculosis cases and 66 cases of prospective mothers.

"It is the unanimous opinion (of the Board of Directors) that if these three nurses were discharged the municipality would be taking a step backward in public health work," said the society's letter to the Mayor. "It feels that if these three nurses should drop out at this time of the year, it would be fundamentally wrong and dangerous to public health." The Mayor is asked, therefore, to avail the city of the society's offer, and retain the nurses.

At the meeting of the directors Friday it was stated that most cities instead of dropping nurses at this period of the year, usually employ extra ones.

A statement of the number of clinics, nurses and clinical physicians now being maintained by the city, the Red Cross and the Tuberculosis Society was given out. It states that eight clinics are being maintained by the city, three by the Red Cross and two by the society.

The city staff of visiting nurses consists of 25 nurses and a head nurse; and the Red Cross supports four. Of the salaries of clinicians, the city pays for two full-time and 11 part-time, and the Red Cross pays for six part-time.

A summary of the work now being done by the visiting nurses shows that they are supervising 2912 cases of tuberculosis, 9000 cases of child welfare and 616 cases of prospective mothers.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, May 28.—It became known here today that Dr. Cortez Enloe of Jefferson City, prominent in local Republican affairs and a close friend of Gov. Hyde, was elected secretary of the State Board of Health during a meeting of the board at St. Joseph this week in connection with the convention of the State Medical Society.

Enloe was appointed a member of the board by Hyde about two weeks ago. As secretary of the board, Enloe will receive $2400 a year, the salary being fixed by statute. His predecessor on the board, Dr. George H. Jones, formerly of Jefferson City, who resigned in January as member and secretary of the board and State Health Commissioner, received $4800 a year, however, as commissioner and performed the duties of secretary without additional salary.

Enloe said today that the board had not elected a health commissioner, but would do so at a meeting to be held here in the near future. The salary for this office is fixed by the board.

Considerable comment was made from time to time on Hyde's failure to appoint a successor to Jones, the posts of secretary and health commissioner having remained vacant more than four months.

Enloe is one of the regular members of Hyde's "Golf Cabinet," playing in the gubernatorial party at the Country Club quite frequently.

The funeral will be held at 2 p. m. tomorrow from the family residence, under the auspices of the Gatzweiler Post of the G. A. R., of which Ringe was a charter member. Interment will be at Oak Grove Cemetery. Ringe is survived by his widow, four sons, two daughters and several grandchildren.

EDITORIAL

"So You Are From St. Louis, the City of Beautiful Homes."

This remark was made to me by a New Yorker recently, in our Eastern office, on being introduced to him.

He said on a recent visit to St. Louis a friend had driven him about, and he was so impressed with our many beautiful homes and especially with their spacious, restful lawns and gardens.

St. Louisans will agree with me when I say that in the Spring, Summer and Fall there is no place so comfortable as your veranda, porch or lawn, if you wish to make it so.

Live outdoors as much as you possibly can in our St. Louis climate from May until November.

FLOW OF CAPITAL INTO APARTMENTS NEARS FLOODTIDE

Flats Also Share in Dividend Which Real Estate Interests Expect to Continue Throughout Summer.

WESTMORELAND DEAL ABOUT CLOSED

Price for Big Kitchenette Hotel Said to Be $600,000—Plans Perfected for Several Large Apartments.

By Berry Moore.

Capital is flowing in unprecedented volume into apartment buildings and flats. Many transactions in properties of these types were concluded the past week, while negotiations are pending for numerous others, indicating that the market for them will continue at floodtide throughout the summer.

According to dependable sources in real estate circles, negotiations have been practically concluded for sale of the Westmoreland, an eight-story elevator kitchenette hotel at 5330 Pershing avenue. The price quoted for the property is $600,000. The identity of the purchaser has not been disclosed, but it is understood that he purposes to pay the entire purchase price in cash, even to the extent of paying off a deed of trust for $180,000 held by the Title Guaranty Trust Co., which financed construction of the building. The Westmoreland is owned by Sam Koplar, who admitted that negotiations involving its control had assumed definite form.

The building, which was completed two years ago, is of superior construction. It has 79 apartments of two and three room efficiency. It has both passenger and freight elevators, and is replete with labor-saving devices. The building is 100 feet wide, it being in the center of a lot 150x225 feet, thus leaving 25 feet of space on either side.

The gross annual rentals from the Westmoreland, according to Koplar, aggregate $90,000, which is approximately double those at which the apartments were leased when the building was completed. The sale of the property predicated on the price mentioned will yield Koplar a record profit on the basis at which he recently acquired it from Sam Hamburg Jr. and others, according to real estate circles.

Several Apartments Projected.

Plans were revealed during the week for several lofty apartment buildings, the most important of these contemplating an 11-story structure of the kitchenette type projected by John U. Menteer, president of the Menteer Realty Co. Several sites are under consideration for the proposed improvement which, it is estimated, will cost $2,000,000.

With plans for the erection of this building, Menteer held an option on the William K. Bixby block at King's highway and Lindell boulevard, providing for its purchase at an attractive price. The option, which was acquired about eight months ago, was allowed to lapse two months ago owing to the continued high cost of construction.

Soon afterward Chase Ulman began negotiating with Bixby for the block as a site for a hotel and two apartments to cost, in the aggregate, $5,000,000. On April 25 Ulman closed a contract with Bixby for purchase of the block within 45 days at a price $50,000 higher than that agreed to by Menteer.

Ulman now threatens to abandon his hotel and apartment building projects should the city decide to carry through its plans for a circular drive at King's highway and Lindell boulevard, as a means of enhancing the esthetic beauty of the main entrance to Forest Park. This proposed civic improvement would necessitate the cutting off of 90 feet of Lindell boulevard and 100 feet of the King's highway frontage of the Bixby block.

Menteer May Get Site.

Menteer, on the other hand, would not object to the circular drive; in fact, he believes that it would be an attractive feature and, pending the decision of the city as to this matter, he will hold his plans in abeyance to the extent of not deciding on a site for his project.

"Ulman simply has outbid me for the Bixby block," said Menteer yesterday in this connection, "but if he does not want it owing to the circular drive, I am in a position to take the site over on a cash basis."

The Menteer project contemplates a 550-room structure, half of which will be available for hotel purposes and half for kitchenette apartments.

Menteer also had an option on the block on King's highway opposite Forest Park, between Forest Park boulevard and Laclede avenue, as a site for a 10-story apartment building on a less pretentious scale, but execution of this project has also been deferred on account of the cost of materials and labor. A company, of which Erastus Wells is president, owns this block.

A LOT 100x200 feet at the southwest corner of Washington boulevard and Taylor avenue has been acquired by the Liberty Hospital as a site for a hospital building to cost $500,000. Details of the plans are being perfected.

The present Liberty Hospital is at Delmar boulevard and Pendleton avenue.

The transaction for the site was effected by Daly & McCabe, in connection with the Dosenbach Realty Co.

Dr. J. H. Crenshaw, one of the foremost osteopaths in the city, is at the head of the hospital.

Castleman Structure Purchased by Gustave Cytron Through Haller Company.

The most conspicuous South Side feature of the week was the purchase by Gustave Cytron of the Castleman Apartments at 2005 South Grand avenue for $125,000. The negotiation was conducted by Alfred D. Ruth of the Julius Haller Real Estate Co., on behalf of the Sarah Investment Co., while J. F. Cornwell & Sons represented Cytron.

The building comprises 24 efficiency apartments, including dining room, sun room and kitchentte with waiter service, and has hardwood floors throughout. Each apartment is equipped with two concealed beds, thus giving six-room efficiency.

The site has a frontage on Grand avenue of 122 feet and on Castleman of 135 feet, and is opposite Reservoir Park, it occupying one of the highest points in the city.

The structure is regarded as the finest of its type on the South Side. It is served by the Fourth street and the Grand avenue car lines.

REALTY FIRM'S SALES DURING FIRST YEAR EXCEED $1,000,000

The Hartwig-Dischinger Realty Co. has just completed its first year in business. During that period President Hartwig states the company sold realty amounting to more than $1,000,000, mostly located in North St. Louis, and financed buying of homes to the extent of more than $500,000.

President Hartwig states that judging by inquiries from prospective purchasers of homes and flats, there will be no letup for that class of real estate for sometime. He also states that several bungalows recently erected on lots sold by this company have been sold before the buildings were completd.

SYNDICATE TO LEASE FULL BLOCK AT 18TH AND PINE

Garage Expected to Be Constructed on Site—Deal Involves $350,000 According to Reports.

A syndicate formed by Sam Hamburg Jr., and others, will acquire a 99-year lease of the vacant block from Eighteenth to Seventeenth streets, and from Chestnut to Pine streets, it is reported. The property is owned by the Eighteenth Street Realty Co., of which Isaac Lionberger is president.

While it has not been disclosed, it is reported that F. L. Cornwell, attorney, and a big factor in the Famous Players organization, is the commanding figure in the operation, though remaining in the background. W. J. Holbrook, president of the Holbrook-Blackwelder Real Estate Trust Co., is conducting the negotiations.

A garage on an extensive plan is projected for this block, which has been lying vacant for years. Messrs. Cornwell and Hamburg have been the foremost figures in building operations in St. Louis for a number of years, they having built the Delmonte and Missouri Theaters and many high-class apartment buildings, including the eight-story Westmoreland at 5330 Pershing avenue, the Argonne Apartments on Washington avenue, west of Grand, and the Woodrow on West Pine, as well as a number of large buildings for the automobile interests on Locust and on Pine street.

The basis on which the Eighteenth street block is to be acquired is withheld from publication. Its valuation is placed at between $350,000 and $400,000. Its frontage on Pine street and on Chestnut street make it especially attractive as a site for automobile purposes.

As was forecast in the Post-Dispatch, the Ivory Realty Co., composed of Frank and Jack Dubinsky of the Dubinsky Realty Co., with offices in the Wainwright Building, concluded a deal during the week with Cornet & Zeibig, as agents for an estate, for the northwest corner of Eighth and Chestnut streets, comprising the Lafayette Hotel, a three-story structure having 100 feet on Eighth street and 150 feet on Chestnut street. The reported price paid was $200,000. Ernest Edwards was the salesman in the transaction for Cornet & Zeibig.

The building was remodeled several years ago at a large outlay, and is regarded as one of the best investments of its character on this street.

The Bell Telephone Co. recently purchased the half-block on the north side of Chestnut street, between Tenth and Eleventh streets, through Isaac T. Cook as a site for a 12-story building for the telephone exhange. Construction of this building has been deferred owing to the high cost of building material and labor.

$10 to $20 a Foot Will Buy Site for Home and With Only $20 Down.

As manager of the Wood River-East Alton-Roxana-Hartford Industrial Development Co., F. W. Davis has started a sale of lots in Wood River, Ill., which he proclaims in a page advertisement in today's Post-Dispatch.

The lots are being offered at prices ranging from $10 to $20 a foot and on terms of $20 cash and $10 a month, thus placing them within reach of persons of the most limited means. The property is regarded as attractive for both investment and speculation in that it is embraced in a district comprising a host of large and important industries, and which is increasing in demand as sites for homes as well as for factories.

As enumerated in the advertisement the plants in this area include those of the Roxana Petroleum Corporation, the White Star Refinery, the International Shoe Co., Standard Oil Co., Beall Tool Co., Western Cartridge Co., the Equitable Powder Manufacturing Co., the Illinois Glass Co., Laclede Steel Co., Federal Lead Co. and the Alton Box Board and Paper Co. The employes of these and other industries are absorbing this property for homes and constitute the buying force for the lots in this district, the indications being that the supply of available ground here for both houses and factories soon will be exhausted. Accordingly, the opportunities for investment, not to say speculation, are obvious, even to the most conservative.

The company's literature says: "In 1918 we came to Wood River and sold our first subdivision; it is now built up solid with lovely homes. At that time choice business locations could be bought for as low as $400 and within two years sold for $5000 Careful and exhaustive study of this district convinced us in our own mind that there would be a city of 50,000 or more people at and around Wood River within a few short years; there were about 700 people living here then dependent on one industry. There are now about 15,000 population dependent on the above listed manufacturing plants. Two years ago we laid out the townsite of Roxana, adjacent to Wood River. At the present time it is incorporated, has a population around 1000, city water and sidewalks, at each lot, an up-to-date school and is still growing. Last year we started the city of Hartford. It is now incorporated, has street lights, an excellent big school with another to be built this summer to take care of the overflow, sidewalks, paving, street car service and a progressive group of citizens in charge of its civic affairs; a new home is started here almost every day.

"Back in 1917 we followed the dictates of our convictions and began to acquire control of what to us was the most desirable locations throughout the district. At the present time, we control almost a million dollars' worth of residence lots, business locations, industrial sites and near future subdivision plats, a large part of which has never been offered for sale by us. We have a selfish motive in this advertising and selling we are doing. Convinced now that instead of 50,000 people as we dreamed, there will be 100,000 people in this fast-growing industrial district in a few more years, knowing that more sales mean more homes offering more inducements for more manufacturers to build here thereby causing more sales to more people, etc., we offer this special advertising sale of lots. Prices will be advanced after Aug. 15, 1921."

A keen interest is being shown by the members of the St. Louis Real Estate Exchange in the convention of the National Association of Real Estate Boards to be held at Chicago July 12 to 15. Up to the present time about 125 reservations have been made. A representative of the exchange will go to Chicago Thursday for the purpose of arranging hotel accommodations for a total delegation of about 250.

The rules specify three classes of accomplishments, namely, achievements of the local exchange, for the national association, and for its community. Among the big things the St. Louis exchange will claim as accomplishments for itself and the community will be the passage of zoning laws, ash hauling, weeds removal and other similar ordinances and regulations. It also will show a net gain of 854 members during the fiscal year, April, 1920, to April, 1921.

SUBURBAN PROPERTY FOR SALE

Kenwood-Homesites Sales, $300,000

P. E. Reineke of 4920 Page Boulevard, St. Louis, Winner of $1775 Essex in Co-operative Contest

When we placed beautiful Kenwood-Homesites on the market recently we announced that four $1775 Essex automobiles would be given away in connection with its sale, the first when $300,000 worth of the property should be disposed of.

The $300,000 mark was passed within the last week, and the committee having the matter in charge found that the largest amount of selling co-operation given by any customer up to that time came from P. E. Reineke of 4920 Page boulevard, St. Louis. He was accordingly awarded the first Essex.

His Second Prize: Calls It Real Gift

"St. Louis, May 26, 1921.
1608-14 Boatmen's Bank Bldg.,
St. Louis, Mo.

"Gentlemen: You have made me a real present of an Essex automobile. I never won anything so easily in my life. The co-operation which I gave you took almost none of my time, and in addition to this it was a real pleasure—and will continue to be real pleasure—to recommend your company and your investment plan to my friends.

"You will remember that I won $500 in your Southampton contest, so this is my second prize from your company, and I am not through. I have already entered my name in the second Essex contest, and will also be in the $25,000 contest.

"Thanking you for your generosity and wishing you continued success,

Sincerely yours,
"P. E. REINEKE."

Report of Auto Contest Committee

May 25, 1921.

We, the undersigned committee, selected to determine the winners of four (4) Essex automobiles being given away by the Olive Street Terrace Realty Co. for co-operation in connection with the sale of Kenwood-Homesites, find that the first automobile to be awarded was won by P. E. Reineke of 4920 Page boulevard, St. Louis, Mo.

Second Auto Contest Will Open at Once

Entries are now being received for the second Essex contest, which is opening at once, and will continue until $250,000 more of the Kenwood-Homesites property has been sold. Judging by the rapidity with which investors and homeseekers are buying in Kenwood-Homesites, we believe the second Essex will be awarded within the next few weeks, so that an early start in the contest will be a decided advantage.

To learn how you may win one of the automobiles, and also participate in $25,000 of other prizes, call at our offices, telephone us (Olive 7580) or write to us. We will be glad to tell you about the contests and you will be under no obligation for the information.

Kenwood-Homesites Nearly Half Sold

During the short time that Kenwood-Homesites has been on the market over 600 of the 1400 lots in the subdivision have been sold. This remarkable record has been made possible by the natural beauty of the property and its desirability for residence purposes; by its proximity to the new industrial district, where 25,000 men will be seeking homes for themselves and families; its convenience to the new loop, good street car service, good automobile roads—these and other factors which insure the quick upbuilding of the district and certain profits to investors there.

We want to talk with you, show you this property, and submit to you some astounding facts about St. Louis and this district, especially this property, which will give you a new idea of the possibilities for profit in St. Louis real estate. We would also like to tell you personally about the automobile and other prizes.

Come out to the property TODAY—or tomorrow, when we will also have a force of men on hand. To get to Kenwood-Homesites go to Wellston, take a Kirkwood-Ferguson car north, and get off at Oak Ridge Station, where we will meet you. By automobile, go out Natural Bridge road to Sylvan place, Kenwood Springs, from where large signs will direct you.

The Roxana Petroleum Corporation.
The White Star Refinery.
The International Shoe Company.
The Standard Oil Company.
The Beall Tool Company.
The Western Cartridge Company.
The Equitable Powder Mfg. Co.
The Illinois Glass Company.
The Laclede Steel Company.
The Federal Lead Company.
The Alton Box Board & Paper Co.

Their employes have built the cities of Wood River-Roxana-Hartford-East Alton, with a present population of around 15,000 people, practically in the last six years.

In utter disregard of an ever-increasing building program, each month since the beginning of the district has seen a more acute house shortage; about the time there seemed hopes of the situation being relieved by the vast number of new homes that were built, another big live industry, wide awake to the many commercial advantages to be derived, has located here.

SEE FOR YOURSELF

IN 1907

Just a few short years ago, where the cities of WOOD RIVER-ROXANA-HARTFORD-EAST ALTON now build with ever-increasing rapidity, there was only high, dry, level farm lands selling for a few dollars an acre. The Standard Oil Company, seeking a strategic location from the viewpoint of transportation and distribution of both raw and finished products, optioned 640 acres of this land, found an inexhaustible supply of pure water a few feet below the surface, and built the third largest Refinery in the United States, which now employs some 1500 men, is still building, and bids fair to become in a few years the largest Refinery in the world.

THE CITIES OF

have good homes, excellent schools, churches, paved streets, sewers, sidewalks, low taxes, progressive citizens in charge of their public offices, and every one of their residents is buying, improving and building as much as their pocketbooks will let them. In spite of this fact hundreds of employes of the concerns in the Wood River-Roxana-Hartford-East Alton district, on account of the home shortage, are compelled to travel forth daily from the neighboring towns.

YOU ARE CORDIALLY INVITED TO VISIT THIS WONDERFULLY FAST GROWING SUBURB TO ST. LOUIS. TALK TO ANY WOOD RIVER-ROXANA-HARTFORD-EAST ALTON RESIDENT OR BUSINESS MAN AND CORRECT INFORMATION WILL BE FURNISHED YOU. SHOULD YOU DESIRE TO MAKE AN INVESTMENT EVERY ASSISTANCE AND CO-OPERATION WILL BE RENDERED TO MAKE YOU AN AMPLE RETURN ON YOUR MONEY INVESTED.

Dreams Come True

In 1916 we came to Wood River and sold our first subdivision; it is now built up solid with lovely homes. At that time choice business locations could be bought for as low as $400 that within two years sold for $5000. Careful and exhaustive study of this district convinced us in our own mind that there would be a city of fifty thousand or more people at and around Wood River within a few short years; there was about 700 people living here then dependent on one industry. There are now about 15,000 population dependent on the above listed manufacturing plants. Two years ago we laid out the townsite of Roxana, adjacent to Wood River. At the present time it is incorporated, has a population around 1000, city water and sidewalks at each lot, an up-to-date school and is still growing. Last year we started the city of Hartford. It is now incorporated, has street lights, an excellent big school with another to be built this Summer to take care of the overflow, sidewalks, paving, street car service and a progressive group of citizens in charge of its civic affairs; a new home is started here almost every day.

Back in 1917 we followed the dictates of our convictions and began to acquire control of what to us was the most desirable locations throughout the district. At the present time, we control almost a Million Dollars' worth of residence lots, business locations, industrial sites and near future subdivision plats, a large part of which has never been offered for sale by us. WE HAVE A SELFISH MOTIVE IN THIS ADVERTISING AND SELLING WE ARE DOING. Convinced now that instead of 50,000 people as we dreamed, there will be 100,000 people in this fast-growing industrial district in a few more years, knowing that more sales means more homes offering more inducements for more manufacturers to build here thereby causing more sales to more people, etc., we offer this Special Advertising Sale of lots. Prices will be advanced after Aug. 15, 1921.

On account of our rapid growth, we have openings for many kinds of business, need hundreds of new homes, and are taking this method of attracting investors to the possibilities of this wonderful manufacturing district.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

As we have no information bureau, it is impossible to answer queries by mail or telephone. Query for Sunday must be mailed a week beforehand.

SMITT.—Liberal application of turpentine, benzine or strong ammonia water may remove the paint from the carpet.

C. O. D.—Apply to the District Secretary of the United States Civil Service, Old Custom House, St. Louis, regarding examinations.

A READER.—E. J. Brennan is the manager-counsel of the Better Business Bureau of the St. Louis Advertising Club. Address him at Room 106, Hotel Statler.

EDITH H.—The following is an automobile route from St. Louis to Bowling Green, Mo., a distance of about 100 miles: St. Louis through Natural Bridge Junction, St. Charles, Harvester, Cottleville, Dardenne, Wentzville, Flint, Moscow, Troy, Eolia, Stark, Louisiana, to Bowling Green.

EMMA B.—Any of the following makes a nice lunch for a hike: Sausages, buns, pickles, olives, potato chips, bacon, potatoes, marshmallows, etc. The sausages may be roasted on the ends of pointed sticks, also the marshmallows. Bacon can also be fried by holding it over hot coals, on the end of a pointed stick. Potatoes may be roasted by putting them in the hot coals and ashes.

J. F. S.—The saccharimeter is an instrument designed to make known the amount of sugar content of industrial products. It works on the principle of optical rotation of light, the measure of content being shown by the twisting of light rays passing through the liquod being tested in a tube as part of the instrument. It does not resemble a thermometer.

THANKS.—A reader advises us of reviving a record typewriter ribbon, which is as follows: Take a rag about one-fourth the size of a handkerchief, fold it, and pour some typewriter oil on it. Then wring the rag out so as to distribute the oil evenly, and holding one end of the ribbon between folds of the rag in one hand, with the other hand drag the ribbon through the oiled rag. If not brought out strong enough on the first trial the ribbon can be given a second treatment. If you should get too much oil in sections of the ribbon, pull that section through folds of a clean, dry rag a time or two. If this is still unsatisfactory the ribbon may be set aside unreeled for a few days, to dry out. The reader also states that a copying ribbon can be revived by sponging it with water or wood alcohol in a similar method.

ARTIST.—The historical picture which hangs in the hospital at Bridewell, London, was recently identified as a record of an actual audience which Edward VI granted to the Mayor and Sheriffs of London on April 10, 1553, upon which occasion he announced his intention of handing over his palace of Bridewell to the city to be used as a reformatory, prison and a school of trades. On one side of the throne is the Bishop of Ely, who helped to compile the Book of Common Prayer; on the other side is the first Earl of Pembroke, who built up an enormous fortune out of the pillage of the church; Barne, the Mayor, and Garrard, one of the sheriffs. The Earl of Pembroke was among those who sent out three vessels at their own expense. to discover a northeastern passage to the riches of the East. One of these vessels reached Archangel and inaugurated trade with Russia. This picture, once attributed to Holbein, could not have been painted by him, as he died in 1543, but it might have been the work of the Court painter and the best paid artist in the last year of Edward VI, by the name of Gullim Streetis. Whoever the painter was, he included himself, in the corner of the canvas, a swarthy, foreign face with twinkling eyes watching the ceremony.

MEDICAL QUESTIONS.

(Answers prepared by a physician of authority. Health and sanitation questions of public interest only will be considered. Diagnoses or treatment of individual cases will not be given. Questions that cannot be publicly discussed, if showing evidences of sincerity, will be answered when accompanied by stamped envelope.)

PARK.—The condition you ask about is normal in a young man not addicted to excesses, and should not cause alarm.

WIDOW.—The condition you describe is evidently an exopthalmic goiter. You should be under medical care. If you have not means, go to the clinic at Grand and Caroline or at Euclid and Scott avenues.

JILL.—We think any face preparation which is greasy, that is, which contains oil, would have a tendency to stimulate hair growth. Massage of the limbs may increase the size some, but we think not to any very appreciable extent.

WORRIED.—Most towns and all cities in Illinois, which maintain a health department, make provision for free sputum examinations. In event of lack of this the Illinois State Board of Health will make such examination. Apply directly to the State Board of Health, State House, Springfield, Ill., for rules for submission of the sputum, etc.

MRS. R. L. W.—Your question is an extremely difficult one to answer, as to go into it fully would require more space than is here available. As the matter concerns both the husband and the wife, and as both should understand the matter fully, as frequently a thorough understanding is a solution of the difficulty, we would suggest that you obtain a copy of "Disorders of the Sexual Function," by Huhner, published by F. A. Davis & Co., Philadelphia, Pa., and both you and your husband read and study the chapter on "Frigidity." This book may be procured in the medical book shops.

EMMA B.—Drugs taken to reduce flesh are dangerous to health unless they are taken under a physician's direction. Diet and exercise is better, and is safe. Avoid fats, sugars and starchy foods such as potatoes, peas, beans, etc., do not sleep too much and get plenty of exercise. Dandruff does not turn hair gray, but often precedes falling of the hair. Keep the scalp thorouhgly clean by frequent washing. Sapo viridis should be used as a shampoo and the following lotion should be used twice daily: Hydrarg. bichloridi 5 grains; ammon. muriate 10 grains; rose water 8 ounces. This is POISON, and should be marked so.

LEGAL INFORMATION.

CURIOSITY.—The heir cannot make a clear title to the property until after final settlement of the estate.

A. M. H.—You will probably have no trouble in going through Belgium to Hamburg, even though you are a German subject.

A FRIEND.—We think there is nothing that can be done under the circumstances you mention, except continued appeals to the Parole Board.

B. B.—We can only advise patience and forbearance in a case such as you describe. Perhaps if you would talk the situation over with your wife, tell her that she must take an interest in her children and her home, and stop her continual nagging, it may have some effect.

H. J. M.—In order to find out if a person received a divorce by default in another state, without letting the person know of your investigation, you would have to examine the records of the court where he resided, if you know. If you do not, we know of no method of getting the desired information.

In loving memory of our dear mother, Pauline Mueller, who departed this life May 27, 1920:

In a lonely grave she is sleeping
As the shadows onward fall,
And our lonely hearts are weeping;
No more her presence can recall.
Do not ask us if we miss her;
O, there is such a vacant place.
Oft we think we hear her footsteps
Or we see her smiling face.
Then six months after she had left us,
Our dear sister went her way.
Their loving hearts are now at rest;
God took them both; He thought it best.
Sadly missed by
CHILDREN, SISTERS AND BROTHER.

A Little Colored Boy Ran Down the Street, Bareheaded, Shouting:

"My Mudder does the cleanes' washin'—and I helps her." This was his idea of advertising. The man who is in business to serve the public in cleaning, repairing, painting, decorating or some line related to clean-up may not have an assistant willing to roam the streets to proclaim his message, and probably would object to that method, but if he is wide-awake, he will advertise.

FOUR HOGANS IN POLICE DEPARTMENT DROPPED

Relatives of James Hogan Let Out or Have Resigned Since Robbery of Negro.

Four members of the Hogan family, relatives of James Hogan, were dropped from the service of the Police Department between April 4, the date of the robbery of Erris Pillow, negro bank messenger, for which James Hogan is under indictment, and May 9, when Pillow was murdered at his doorstep to keep him from testifying against Hogan. James Hogan was held for eight days as a suspect in the murder case.

Edward J. Hogan Jr., a former member of the Legislature, and a brother of James Hogan, was dropped from the State payroll recently, his position having been that of a State Beverage Inspector. His removal from this position was ordered by Gov. Hyde, when Hogan absented himself from duty without leave, as a way of keeping out of the hands of the police while the Pillow inquest was going on.

The four Hogans dropped by the Police Board are:

Edward J. Hogan St., 62 years old, who entered the department at the age of 23, on Sept. 1, 1882, as a teamster, later becoming a driver and in 1916 a chauffeur. Dropped from the rolls May 1 as a chauffeur at the North Market street station. He lives at 3035 Cass avenue. He has nine sons, including Edward, James, and three hereinafter mentioned.

John Hogan, 34, of 3035 Cass, joined the department Sept. 7, 1904, as a telephone operator; became janitor in 1908 and chauffeur in 1916; was out from 1910 to 1913, and was dropped from the rolls in August, 1918, but reinstated a few days later. Resigned May 1 as chauffeur at Deer street station.

Daniel Hogan, 38, married, 1816 Elliott avenue. Joined the department as second-class clerk June 15, 1903; worked for years at Carr street station, became first-class clerk. Dropped from the rolls May 1 as clerk at Soulard street station.

Francis E. Hogan, 21, of 3035 Cass avenue. Joined the department as a telephone operator July 12, 1917; became a second-class clerk, then was sent to the record room at headquarters, transferred from there to Wyoming street station, got back to the record room, was found there by the new board and sent to Page boulevard station, where he resigned as clerk April 22.

BROTHERS DENY SIGNATURES ON RECEIVERSHIP DOCUMENT

Zeitingers Say Stipulation in Hargadine-McKittrick Case Was Not One They Signed.

More testimony was heard yesterday by Circuit Judge Garesche in the proceedings of Christian J. and George Zeitinger, brothers, and other petitioners to set aside a stipulation agreeing to a settlement of the Hargadine-McKittrick Dry Goods Co. receivership case. By the stipulation the receivership was ended and assets of the company were placed in charge of three trustees as a liquidating committee.

The Zeitingers, who were among the original plaintiffs, assert that they did not agree to the settlement, and never ratified it.

A stipulation purporting to bear the signature of the two Zeitingers was introduced in evidence by the defense. The Zeitingers denied that this document was one they signed. C. J. Zeitinger said that he and his brother signed a paper agreeing to the payment of counsel fees, with the understanding that the former was to be a trustee. However, he was not selected by the attorneys. George Zeitinger made similar denial.

Prof. Elmer E. Lacey, penmanship teacher at McKinley High School, was called to the stand by C. F. Schneider, attorney for the petitioners, and was asked to compare signatures on the document shown by the defense with admitted signatures of the Zeitingers.

After making examination under a microscope the witness said he did not believe the signatures on the court document were genuine. He explained it was possible to trace over signatures on an original document and then transfer the names to a substituted document by means of a rubber stamp. Julian Laughlin, one of the attorneys for the plaintiffs in the receivership, who no longer represents the Zeitingers, told the Court that the paper introduced in evidence was the one his clients signed.

JERSEYVILLE BOY DIES FROM WEEK-OLD WOUND ON SCALP

Struck by Falling Hammer Last Sunday When Playing, and Loss of Blood Was Unchecked.

Roy Wilson Whitlock, 7 years old, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Whitlock of Jerseyville, died yesterday morning from loss of blood, following a scalp wound last Sunday. He had been without medical attention up to the time of his death.

Roy was one of four children, the oldest being a boy of 15 and the other two being younger than Roy. Their mother has been sick in bed for several days, and their father has been in Greene County working on a farm.

Last Sunday while the children were playing in the yard, a hammer that had been tossed into the tree fell upon Roy's head from a height of eight or ten feet, cutting his scalp.

The cut was tied up by the boy's father, who was at home for the day. It did not stop bleeding and the boy played about the yard Monday and Tuesday, then became too weak to go out.

Wednesday, the mother said yesterday to the Coroner, two physicians were at the house to see her, and she told them of the boy's condition. She said the physicians looked at him and said he was in need of medical attention, but that they did not give the boy any treatment, and did not return. From that time no physician saw the child, who became gradually weaker until his death.

Jerseyville has a community nurse, whose duty it is to care for sick persons when she learns of their needs. The nurse did not hear of the Whitlock boy's case. The other children seem not to have made the state of affairs known to the neighbors.

19 TROOPS OF BOY SCOUTS STAND INSPECTION FOR PRIZES

Immanuel Baptist Church Orphans' Home and St. Rose Catholic Troops Win in Order Named.

About 250 Boy Scouts, in 19 troops, paraded on the drill grounds at Forest Park yesterday afternoon and stood inspection. Maj. H. H. Simmons, scout executive; John L. Malm, scout commissioner of Denver, Colo., and Clarence H. Howard, serving as judges, selected the three best appearing troops, to which prizes later will be awarded.

Troop 46, attached to Immanuel Baptist Church, with Stanley Hall, a "68-year-young" lawyer, as scoutmaster, was chosen as the best troop. Attendance, appearance, neatness and ability were the chief considerations. The boys in this troop were all in uniform, as were nearly all those at the parade, and wore neat blue kerchiefs about their necks.

The Boy Scout Band, a troop from the Methodist Orphans' Home at Clayton, won second place. These boys wore red neckties as distinguishing marks. Troop 44, St. Rose's Catholic Church, Francis O'Leary, scoutmaster, had each of its 40 members present, and that helped it make third place.

The ceremonies lasted an hour. There are 147 troops, with more than 4000 members, in the city and near by, but Maj. Simmons said many of the boys had to work or were otherwise prevented from taking part.

OBREGON TO DISCUSS U. S. NOTE NEXT WEEK

American Charge Confers With Mexican President, and Says Meeting Was Cordial.

By the Associated Press.

MEXICO CITY, May 28.—George T. Summerlin, American Charge d'Affaires, who recently returned here from Washington, called at the Foreign Office this morning, but it was explained that his visit was merely to thank Foreign Secretary Pani for the courtesies extended incidental to Summerlin's return here.

With the memorandum of the United States regarding recognition of Mexico in his hands for consideration, President Obregon, it is stated semi-officially, will communicate with Summerlin early next week regarding the document. Mexican officials declined today to be quoted on the subject, declaring the matter was entirely in the hands of the President.

Last night's conference between President Obregon and Summerlin was hurriedly arranged as soon as the Foreign Office was advised that such a meeting was desired by the American Charge d'Affaires. Summerlin, accompanied by a Foreign Office representative, met the President in Chapultepec Castle, and for more than an hour discussed the memorandum with him. The conference is said to have been an extremely cordial one and it is stated President Obregon expressed the desire for an amicable arrangement.

Summerlin is understood to have told President Obregon that Mexican affairs had occupied the United States State Department for some time and that especial concern had been felt in Washington over rumored Bolshevik activities in Mexico as exemplified by the recent tragedy in Morelia and the invasion of the Chamber of Deputies by radicals.

President Obregon, according to reports, is declared to have assured Summerlin that the radical movement was being watched closely and that all safeguards were being taken to prevent its assuming menacing proportions.

Summerlin today maintained his policy of reserve and the only comment he would make on his conference with President Obregon was that "the meeting was extremely pleasant and the President was most affable."

As indicative that the Government is keeping a watchful eye on radicals is a War Office order, issued last night, directing the disarming of all civilians in the State of Michoacan, which during the past week has been the scene of several serious clashes between Catholics and Socialists. The Federal troops also have been ordered to be prepared at all time to suppress outbreaks.

CARUSO AND MELBA RECORDS LAID AWAY FOR 100 YEARS

LONDON, May 28.—Mme. Nellie Melba, who recently gave a farewell concert at Albert Hall, prior to departing for Australia, her native land, for a year, revealed the following incident:

"A special gramaphone record was made of one of my songs. At the same time a record was taken of a song by Caruso. The two records were placed in a special receptacle and laid in a definite spot below the Opera in Paris.

"They are not to be taken out for 100 years. They will then be exhumed, and our descendants will have an opportunity of passing an entirely unbiased judgment on the voices of two people who will then have been dead for very many years."

The famous diva stated that the greatest compliment of her career was paid to her by the late Earl Kitchener, for whom she sang "Home, Sweet Home," in Cairo, Egypt.

"When I had finished," she said, "Lord Kitchener did not say a word. He came up to me, bowed, and kissed my hand, and when he lifted his head I could see the tears rolling down his cheeks."

THOSE WHO SAIL TO "PORT OF MISSING MEN"

Police estimate that each year 5000 persons in United States disappear and are never heard of again — Kidnaping, murder, loss of memory and voluntary flight—Eluding civilization's swift and far-flung nets of pursuit—Classic mysteries of Editor Conant of Harper's Weekly, Postmaster Ashhurst of Philadelphia, Dorothy Arnold and Ambrose J. Small, Toronto theater magnate

ONE of the most intriguing mysteries of modern life is that of the thousands of persons who each year in this country voyage to the "port of missing men." Every now and then it chances that a man, either by his own wish or through the compulsion of enemies, vanishes as swiftly and utterly as if swept away in a chariot to another planet. He is traced to some certain spot, and is there suddenly rapt away; so that the places which have been his know him nevermore.

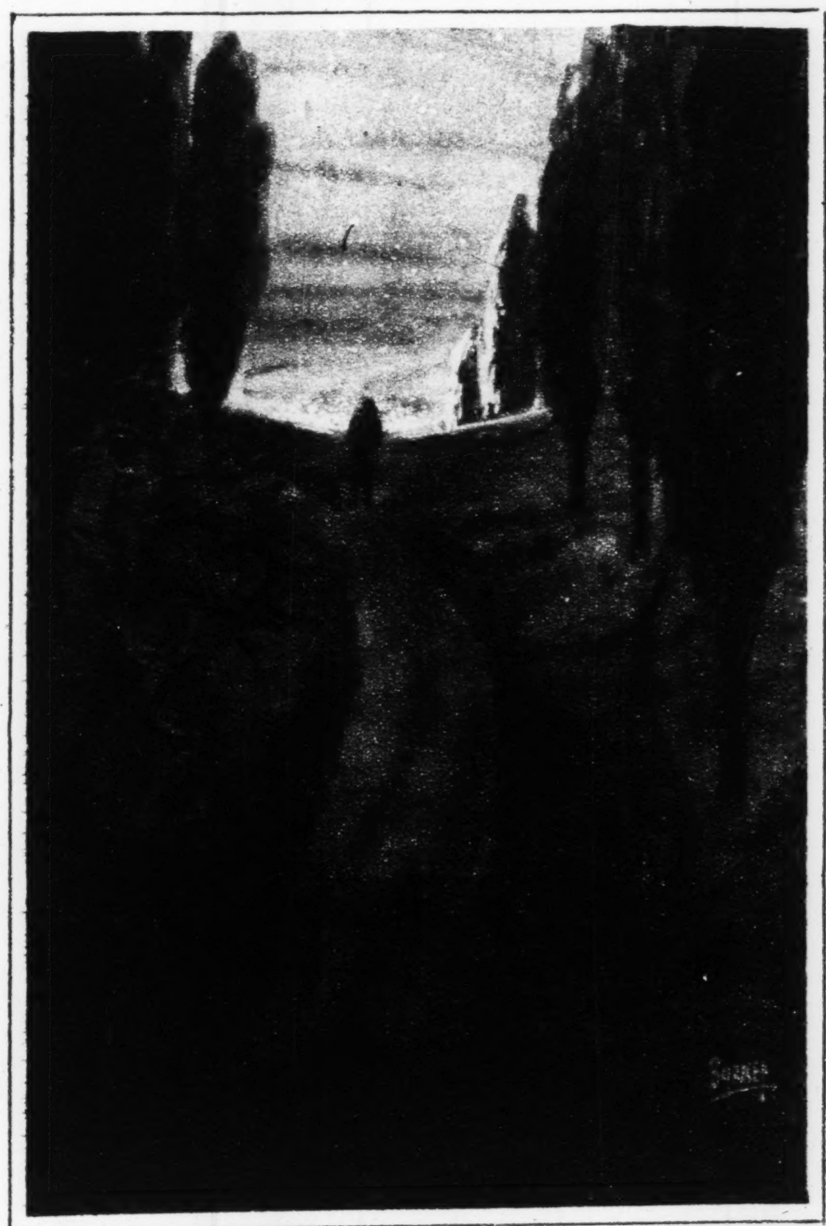
Is he dead? Then his body is never recovered; and if it is murder, the assassins leave no footprints. Is he still alive? Then what undetected prison confines him; or, if his disappearance has been voluntary, in what cranny of the earth has he concealed himself from all of civilization's resources of pursuit? It is as if he had died and risen again—to what new life, personality, friends and surroundings?

It is the cases of those who vanish by their own will that most fascinate our interest. They are suicides of a sort, men who kill their lives of past and present in order to venture upon some unknown and perhaps more propitious future. Often they seem to other eyes rich in success and happiness. But who can tell what intolerable pressures, what secret miseries or what irrepressible instincts of adventure at last impel their desperate flight?

Many, no doubt, find unbearable the tremendous weight of a civilization like ours, with its incessant struggle, its feverish pursuit of mean ends, its cruelty and hypocrisy; and flee away in quest of simpler climes. An astonishingly large number of men forsake their families; a cynic would compare them to an animal which, having been caught in a trap, gnaws off a foot and limps away to freedom.

In earlier ages, when it was farther from one province to an adjoining one than it is today from Occident to Orient, a man might hide himself effectually by traveling a few score miles from home. But now, in order to achieve a successful disappearance, a high degree of craft and luck must be necessary. The fugitive is pursued by the fleet currents of telegraph and telephone; a nationally organized police sends his description and photograph broadcast; in any celebrated case, thousands of detectives, professional and volunteer, set themselves on his track, and every newspaper in the land weaves a mesh in the continental snare for his capture.

How effective these methods are is shown by police estimates. It is calculated that each year 50,000 persons are "reported missing." Of that number, fully 90 per cent are eventually found. But 10 per cent contrive to slip through the net. It is estimated that 5000 men and women annually disappear in the United States and are never heard of again.



Some of these cases have become classics, and remain today, after 10, 20 or 30 years, mysteries as impenetrable as they were on the day of their occurrence. Take, for instance, the disappearance of Samuel Stillman Conant, a brilliant writer, well known to old-time journalists, and, at the time he vanished, editor of Harper's Weekly.

Conant was married to a woman as distinguished as himself, and they had one son, about 20 years of age. The editor's tastes had always seemed unusually quiet, refined and domestic, and he appeared to find his deepest pleasures at his own fireside.

On Jan. 15, 1885, he spent the evening at the Authors' Club, where he met many old friends and had an enjoyable time. The next morning, as he left home, he informed his wife that he was going to Albany that evening and would take his son with him. As he often made such trips in connection with business for the magazine, Mrs. Conant attached no importance to the announcement.

The magazine went to press that day, which was Friday, and Conant remained late at the office. He bade his associates good night and told them he would return on Monday or Tuesday. But he failed to reach his home, as he had promised, to meet his son and start on the trip to Albany. After a sleepless night, Mrs. Conant appealed to the police.

Five days later a man entered a pawnshop on Coney Island and borrowed $5 on a watch and chain. It was proved that the jewelry belonged to Conant's son, and the description of the borrower corresponded closely to that of the missing journalist. It was ascertained that the man had spent the night at a shelter hut on Coney Island. The day after he visited a shopkeeper, and chatted with such wit and brilliance that the captivated proprietor invited him to remain for supper. On leaving, he informed his host that he was the editor of Harper's Weekly, and that he was catching the next train for Brooklyn.

About a week later, a man who knew Conant well saw him leaving a cheap lodging house on Fulton street, and accosted him with the words: "Where are you going?"

Conant looked at him fixedly, and then replied, in a tone of annoyance:

"Can't you see? I'm going up the street."

The meeting was reported to the police, and a staff of detectives searched the neighborhood, but in vain. The search was kept up for years, both in this country and Europe. So far as Conant's family and associates were concerned, the earth might have opened and swallowed him up on Fulton street a moment after he muttered: "I'm going up the street."

One theory invoked to explain this case, and many similar ones, is that of loss of memory. It is not rare for men to forget suddenly and irrecoverably their names and places of residence. But Conant appears to have told the Coney Island shopkeeper who he was, while his vexation at meeting his friend on Fulton street pointed to a full possession of his faculties. But, in any case, what became of this distinguished and clever man? No one knows.

Another instance, typically perplexing, was that of Richard Ashhurst, Postmaster of Philadelphia. It is a little more than 10 years since he left the big granite building in the Quaker City, never to return. Although a decade has rolled round, no one pretends to have the slightest knowledge of what happened to him.

Ashhurst was appointed Postmaster by President Roosevelt. He was 72 years old, and in the best of health. Apparently he had neither domestic nor business troubles, and he had scores of good friends. His affairs at the postoffice were found to be in perfect order. He had been known all his life as the most methodical of men.

He left the postoffice, and apparently formed a sudden determination to go to Atlantic City. He registered there at the Marlborough-Blenheim Hotel, and immediately telegraphed to his wife:

"Came to Atlantic City unexpectedly. Quite well. Will explain by letter. Home early tomorrow."

With equal scrupulousness he notified his subordinates at the postoffice as to his whereabouts, wiring to his assistant:

"Ran down to Atlantic City. Back in office Wednesday."

At 8:45 on the evening of Jan. 30, 1911, Ashhurst left the hotel by a side door and entered a rolling chair on the Boardwalk, saying: "Take me to the Million-Dollar Pier." On the way he chatted jovially with the negro chair pusher. At 9 o'clock he alighted at the pier, paid the attendant, dismissed him, and entered the big structure alone, leaning on his cane. That was the last ever seen of Richard Ashhurst.

His cane, lying at one side of the pier, was picked up five days afterward! Why was it not found immediately? Detectives came to the conclusion that the cane was placed where it was discovered by an afterthought, in order to give an appearance of suicide.

In any case, no trace was ever found of Ashhurst's body or himself. The search made was on a thorough scale. Every hotel, boarding house and hospital in Atlantic City was ransacked. Garage men and railroad employes were certain he had not left by automobile or train. Detectives and boatmen for days, with grappling hooks and poles, dragged the water under and around the pier. The police of Philadelphia and other cities, postoffice inspectors, Federal secret service men and members of the life-saving corps along the Middle Atlantic joined in the investigation. All was futile. The detectives came to the conclusion that Ashhurst had departed "for reasons of his own," and the case long ago went into the limbo of unsolved mysteries.

Probably every newspaper in the world has published a picture of description of Miss Dorothy Arnold, daughter of a wealthy New York merchant, who left her home on Dec. 12, 1910, and never returned. Did she disappear of her own will? Was she kidnaped or murdered? Or did she suffer a loss of memory, and is she still alive, but unaware of her identity? These are questions which a world-wide investigation has failed to answer.

Miss Arnold was at the time 26 years old. Cards were out for a luncheon which she was to give to 60 of her former schoolmates of Bryn Mawr College, of which she was a graduate. When she left her home in Seventy-ninth street, New York, just before noon on the fatal day, she left her money, jewelry and clothing. She told the family that she was going downtown to select materials for a dress.

She was next seen in a store at Fifth avenue and Fifty-ninth street, where she purchased a pound of candy and had it charged. Two hours later she entered Brentano's, in Twenty-sixth street, and bought a book of humorous epigrams, called "An Engaged Girl's Sketches." Soon afterwards she met a girl friend, who congratulated her on her fine appearance. She seemed pleased with the compliment and replied:

"I'm feeling splendid, and I'm going to walk home through Central Park."

She never reached her home and has never been heard from since. The mystery, after 11 years, remains just as baffling as it was at the beginning. Rarely have the police made so thorough a search. Private detectives and lawyers traveled thousands of miles. At one time or another the services of famous investigators were employed—William J. Burns, William J. Flynn, head of the United States Secret Service, and Chief Henry of Scotland Yard.

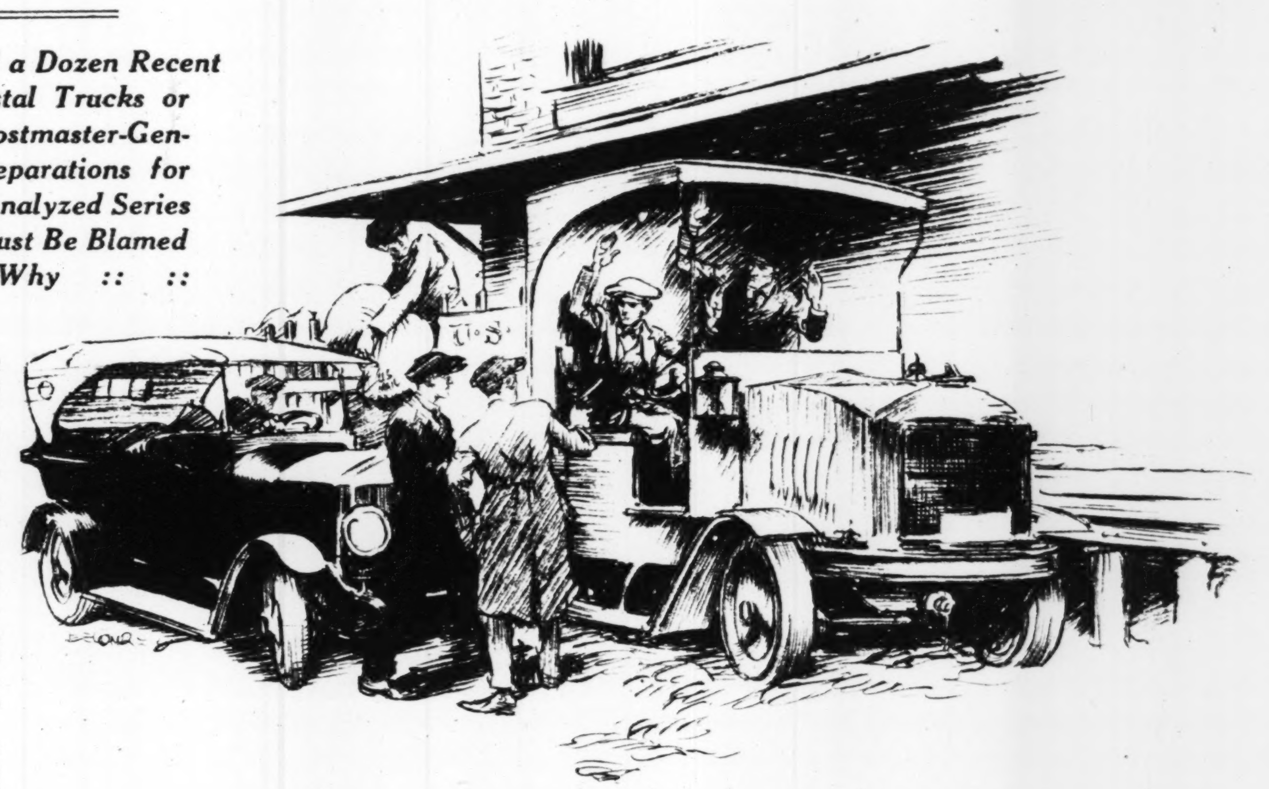
On Dec. 2, 1919, Ambrose Joseph Small, theater magnate of Toronto, Canada, crowned years of toil and struggle by selling his chain of playhouses in all parts of the Dominion to a corporation for $2,000,000 cash and an interest in the company. In the afternoon an initial payment of $1,000,000 was made, and Small deposited the check at his bank. At 5:30 o'clock he left his office and went to a nearby hotel. At 7:15 o'clock on this bitter winter evening, he stepped up to a newsboy under the lamps of Adelaide street, bought a paper—and vanished. No trace of him has ever been found.

Two weeks afterwards his secretary, John Doughty, also disappeared, together with $100,000 in bonds from Small's safety deposit box. A year later Doughty was found working in a paper mill in Oregon, and confessed to stealing the bonds, and revealed the place where they were hidden, in his sister's home at Toronto. But he was unable or unwilling to throw any light upon the whereabouts of his former employer.

A chronicle of all the strange disappearances in this country, during a single year, would fill several large volumes. While the majority of missing persons are finally located, there still remains a large number who vanish, never to be seen again by their relatives and former friends. What becomes of these persons? Where are they? The problem seems insoluble.

The Sinister Record of Mail Pouch Robberies and the Arming of U. S. Post Office Employes

The Loss of $6,000,000 in Half a Dozen Recent Raids of Bandits Upon Postal Trucks or Railroad Cars Causes the Postmaster-General to Make Sweeping Preparations for Defense—Writer Who Has Analyzed Series of Big Holdups Says They Must Be Blamed Upon the War, and Explains Why :: ::



By EDWARD H. SMITH

SIX MILLION DOLLARS have been taken from the mails in six bandit raids, all within a few months. Whatever arrests have been made signally failed to stop the thieving, for only the other week there were three fresh holdups within two days and they were of a character so serious that the Government refused to make public any figures on the losses. As a result of these repeated and enormous pillagings the Federal officers are postulating the existence of a nationally organized gang of registered mail robbers. The idea has its fascinations, albeit there is a total absence of proof to demonstrate its tenability.

One recent afternoon, in a vacant lot adjoining the Dearborn street station in Chicago—one of those yawning empty holes in the building fronts of American cities which look a good bit like missing incisors in the dentition of an otherwise pleasant mouth—a few young men were seen playing scrub baseball. It was an incubating spring day, popping the people from their winter shells in crowds. A few who passed watched the young men tossing their ball about. Some smiled at their antics, some ached to join. None suspected that these pranking fellows were to commit at sundown a $1,000,000 theft.

It was not yet dark when a Government mail truck swung into the baggage entrance to the station carrying in one sack a shipment of paper currency made by the branch Federal reserve bank in Chicago to one of the other branches. At almost the same instant a black touring car swung in beside the truck. Four young men sprang out, leveled revolvers at the heads of the postal employes and commanded silence and quick compliance. The bandits immediately ordered the mail sacks thrown out of the truck, almost instantly selected the one containing at least $500,000, threw it into their throbbing machine and whizzed away. It was done in less than a minute. Few saw what had happened. Fewer still understood what was being done.

The bandits' car had got through the jam and turned a corner before a policeman stationed at the street intersection got the cry of alarm. He fired two shots after the speeding motor and then gave it up for fear of killing bystanders.

The next morning the empty mail pouch was found at some distance from the seat of crime and still further away was discovered the touring car with the two bullets of the policeman lodged in the tonneau.

Within 24 hours after the Chicago registered mail holdup a gang repeated the performance at Sullivan, Ind., the stamping ground of the incumbent Postmaster-General. The technique of the crime was identical. Men drove up in a motor car, held up the drivers of a mail truck, got the bags containing the registered mail and drove away without molestation. Some of the police even suggested that this crime might have been committed by the Chicago gang, which had just time to get to Sullivan for the second robbery.

But there is worse to come. At almost the same hour four bandits in a motor car followed a mail truck in Cincinnati from the railway station to an alley which it was traversing on its way to the postoffice. The robbers' car drew alongside, the truck was held up and two of the bandits boarded the Government car and handcuffed the Government drivers to their wheel. Without more ado the registered mail sacks were taken, thrown into the touring car of the robbers and carted swiftly away. It was some time before the cries of the drivers attracted passersby. By that time the criminals were miles away, gone into the night without trace. The loss was not made public by the Government.

Here are three strangely analogous cases in two days. Anyone who remembers the criminal doings of the last few months as they have appeared in the newspapers will recall the adventures of the two youths near Chicago who held up a train and robbed it in the same way. And the super-adventure of the gang of young roughs who robbed a mail car near Council Bluffs, Ia., getting away with a sum totaling several millions. These men were afterward apprehended and most of the money recovered.

The question arises whether these crimes are the result of what the police have termed a "national organization," meaning to say thereby that some central brain or set of brains is directing the activities of a definite clique of criminals. It is possible, of course, that the officials have information on which they base this hypothesis, but nothing that has sifted out to public attention any more than suggests the possibility of such a thing. The crimes have been more or less similar in technique. Unhappily, that doesn't mean much. There is only one way to hold up a mail truck, and that is to hold it up at the point of firearms. There is only one convenient way of getting swiftly and safely to and from the theater of such a crime, and that is by motor car. There is thus nothing more suggestive of one-mindedness in these crimes than there is about the fact that most yegg robbers used to go to the scenes of their crimes by train, and invariably blew open safes with nitroglycerin.

If there were some striking and unusual characteristic in all these registered mail banditries; if, for instance, the robbers used airplanes, or if they wore Ku Klux Klan uniforms, or if they invariably used a mystical password, or even if the robbers always opened their stolen pouches in some characteristic manner, there might be reason for the supposition of the officers. As it stands, there is nothing of the sort, and the thing sticks out again as another piece of police camouflage, another piece of romancing to keep the minds of the people from the main fact, the inability of officialdom to cope with crime. It is admitted here that crime in these days, especially crime of this type, is hard to cope with.

What are the facts about the mail robberies? It is patent, first of all, that there have been not six such holdups, but six times six. Not all have been successful; not all have yielded such huge sums. Nevertheless, the business of holding up trains, trucks and mail wagons for the purpose of getting possession of the registered mail bags has been going on throughout the West for some time. The proof?

The other day the Postmaster-General sent to Chicago, for distribution through the Middle West, 1700 revolvers of the army pattern, 500 shotguns and more than 100,000 rounds of ammunition. At the same time the order went out to arm and train 2000 postal employes concerned in the transport of valuable mail. The same day training schools were opened where postal employes will be instructed in the use of firearms. Ex-service men will be drawn into the postal employ and used to guard the wagons and lorries. Some of them will be posted in the transport vehicles, armed with shotguns and instructed to shoot to kill. Others will be mounted on motor cycles and will convoy the trucks.

This action was not taken in defense against any light menace. Never before in the history of the Post Office Department has the rule against the arming of postal employes been thus generally discarded. The cities of the United States are about to see scenes rivaling those of the prairie mail coach days, when armed horsemen and armed drivers protected the mails against Indians and borderland outlaws. Even the historical forays of the James and Younger boys in the bloody days of half a century ago failed to provoke any such sweeping preparation. The situation is thus admittedly without parallel.

But how has such a condition come about?

The blame must again be charged to the war. In the first place, many postal employes of good record and experience were drawn into the armies and went abroad. Their places had to be filled with any kind of material that came to hand. Men were decidedly scarce in this country in 1918, and the Government, with the low wages paid postoffice employes, had to be content with what it could get. In this way, unquestionably, many undesirables got into the service and some of them undoubtedly are still there.

As a secondary result of the war we have the Liberty Bonds, the cause of more crime than any of the desk pundits of the police have yet seen fit to declare. The Government had to issue readily negotiable securities and countless open markets for these bonds were created by the buying and selling demand. These bonds must be shipped back and forth by registered mail or express. The ordinary conduct of business requires this. As a result the mails have, in the last three or four years, been unprecedentedly heavy with money or what are often more easy to dispose of than stolen bills of larger denomination—the Government bonds. It would be strange indeed if this condition did not attract criminals.

Finally, in most of the great cities much of the mail trucking is done under contract. That is to say, the Government lets out to individuals or corporations the job of hauling the mails to and from sub postoffices and railway terminals. The drivers may be employes not of the Government but of the contractors. They are, in such cases, less likely to have been carefully chosen and closely investigated. The job of chauffeur is one the ex-convict naturally takes up. It is not essentially a position of trust. All that is required is the ability to operate and possibly to repair a motor car. This trade, if it may be so termed, is taught in many prisons—Sing Sing for instance. It is readily learned on the outside. I am not reflecting on many honest hackmen when I say that the chauffeur class in all large cities contains some of the most dangerous elements in our society. It would be strange if some of these fellows were not also driving mail wagons.

Again, where a gang contemplates a job of a major sort, it is no great feat for a clever rascal either to corrupt a previously honest driver or to get a member of the gang employed in that capacity by means of false recommendations, forged military discharges and similar tokens of good character.

Since these are the conditions, and since they must be well known to every competent police chief in the country, it ought not to be difficult to piece together a convincing theory as to these crimes. The one thing that has been apparent in all cases is the familiarity of the bandits with the movements of the Government trucks, the shipments of valuable mail and even the identity of the bags containing the precise shipments sought.

Therefore it might be reasonable to assume that cooperation with the actual bandits may come from those inside the postoffices or the Federal reserve banks. Crooks are not wizards. They must receive information just as do other men. In short, it might be wise to consider the theory that they must have confederates inside who tell the bandits without just when a large shipment of currency or bonds is about to be made, which truck will bear the precious paper, and what bag will contain it. This information had in advance, it is not much of a feat to get the loot from a mail wagon manned with unarmed drivers and mail clerks. Whether arming these men is going to be effective remains

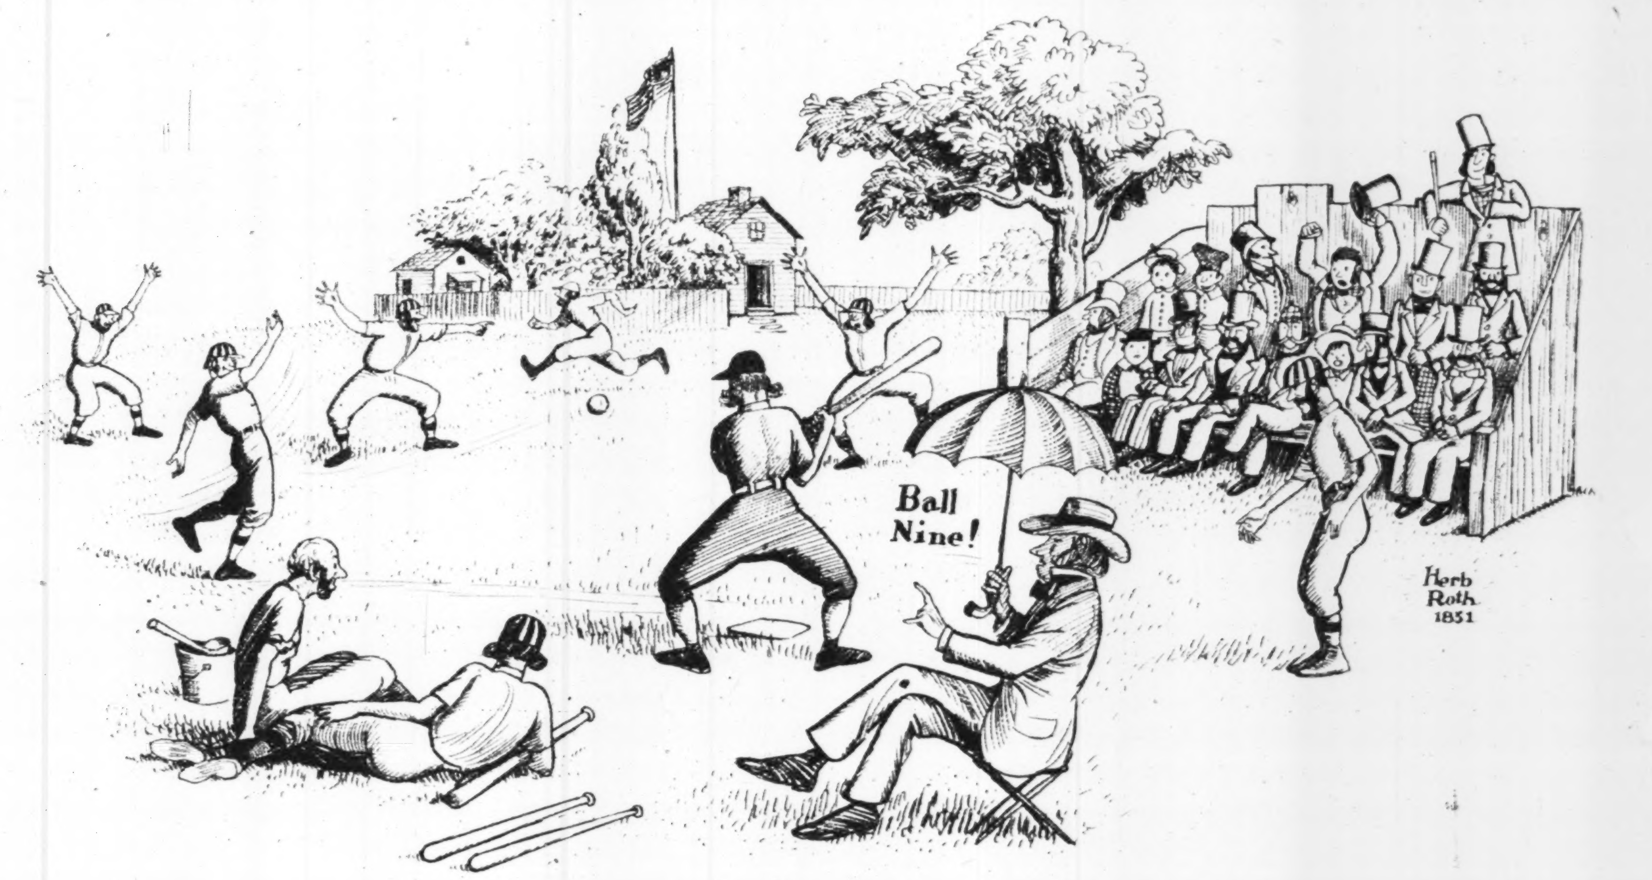
The Days When Pitchers Threw Underhand, and Umpire Had Campstool and Umbrella, Described by Baseball Veteran



By EDWARD A. MUSCHAMP

Terrence Connell, Former National League Player and Then Umpire, Says the 1921 Fan Wouldn't Recognize the Sport as It Used to Be Seen When the Game Was Young—The Players Didn't Wear Gloves, and Catchers Had Neither Chest Protectors Nor Masks, But Caught Balls on the Bound. :: ::

"PLAY BALL!"

Loud and clear came the order, with an intonation that meant business. The players trotted to their positions. A batter approached the plate, stroked his beard, spat on his rough hands and closed them around the ash.

And then——

And then a round-faced, pudgy man in a loose-fitting linen suit, sauntered out upon the diamond, an umbrella under his arm and a camp stool swinging in his hand. Snapping the stool into its supporting X a dozen feet or so to the left of the plate and hoisting the canopy of alpaca, he waved his hand and sat down.

It may require a willing and pliable imagination to picture a person thus ensconced as an officially accredited umpire of a professional league ball game, but on the word of Terrence Connell it is an accurate picture; and Terrence knows his book. For years a National League player and the man responsible for the double umpire system of today, he has watched the bounce of baseball for half a century. He played first base on the old Philadelphia Nationals, caught for the old Athletics, backstopped later in Chicago and then, graduating to the umpire class, he embodied finality of decision at a thousand games.

Baseball, it may not be widely known, was the second phase of development of the imported English game called "rounders." The first phase was townball. Gay and snappy like ping pong, it was played on a diamond, with a ball which was as soft and innocuous as a bean bag. When a batsman hit the town ball, a fielder hastened to recover it and pop it at the runner. If the ball landed on the runner, he was out. It was a game of winging base runners. Connell sniffed in disgust as he told of this, but he brightened up when he got going on regular baseball.

"The first organized clubs to play nine men were the Knickerbockers of New York and the Excelsiors of Brooklyn," said Connell. "These teams were the knockouts of the early '50s.

"Then came the Civil War and it was the war that put baseball on a permanent basis. The Government officials and the army officers had the same problems back in those days with the thousands of young men in the camps that we had in the world war. Baseball clubs were organized in all the camps and two teams made their appearance in Washington—the Olympics and the Nationals. Fergus Malone, who afterwards was the star catcher on the old Athletics in Philadelphia, played on that Olympic team, and so did Nick Young, who later became president of the National League. One of the star pitchers was Berthong.

"When the soldiers were mustered out a lot of them marched back home with baseball bats over their shoulders and enlisted in regular teams. The game came along with a jump and in 1869 Harry Wright, then manager of the Red Stockings of Cincinnati, took his team on a tour of the country. Baseball fever broke out in hundreds of sections. It was a slow town that didn't have a ball club of some sort. Wright swung back to Ohio with an unbroken record of victories, and if he had wanted to go into politics he might have been elected Governor or Sheriff or something."

"When was the first league started?"

"The very next year," replied Connell. "The game had to be organized. Al Spaulding, who was star pitcher for the Rockford nine; 'Pop' Anson, Al Reach—all the topnotchers got in the league. Among the teams were the Red Stockings, Atlantics of Brooklyn, the Philadelphia Athletics, New York Mutuals, the Nationals and Olympics of Washington, made up mostly of men with Government jobs, and the Haymakers of Troy.

"In those days ball teams were chiefly supported by public-spirited citizens, who made large contributions to their home-town clubs. Some of the players of today earn more in a month than the old stars got in a season. Salaries ran from $600 to $1200 and a man who got the latter figure was the envy of the rest.

"The first record of a sale of a player at a big price was in the middle '80s. Mike Kelly, famous as a backstop, was bid from Chicago by the Boston club, the price being $20,000. Three weeks of gate receipts paid the bill, and don't forget that the public got through the gate for a quarter and into a stand seat for half a dollar."

"Were there any Babe Ruths in those days?" the interviewer asked.

"You just bet there were!" replied the veteran. "A dozen home runs were frequently made in one game and it was by no means uncommon for Levi Meyerle, the giant who played third base for the Philadelphia Athletics on their famous team of 1870, to make two or three home runs in one game. Sam Thompson, who first played on Detroit and later with the Philadelphia team, was another great hitter. Then there were Dan Brothers, Al Reach, Pete Browning of Louisville and the great Ed Delehanty. And no list of heavy hitters would be complete without Big Bill Lang of the Chicago team and Ed Williams and 'Pop' Anson and 'King' Kelly and Gore, all members of the same Chicago club.

"Charley Radbourne of Providence, later of Boston, was not only a phenomenal pitcher, but one of the greatest all-round players that the game has ever produced. While he was pitching with Providence he made a record that I don't believe has ever been surpassed—36 straight victories! And 'Pop' Anson! Besides being a great captain, he was one of the most scientific batters. Buck Ewing of the old Giants was as good a catcher as ever went behind the bat, and John Ward, the shortstop, and Roger Conner at first were two more of the old Giants team that would be hard to beat, not to mention Tom Keefe, the star pitcher of the old New York Metropolitans.

"The old Boston team was a hummer. It had Al Spaulding, and Andy Leonard was out in left field and George Wright was at short and Calvin McVey was alternating between catcher and first base.

"Billy Sunday was a live player and the greatest runner I've ever seen on a ball field. Many people have said that he was the equal of Ty Cobb, but he lacked Cobb's rare judgment.

"Taking them by and large, to my mind the greatest all-round player that we have ever had was 'King' Kelly. He was born in Paterson, I think, and the first time I ever saw him play was with a team up in Port Jarvis. Later he went to Chicago and Boston. He was a great catcher and a great right fielder, a wonderful hitter and the headiest man I've ever seen on a diamond."

Connell doesn't believe that the 1921 fan would recognize the sport of the old days if he had a chance to see it. The umpire perched on a camp stool, with a big umbrella over his head, would make a fan gasp. The players didn't wear gloves and the catchers stood at a safe distance behind the bat and caught the balls that came their way on the bound. They didn't wear chest protectors or masks. Foul flies, caught on a bound, were outs.

"Without any rule on the subject," said Connell, "some of the nervy catchers began coming closer and closer to the batter. In this bunch were Fergus Malone, Doug Allison of the Cincinnati Reds, Charley Mills of the New York Mutuals and Dick Pierce of the old Brooklyn Atlantics.

"I did a little of that bare-handed, unmasked catching up behind the bat myself, along in the '70s, and I want to tell you that it wasn't any pink-tea job," said Connell, rubbing his cheek. "At Harrisburg one day a foul tip got me on the cheekbone. Oh, yes, it broke the bone, all right; but things like that were all in the day's work. The mask came along in the late '70's, and was invented by a player on the Harvard team named Tyng. After that came the chest protector and one thing or another, until today the catcher has some chance of coming out of the game alive."

In no respect has baseball changed more than in pitching. Today even among the littlest kids playing on the lots, the fellow that throws the ball underhand is promptly labeled a "sisey." But in the early days the underhand pitch was officially prescribed.

"Arthur Cummings, famous as a twirler on the old Brooklyn Stars, is generally credited with the first curved ball," said Connell. "Originally the rule was that the pitcher had to keep the ball below his hip in delivering it. This developed the underhand throw. Along about 1882, with the advent of the American Association, the rules were changed and the pitcher was permitted to raise his arm as high as his shoulder in delivering the ball. The distance of the pitcher's box from the home plate had been increased from 40 to 50 feet. Finally, about 1890, the pitching rules were changed again and no restrictions whatever were placed on the height at which the pitcher might deliver the

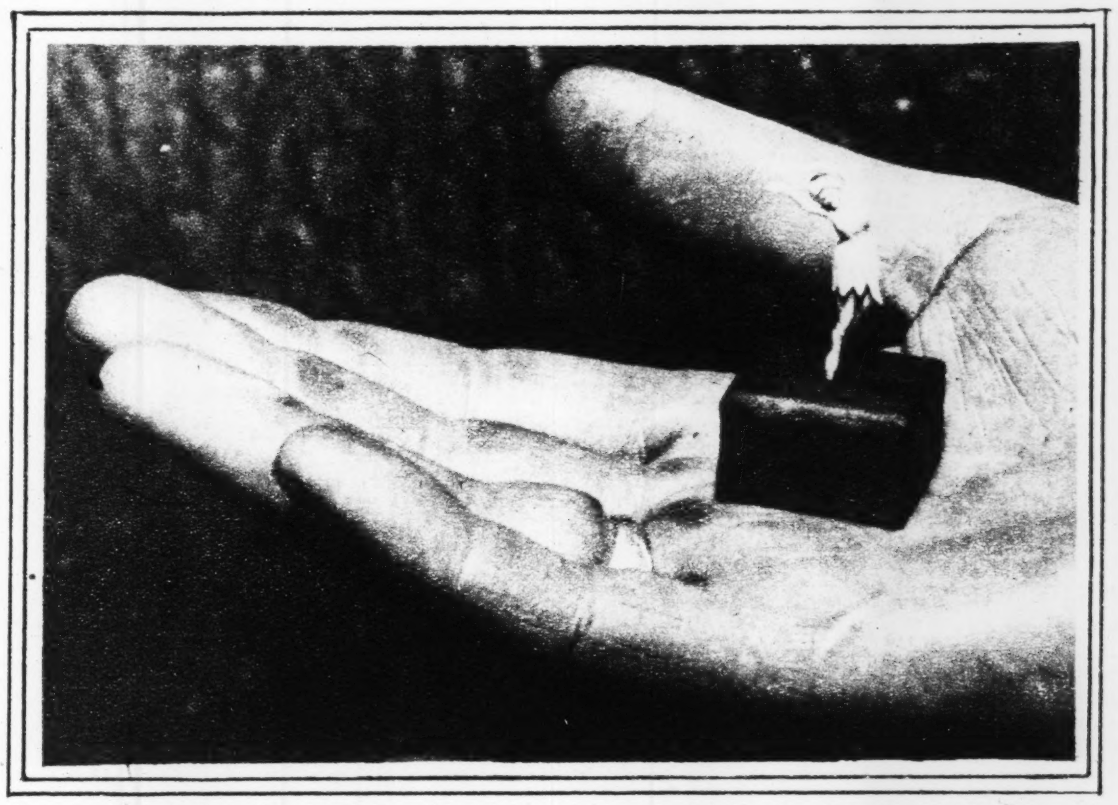
With Small Pocket Knife, Harry J. Carpenter, Bookkeeper, Cuts Fragile Little Figures Out of the Imitation Ivory Handles of Table and Office Cutlery as He Travels on Street Car—He Never Had Any Art Instruction, but Says He Can "See" the Figure in the Ivory Before He Starts to Carve :: :: ::



Actual size of tiny figure of dancing girl, carved out of imitation ivory knife handle with a pocket knife.

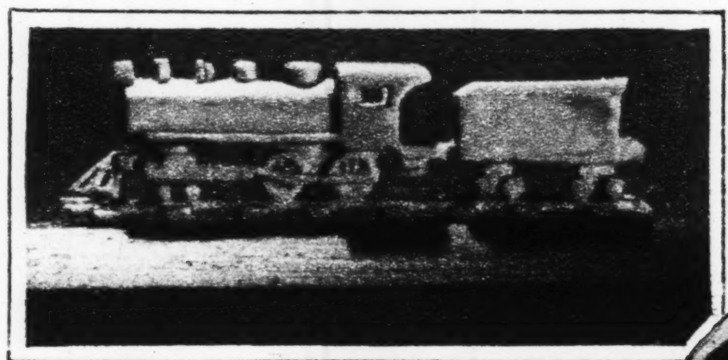
PASSENGERS on a street car line serving the northwestern part of the city occasionally watch one of their fellow passengers with much interest. This man does not care about attracting attention, and only his seatmate and a few neighboring straphangers see what he is doing. But he has chosen a novel occupation with which to improve the time spent on the long rides between home and office.

With just his pocket knife for a tool and just the imitation ivory handles of table knives and office knives for material, Harry J. Carpenter of 5140 San Francisco avenue carves out tiny figures, dainty in conception and so delicate, when finished, that they must be packed in cotton batting to be transported any distance.

And as though the meagerness of what he has to work with were not enough, he chips and scrapes away at his little figures while riding on the street car, quite unconcerned about the jolting of the car in motion, and its jerks when being started or stopped.

Carpenter never has received any art instruction, except for a few elementary drawing lessons in the grammar grades, and is a bookkeeper by profession, employed in one of the wholesale dry goods houses on Washington avenue.

"Yes, I cut myself a good many times," said Carpenter. "Usually it is on the thumb of my right hand, in which I hold the piece, for I am left-handed in everything except using a pen. Of course, I wear a leather stall over my thumb and that saves me a good many times, but on the average I cut myself a dozen times in making one of these figures.



Engine and tender, 1-2 inch tall and 1 3-4 inches long.

"They are so small anyway that when they are almost finished and I am making the last cuts on them it is almost impossible to avoid gigging myself now and then. I don't mind it, though. That is the easiest part of the work."

"People sometimes have asked me if I sketched out the subject on the ivory handle before I started to carve," he continued. "No, I don't, because I can't. I can't draw a thing except my breath and my pay. It is hard to explain, perhaps, but I really see the figure lying there in the piece of ivory before I begin the work."

Because the imitation ivory (celluloid) handles which are his "medium" have such narrow limits of dimension, Carpenter often must study out his problem very carefully before he permits himself the pleasure of "seeing" the figure to be carved in advance of beginning the work.

Thus, the graceful little dancer and her ecstatic pose could not have been wrought from material the size of a paper-knife handle if she had not been cut out diagonally to the axis of the handle. Otherwise, her hands could not have been carved, because they would have stuck out beyond the dimensions of the ivory.

So closely does Carpenter figure his work ahead, by "seeing" it in the untouched ivory, that the empty place for coal in the tender attached to another piece representing an engine is the actual hole left in the ivory when the tang of the knife blade was withdrawn from the handle. People who examine the seven or eight figures which Carpenter has completed can hardly believe that he did it all with a pocket knife, and a small one at that. It appears to them that he must have had other tools, such as gouges, chisels and drills, but the knife has been his whole tool chest. His only other mechanical aid is a small whetstone which he carries about in his pocket and which has to be used quite often, for the imitation ivory is hard, quickly dulling the edge of the blade. Two of the blades in Carpenter's knife have been worn down to mere stumps, from the continual sharpening to which they have been subjected in the work of carving.

Harry J. Carpenter.

The figures of two women, one a headliner in vaudeville and the other a young dancer, have been carved with the assistance of pictures, but all the others, including a stem of roses, have been made from memory of the objects represented.

The statuette of a soldier, looking in these days quite old-fashioned from its lack of either steel helmet or overseas cap, is a reminiscence of some 13 years ago, when Carpenter served as First Sergeant of Company B in the old First Regiment of Infantry. He carved the figure a dozen years ago, "just to see if he could," and then dropped such work entirely until two years ago, when a friend saw the soldier figure and urged him to continue.

Carpenter said he spent "an average of a week on each one of the figures," which does not mean a whole week's time, by any means, but just the hours which he traveled on street cars during that period. He never has done any of it at home or at the office.

Another interesting point is that he does not use a magnifying glass, even in the most delicate parts of the carving. Nor sandpaper for the final smoothing, which is accomplished just by scraping with a knife, the same small knife which does the cutting.

Here are the exact measurements of the little figures which Carpenter has carved out with his pocket knife: The dancing girl is a scant one and one-fourth inches high, the soldier one and one-half inches, the caduceus one and seven-eighths inches and the diving girl one inch. The mandolin is one and three-eighths inches long. The automobile is five-sixteenths of an inch high and seven-eighths of an inch long. The locomotive and tender are one-half of an inch high and one and three-fourths inches long. The rose spray is two and five-eighths inches long.

Carpenter is one of those men, versatile and ingenious despite lack of training, who enjoy trying to do something difficult in the way of handicrafts just because it is difficult. Seeing a miniature wooden sailing vessel in a small-necked bottle, several years ago in a barber shop, he asked the barber how it was done. The barber explained that the numerous little parts were put into the bottle piece by piece, and with the aid of long tweezers and glue and much patience the vessel was assembled inside the bottle.

HER FIRST APPEARANCE

By RICHARD HARDING DAVIS

IT WAS at the end of the first act of the first night of "The Sultana," and every member of the Lester Comic Opera Company, from Lester himself down to the wardrobe woman's son, who would have had to work if his mother lost her place, was sick with anxiety.

There is perhaps only one other place as feverish as it is behind the scenes on the first night of a comic opera, and that is a newspaper office on the last night of a presidential campaign, when the returns are being flashed on the canvas outside, and the mob is howling, and the editor-in-chief is expecting to go to the court of St. James if the election comes his way.

Such nights as these try men's souls; but Van Bibber passed the stage-door man with as calmly polite a nod as though the piece had been running a hundred nights, and the manager was thinking up souvenirs for the 150th, and the prima donna had, as usual, begun to hint for a new set of costumes. The stage-door keeper hesitated and was lost, and Van Bibber stepped into the unsuppressed excitement of the place with a pleased sniff at the familiar smell of paint and burning gas.

Van Bibber dodged two stage hands who were steering a scene at him, stepped over the carpet as it unrolled, and brushed through a group of anxious, whispering chorus people into the quiet of the star's dressing room.

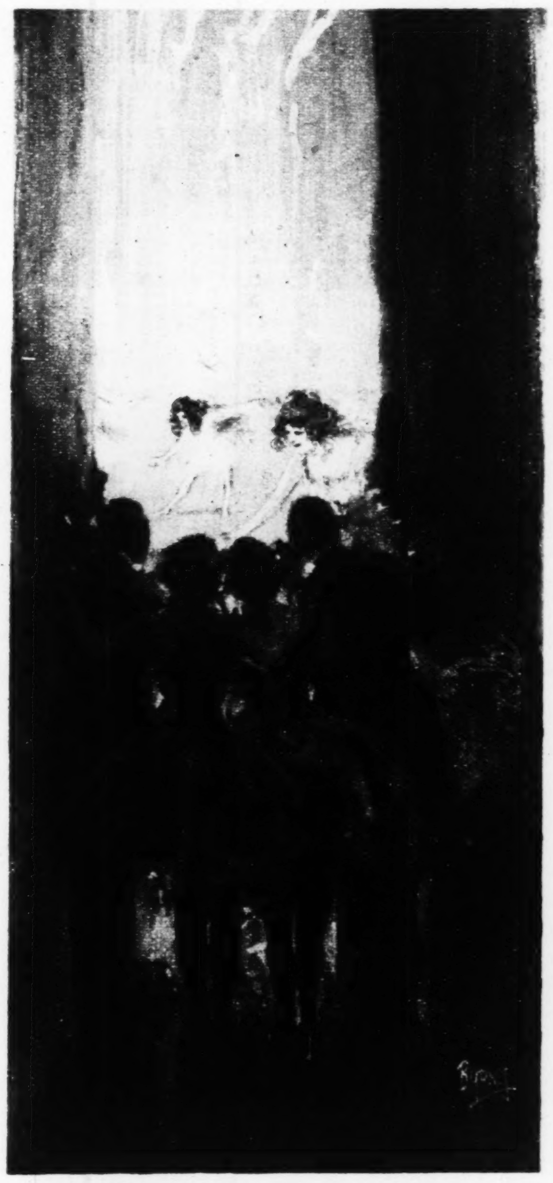
"Well," he cried, in mock resignation, "are we in it or are we not? Are they in their seats still or have they fled?"

"How are you, John?" said Van Bibber to the dresser. "Oh, it's going very well. I wouldn't have come around if it wasn't. If the rest of it is as good as the first act, you needn't worry."

Van Bibber's unchallenged freedom behind the scenes had been a source of much comment and perplexity to the members of the Lester Comic Opera Company. He had made his first appearance there during one hot night of the long run of the previous summer, and had continued to be an almost nightly visitor for several weeks. At first it was supposed that he was backing the piece, that he was the "angel," as those weak and wealthy individuals are called who allow themselves to be led into supplying the finances for theatrical experiments. But as he never peered through the curtain hole to count the house, nor made frequent trips to the front to look at the box sheet, but was, on the contrary, just as undisturbed on a rainy night as on those when the "standing room only" sign blocked the front entrance, this supposition was discarded as untenable. Nor did he show the least interest in the prima donna, or in any of the other pretty women of the company; he did not know them, nor did he make any effort to know them, and it was not until they inquired concerning him outside of the theater that they learned what a figure in the society life of the city he really was. He spent most of his time in Lester's dressing room, smoking, listening to the reminiscences of Lester's dresser when Lester was on the stage; and this seclusion and his clerical attire of evening dress led the second comedian to call him Lester's father confessor, and to suggest that he came to the theater only to take the star to task for his sins. And in this the second comedian was unknowingly not so very far wrong. Lester, the comedian, and young Van Bibber had known each other at the university, when Lester's voice and gift of mimicry had made him the leader in the college theatricals; and later, when he had gone upon the stage, and had been cut off by his family even after he had become famous, or on account of it, Van Bibber had gone to visit him, and found him as simple and sincere and boyish as he had been in the days of his Hasty-Pudding successes.

The second act was on, and Lester came off the stage and ran to the dressing room and beckoned violently. "Come here," he said; "you ought to see this; the children are doing their turn. You want to hear them. They're great!"

Van Bibber put his cigar into a tumbler and stepped out into the wings. They were crowded on both sides of the stage with members of the company; the girls were tiptoeing, with their hands on the shoulders of the men, and making futile little leaps into the air to get a better view, and others were resting on one knee that those behind them might see over their shoulders. There were over a dozen children before the footlights, with the prima donna in the center. She was singing the verse of a song and they were following her movements, and joining in the chorus with high, piping voices. They seemed entirely too much at home and too self-conscious to please Van Bibber; but there was one exception. The one exception was the smallest of them, a very, very little girl, with long auburn hair and black eyes; such a very little girl that everyone in the house looked at her first, and then looked at no one else. She was apparently as unconcerned to all about her excepting the pretty prima donna, as though she were by a piano at home practicing a singing lesson. She seemed to think it was some new sort of game. When the prima donna raised her arms, the child raised hers; when the prima donna courtesied, she stumbled into one and straightened herself just in time to get the curls out of her eyes, and to see that the prima donna was laughing at her, and to smile cheerfully back, as if to say, "We are doing our best, aren't we?" She had big, gentle eyes and two wonderful dimples, and in the excitement of the dancing and the singing her eyes laughed and flashed, and the dimples deepened and disappeared and reappeared again. She was as happy and innocent looking as though it were 9 in the morning and she were playing school at a kindergarten. From all over the house the women were murmuring their delight, and the men were laughing and pulling their mustaches and nudging each other to "look at the littlest one."



She was apparently as unconcerned as all about her excepting the pretty prima donna, as though she were by a piano at home practicing a singing lesson.

The girls in the wings were rapturous in their enthusiasm, and were calling her absurdly extravagant titles of endearment, and making so much noise that Kripps stopped grinning at her from the entrance and looked back over his shoulder as he looked when he threatened fines and calls for early rehearsal. And when she had finished finally, and the prima donna and the children ran off together, there was a roar from the house that went to Lester's head like wine, and seemed to leap clear across the footlights and drag the children back again.

"That settles it!" cried Lester, in a suppressed roar of triumph. "I knew that child would catch them."

There were four encores, and then the children and Elsie Broughten, the prima donna, came off jubilant and happy, with the Littlest Girl's arms full of flowers, which the management had with kindly forethought prepared for the prima donna, but which that delightful young person and the delighted leader of the orchestra had passed over to the little girl.

"Well," gasped Miss Broughten, as she came up to Van Bibber laughing, and with one hand on her side and breathing very quickly, "will you kindly tell me who is the leading woman now? Am I the prima donna, or am I not? I wasn't in it, was I?"

"You were not," said Van Bibber.

He turned from the pretty prima donna and hunted up the wardrobe woman, and told her he wanted to meet the Littlest Girl. And the wardrobe woman, who was fluttering wildly about, and as delighted as though they were all her own children, told him to come into the property room, where the children were, and which had been changed into a dressing room that they might be by themselves. The six little girls were in six different states of dishabille, but they were too little to mind that, and Van Bibber was too polite to observe it.

"This is the little girl, sir," said the wardrobe woman, excitedly, proud at being the means of bringing together two such prominent people. "Her name is Madeline. Speak to the gentleman, Madeline; he wants to tell you what a great big hit youse made."

The little girl was seated on one of the cushions of a double throne so high from the ground that the young woman who was pulling off the child's silk stockings and putting woolen ones on in their place did so without stooping. The young woman looked at Van Bibber and nodded somewhat doubtfully and ungraciously, and Van Bibber turned to the little girl in preference. The young woman's face was one of a type that was too familiar to be pleasant.

He took the Littlest Girl's small hand in his and shook it solemnly and said: "I am very glad to know you. Can I sit up here beside you, or do you rule alone?"

"Yes, ma'am—yes, sir," answered the little girl.

Van Bibber put his hand on the arms of the throne and vaulted up beside the girl, and pulled out the flower in his buttonhole and gave it to her.

"Now," prompted the wardrobe woman, "what do you say to the gentleman?"

"Thank you, sir," stammered the little girl.

"She is not much used to gentlemen's society," explained the woman who was pulling on the stockings.

"I see," said Van Bibber. He did not know exactly what to say next. And yet he wanted to talk to the child very much, so much more than he generally wanted to talk to most young women, who showed no hesitation in talking to him. With them he had no difficulty whatsoever. There was a doll lying on the top of a chest near them, and he picked this up and surveyed it critically. "Is this your doll?" he asked.

"No," said Madeline, pointing to one of the children, who was much taller than herself; "it's 'at 'ittle durl's. My doll, he's dead."

"Dear me!" said Van Bibber. He made a mental note to get a live one in the morning, and then he said: "That's very sad. But dead dolls do come to life."

The little girl looked up at him, and surveyed him intently and critically, and then smiled, with the dimples showing, as much as to say that she understood him and approved him entirely. Van Bibber answered this sign language by taking Madeline's hand in his and asking her how she liked being a great actress, and how soon she would begin to storm because that photographer hadn't sent the proofs. The young woman understood this and deigned to smile at it, but Madeline yawned a very polite and sleepy yawn, and closed her eyes. Van Bibber moved up closer, and she leaned over until her bare shoulder touched his arm, and while the woman buttoned on her absurdly small shoes, she let her curly head fall on his elbow and rest there.

"Look at that, now," said the wardrobe woman, catching sight of the child's closed eyelids; "just look at the rest of the little dears, all that excited they can't stand still to get their hats on, and she just as unconcerned as you please, and after making the hit of the piece, too."

"She's not used to it, you see," said the young woman, knowingly; "she don't know what it means. It's just that much play to her."

This last was said with a questioning glance at Van Bibber, in whom she still feared to find the disguised agent of the Children's Aid Society. Van Bibber only nodded in reply, and did not answer her, because he found that he could not very well, for he was looking a long way ahead at what the future was to bring to the confiding little being at his side, and of the evil knowledge and temptation that would mar the beauty of her quaintly sweet face, and its strange mark of gentleness and refinement. Outside he could hear his friend Lester shouting the refrain of his new topical song, and the laughter and the handclapping came in through the wings and open door, broken but tumultuous.

"Does she come of professional people?" Van Bibber asked, dropping into the vernacular. He spoke softly, not so much that he might not disturb the child, but that she might not understand what he said.

"Yes," the woman answered, shortly, and bent her head to smooth out the child's stage dress across her knees.

Van Bibber touched the little girl's head with his hand and found that she was asleep, and so let his hand rest there, with the curls between his fingers. "Are—are you her mother?" he asked, with a slight inclination of his head. He felt quite confident she was not; at least, he hoped not.

"Ida Clare was her mother," she said.

Van Bibber's protecting hand left the child as suddenly as though something had burned it, and he drew back so quickly that her head slipped from his arm and she awoke and raised her eyes and looked up at him questioningly. He looked back at her with a glance of the strangest concern and of the deepest pity. Then he stooped and drew her towards him very tenderly, put her head back in the corner of his arm and watched her in silence while she smiled drowsily and went to sleep again.

"And who takes care of her now?" he asked.

The woman seemed relieved. She saw that the stranger had recognized the child's pedigree and knew her story, and that he was not going to comment on it. "I do," she said. "After the divorce Ida came to me," she said, speaking more freely. "I used to be in her company when she was doing 'Aladdin,' and then when I left the stage and started to keep an actors' boarding house, she came to me. She lived with us a year, until she died, and she made me the guardian of the child. I train children for the stage, you know, me and my sister, Ada Dyer; you've heard of her, I guess. The courts pay us for her keep, but it isn't much, and I'm expecting to get what I spent on her from what she makes on the stage. Two of them other children are my pupils; but they can't touch Madie. She is a better dancer an' singer than any of them. If it hadn't been for the society keeping her back, she would have been on the stage two years ago. She's great, she is. She'll be just as good as her mother was."

"And her father," he said, hesitatingly, "does he"——

"Her father," said the woman, "he looks after himself, he does. We don't ask no favors of him. She'll get along without him or his folks, thank you. Call him a gentleman? Nice gentleman, he is!" Then she stopped abruptly. "I guess, though, you know him," she added. "Perhaps he's a friend of yourn?"

"I just knew him," said Van Bibber, wearily.

He sat with the child asleep beside him while the woman turned to the others and dressed them for the third act. She explained that Madie would not appear in the last act, only the two larger girls, so she let her sleep, with the cape of Van Bibber's cloak around her.

Van Bibber sat there for several long minutes thinking, and then looked up quickly, and dropped his eyes again quickly and said, with an effort to speak quietly and unconcernedly: "If the little girl is not on in this act, would you mind if I took her home? I have a cab at the stage door, and she's so sleepy it seems a pity to keep her up. The sister you spoke of or someone could put her to bed."

"Yes," the woman said, doubtfully, "Ada's home. Yes, you can take her around, if you want to."

She gave him the address, and he gathered the child up in his arms and stepped out on the stage. The prima donna had the center of it to herself at that moment, and all the rest of the company were waiting to go on; but when they saw the little girl in Van Bibber's arms they made a rush at her, and the girls leaned over and kissed her, with a great show of rapture and delight.

"Don't," said Van Bibber, he could not tell just why. "Don't."

"She was asleep; you've wakened her," he said, gently.

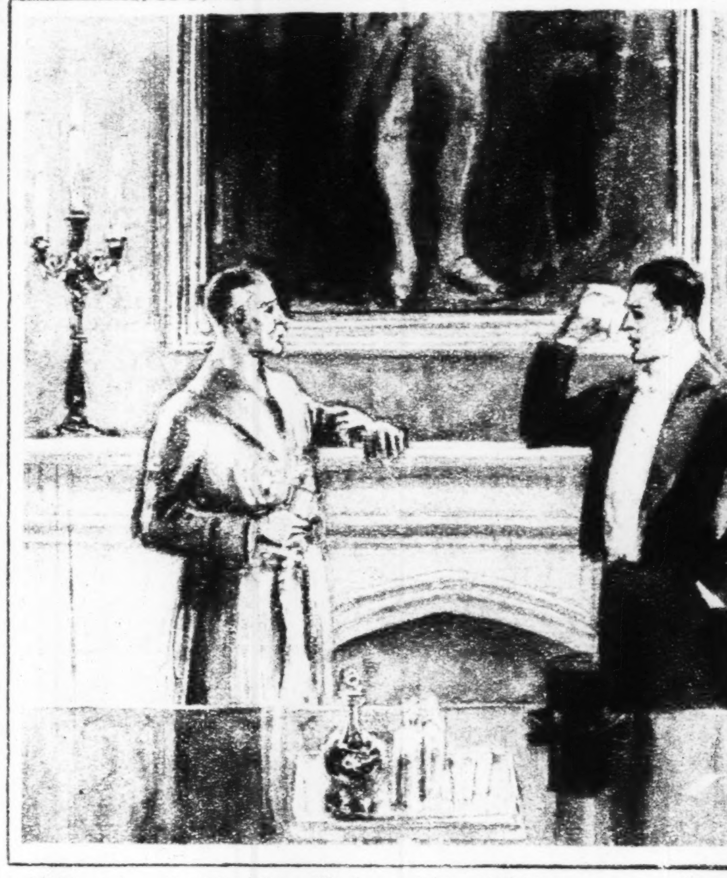
But he knew that was not the reason. He stepped into the cab at the stage entrance, and put the child carefully down in one corner. Then he looked back over his shoulder to see that there was no one near enough to hear him, and said to the driver: "To the Berkeley Flats, on Fifth avenue." He picked the child up gently in his arms as the carriage started, and sat looking out thoughtfully and anxiously as they flashed past the lighted shop windows on Broadway. He was far from certain of this errand, and nervous with doubt, but he reassured himself that he was acting on impulse, and that his impulses were so often good. The hall boy at the Berkeley said, yes, Mr. Caruthers was in, and Van Bibber gave a quick sigh of relief. He took this as an omen that his impulse was a good one. The young English servant who opened the hall door to Mr. Caruthers' apartment suppressed his surprise with an effort, and watched Van Bibber with alarm as he laid the child on the divan in the hall, and pulled a covert coat from the rack to throw over her.

"Just say Mr. Van Bibber would like to see him," he said, "and you need not speak of the little girl having come with me."

She was still sleeping, and Van Bibber turned down the light in the hall, and stood looking down at her gravely while the servant went to speak to his master.

"Will you come this way, please, sir?" he said.

"You had better stay out here," said Van Bibber, "and come and tell me if she wakes."



"What is all this about?" he asked. "Did you come here, Mr. Van Bibber, simply to tell me this?"

Mr. Caruthers was standing by the mantel over the empty fireplace. He was a tall, handsome man, with dark, reddish hair, turning below the temples into gray; his mustache was quite white, and his eyes and face showed the signs of either dissipation or of great trouble, or both. But even in the formless dressing gown he had the look and the confident bearing of a gentleman, or, at least, of the man of the world.

"Excuse my costume, will you?" he said. "I turned in rather early tonight, it was so hot." He pointed to a decanter and some soda bottles on the table and a bowl of ice, and asked, "Will you have some of this?"

"No, I think not, thank you," said the younger man. He touched his forehead with his handkerchief, nervously. "Yes, it was hot," he said.

"I was at the first night of 'The Sultana,' this evening," said Van Bibber, slowly and uncertainly.

"Oh, yes," assented the elder man, politely, and tasting his drink. "Lester's new piece. Was it any good?"

"I don't know," said Van Bibber. "Yes, I think it was. I didn't see it from the front. There were a lot of children in it—little ones; they danced and sang, and made a great hit. One of them had never been on the stage before. It was her first appearance.

"It seems to me," he said, "that it is a great pity." He looked up interrogatively at the other man, but Mr. Caruthers met his glance without any returning show of interest. "I say," repeated Van Bibber—"I say it seems a pity that a child like that should be allowed to go on in that business. A grown woman can go into it with her eyes open, or a girl who has had decent training can, too. But it's different with a child. She has no choice in the matter; they don't ask her permission; and she isn't old enough to know what it means; and she gets used to it and fond of it before she grows to know what the danger is. And then it's too late. It seemed to me that if there was anyone who had a right to stop it, it would be a very good thing to let that person know about her—about this child, I mean; the one who made the hit—before it was too late. It seems to me a responsibility I wouldn't care to take myself. I wouldn't care to think that I had the chance to stop it, and had let that chance go by. You know what the life is, and what the temptation a woman"—— Van Bibber stopped with a gasp of concern, and added, hurriedly: "I mean we all know—every man knows."

Mr. Caruthers was looking at him with his lips pressed closely together, and his eyebrows drawn into the shape of the letter V. He leaned forward, and looked at Van Bibber intently.

"What is all this about?" he asked. "Did you come here, Mr. Van Bibber, simply to tell me this? What have you to do with it? What have I to do with it? Why did you come?"

"Because of the child."

"What child?"

"Your child," said Van Bibber.

Young Van Bibber was quite prepared for an outbreak of some sort, and mentally braced himself to receive it. He rapidly assured himself that this man had every reason to be angry, and that he, if he meant to accomplish anything, had every reason to be considerate and patient. So he faced Mr. Caruthers with shoulders squared, as though it were a physical shock he had to stand against, and in consequence he was quite unprepared for what followed. For Mr. Caruthers raised his face without a trace of feeling in it, and, with his eyes fixed on the glass in his hand, set it carefully down on the mantel beside him, and girded himself about with the rope of his robe. When he spoke, it was in a tone of quiet politeness.

"Mr. Van Bibber," he began, "you are a very brave young man. You have dared to say to me what those who are my best friends—what even my own family—would not care to say. They are afraid it might hurt me, I suppose. But you have the courage of your convictions; you have no compunctions about tearing open old wounds; and you come here, unasked and uninvited, to let me know what you think of my conduct, to let me understand that it does not agree with your own ideas of what I ought to do, and to tell me how I, who am old enough to be your father, should behave. I suppose I ought to thank you for it; but I have always said that it is not the wicked people who are to be feared in this world, or do the most harm. It is the well-meaning fool who makes all the trouble. I think, if you will allow me to say so, that you have demonstrated my theory pretty thoroughly, and have done about as much needless harm for one evening as you can possibly wish. And so, if you will excuse me," he continued, sternly, and moving from his place, "I will ask to say good-night."

Van Bibber had flushed at Mr. Caruthers' first words, and had then grown somewhat pale and straightened himself visibly. He did not move when the elder man had finished, but cleared his throat, and then spoke, with some little difficulty. "It is very easy to call a man a fool," he said, slowly, "but it is much harder to be called a fool and not to throw the other man out of the window. But that, you see, would not do any good, and I have something to say to you first. I am quite well aware that I did an unconventional thing in coming here, but the situation is pretty bad, and I did as I would have wished to be done by if I had had a child going to the devil and didn't know it. However," he said, smiling grimly, "there are other kindly disposed people in the world besides fathers. There is an aunt, perhaps, or an uncle or two; and sometimes there is the chance Samaritan."

Van Bibber picked up his high hat from the table and settled it on his head. "Good night," he said, and walked slowly towards the door. He had his hand on the knob, when Mr. Caruthers raised his head.

"Wait just one minute, please, Mr. Van Bibber?" asked Mr. Caruthers.

Van Bibber paused with a prompt obedience which would have led one to conclude that he might have put on his hat only to precipitate matters.

"Before you go," said Mr. Caruthers, grudgingly, "I want to say—I want you to understand my position."

"Oh, that's all right," said Van Bibber, lightly, opening the door.

"No, it is not all right. One moment, please. I do not intend that you shall go away from here with the idea that you have tried to do me a service, and that I have been unable to appreciate it. Since you have done me the honor to make my affairs your business, I would prefer that you understand them fully. I do not care to have you discuss my conduct at clubs and with young women until you"——

Van Bibber drew in his breath sharply, with a peculiar whistling sound, and opened and shut his hands. "Oh, I wouldn't say that if I were you," he said, simply.

"I beg your pardon," the older man said, quickly. "That was a mistake. I was wrong. I beg your pardon. But you have tried me very sorely. You have intruded upon a private trouble that you ought to know must be very painful to me. I know you to be a gentleman, and I am willing to think you acted on impulse, and that you will see tomorrow what a mistake you have made. It is not a thing I talk about; I do not speak of it to my friends, and they are far too considerate to speak of it to me. But you have put me on the defensive. You have made me out more or less of a brute, and I don't intend to be misunderstood. There are two sides to every story; there is something to be said about this, even for me."

He walked back to his place beside the mantel and faced Van Bibber, with his fingers twisted in the cord around his waist.

"When I married," said Mr. Caruthers, "I did so against the wishes of my people and the advice of all my friends. You know all about that. God help us! Who doesn't?" he added, bitterly. "It was very rich, rare reading for you and for everyone else who saw the daily papers, and we gave them all they wanted of it. I took her out of that life and married her because I believed she was as good a woman as any of those who had never had to work for their living, and I was bound that my friends and your friends should recognize her and respect her as my wife had a right to be respected; and I took her abroad that I might give all you sensitive fine people a chance to get used to the idea of being polite to a woman who had once been a

WEBSTER—MAN'S MAN

By PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER XIII.

WHEN he had finished his cigar he cast the stump overboard, watched it until it disappeared astern, and then went around to stateroom No. 34. As he stepped in, and closed the door, a masculine voice said, very pleasantly:

"How do you do?"

Mr. Webster looked up and beheld a young man, arrayed in a very fancy pair of light blue silk pajamas, stretched at his ease in the upper berth. In his right hand he held an open book; his left hand grasped his bare right foot, which he was rubbing comfortably; in his mouth he held an aromatic Turkish cigarette. He was very much at home, no doubt of that, for he was smiling in the friendliest fashion imaginable.

John Stuart Webster stared at the stranger for several seconds and concluded he was invading the sanctity of another's stateroom. "Excuse me," he said, "I guess I'm in the right church but the wrong pew," and he stepped out and looked for the number of the stateroom. To his surprise, it was No. 34, after all, so he stepped back into the stateroom and favored the stranger with another scrutiny.

"It does appear to me, my friend," he said, presently, "that I detect something strangely familiar about your pajamas."

"I wouldn't be the least bit surprised, Mr. Webster. I found them in your suitcase."

"Well, how do you do?" Webster declared.

"Pretty well, all things considered. May I offer you one of your own cigarettes? I found them in the suitcase also, and can recommend them highly."

"Thank you very much." Webster helped himself to a cigarette and sat down on the settee. Fell a silence of perhaps half a minute. Then:

"I dislike to appear inquisitive," Webster began, "but the fact is, neighbor, I'm curious to know where you got that book. I observe you are reading Samuel Butler's 'Way of All Flesh,' and that the book is slightly damaged. Recently I purchased such a book in"——

"Pray do not take the trouble to explain," the other answered airily. "I discovered this excellent book in your suitcase also. In fact, for me, that suitcase has proved to be a repository of treasures."

John Stuart Webster's neck came out of his collar with the suddenness of a turtle snapping at a fly; he drew himself up beside the top berth until his face was on a level with his unbidden guest's, upon whom he bent a look of mingled emotions. On his part, the stranger returned his gaze with grave interest, and when the silence threatened to become embarrassing, he said:

"Will you have the goodness to press that button? I think we should drink a bumper to our better acquaintance and I have no doubt but that the barkeeper on this packet can manufacture a golden fizz. Do you care for the famous New Orleans golden fizz?"

"It is a wonderful institution," Webster replied, "and I'll have one. I need it to sustain me, for I am faint with amazement." He pressed the button. "While the golden fizz is fizzing," he continued, "suppose you let me have a look at your ticket."

"Ticket?" echoed his visitor. "I haven't any ticket. A kind gentleman bought one for me and has it in his possession. Do you, sir, by any chance, happen to be that philanthropic individual?"

"Well, I'll be"——

"Hush!" the stranger warned, raising an admonitory finger. "No profanity, please. I have been tenderly reared and cuss words will only shock me and clog the atmosphere. I'm here to do you and do you a delicate brown, so bear up, kind sir, and take your walloping like a sport."

"Who the devil are you?" John Stuart Webster demanded.

"I regret I have no card, but even if I had, it would be no kindness to inflict upon an American gentleman the cognomen my parents honored me with, for it is long and many-jointed, like a peanut, and embodies the names of all the saints in the calendar. Moreover, just at present I am traveling under an alias. I am known as Mr. Andrew Bowers."

"And your occupation?" Webster managed to articulate.

"Valet de chambre to that prince of gentlemen, Mr. John S. Webster," the other replied, with a mischievous gleam in his dark eyes.

Mr. Webster sat down limply on the settee. He was undecided whether to roar with laughter or shriek with rage; while he struggled for a decision Andrew Bowers blew smoke rings at the ceiling.

"Haven't I seen you before?" Webster queried presently.

"I wouldn't be surprised. I drove you down to the steamer in a taxi half an hour ago. You will recall that the taxi driver carried your luggage aboard."

Webster gazed around the stateroom. "Where have you hidden your livery?" he demanded.

"I wrapped it in a newspaper; then, seeking a moment when the deck outside was deserted, I stepped forth in my—I beg your pardon, your—pajamas and tossed it overboard."

"But apparently you did not bring aboard with you a suit of clothes to take the place of your livery?"

"Quite true—lamentably so, Mr. Webster. Perhaps you will accept my desperate need as an excuse for borrowing your pajamas. I notice you have another suit of them. Fortunate man!"

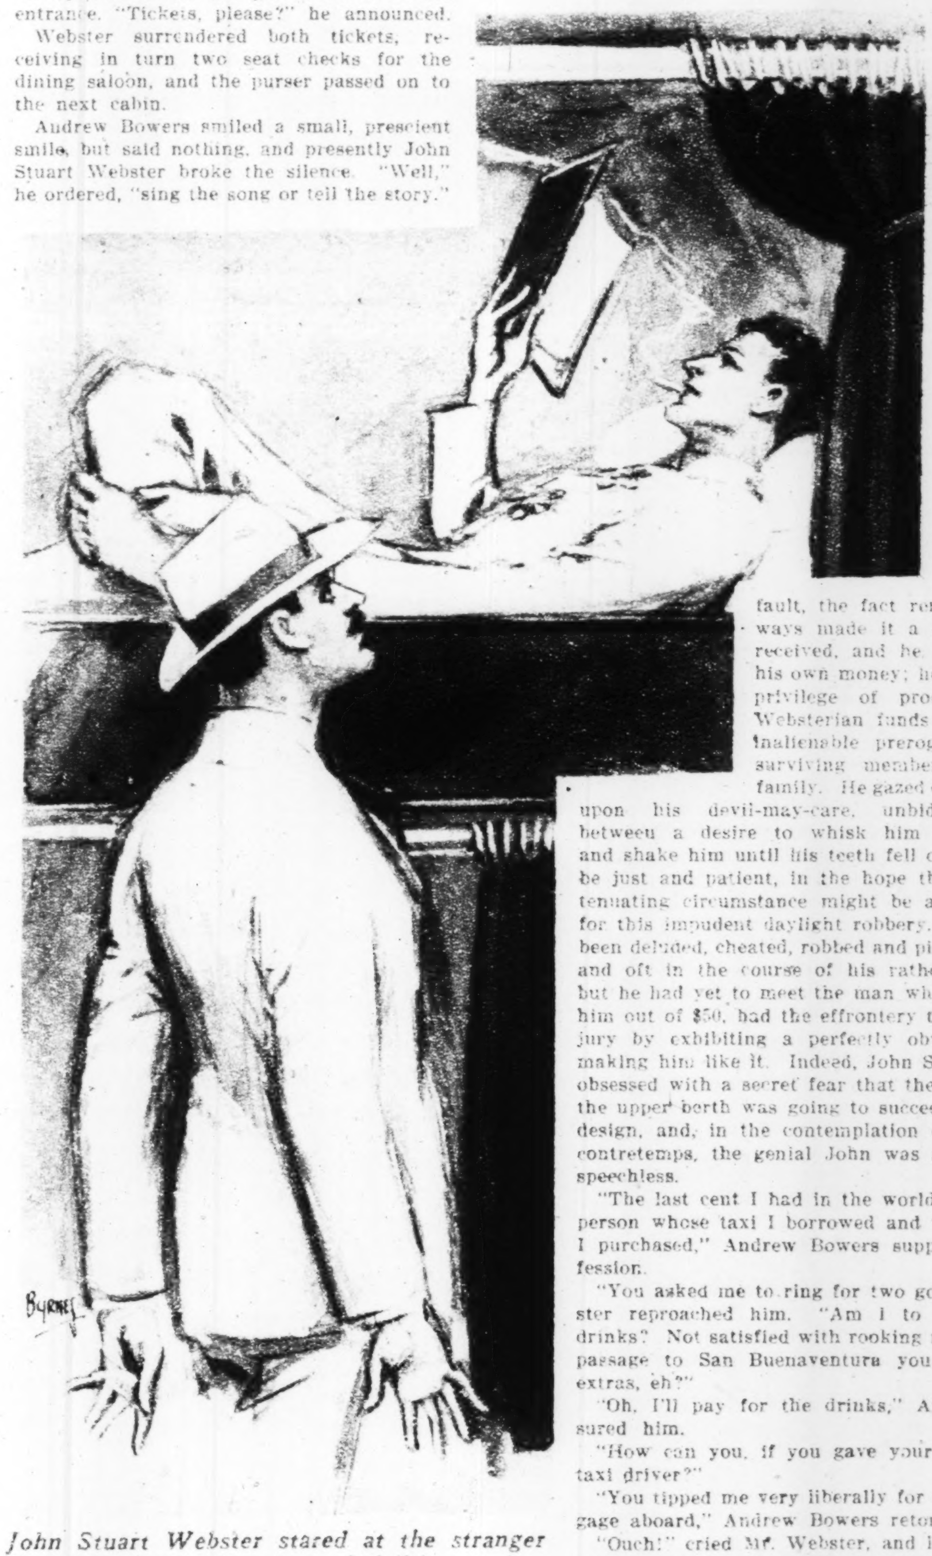
When confronted by something mysterious it was not John Stuart's habit to ask innumerable questions, and for the space of two minutes he gave himself up to deduction and a close scrutiny of his companion.

Andrew Bowers was a man of perhaps 30 years, 5 feet 10 inches tall, and apparently in excellent health. He might have weighed 170 pounds and he was undeniably handsome. His head was nobly formed and covered with thick, wavy hair, shiny and black as ebony; his eyes were dark blue; the eyebrows, thick but fine and silky, almost met over the bridge of a thin, high nose that was just a trifle too long for his face. Webster decided it was the nose of a thinker. Andrew Bowers' forehead was broad and high and his head was thick forward of the ears, infallible sign of brains; his mouth and chin were full of determination, although capable of a smile of singular sweetness; while the skin on his legs was milk-white, his hands and face were tanned to the color of a manzanita stick, seeming to indicate that he had lived an outdoor life.

While Webster was wondering whether his companion was merely a high-class tramp or an absconding bank cashier, a knock sounded on the stateroom door. He opened it and the purser stood in the entrance. "Tickets, please?" he announced.

Webster surrendered both tickets, receiving in turn two seat checks for the dining saloon, and the purser passed on to the next cabin.

Andrew Bowers smiled a small, prescient smile, but said nothing, and presently John Stuart Webster broke the silence. "Well," he ordered, "sing the song or tell the story."



John Stuart Webster stared at the stranger for several seconds and concluded he was invading the sanctity of another's stateroom.

"I noticed you surrendered my ticket to the purser," the young man answered irrelevantly, "and I am glad of that. I take it as prima facie evidence that you have made up your mind to accept my company."

"You're too infernally cool and cocksure, my friend," Webster warned him testily. "I pride myself on a sense of humor and I dearly love a joke until it's carried too far, but be advised in time, young man, and don't try to play horse with me. I haven't made up my mind to accept your company, although, provided you do not rub my fur the wrong way, I may decide to put up with you, for, whether you are a decayed gentleman or an engaging scoundrel, you are, at least, intelligent and impressive, clean, white, resourceful and pleasant. However, my acceptance or nonacceptance of you is a subject for future discussion, since at present we have some fiduciary matters before us. You owe me for your ticket, Andrew Bowers, and in view of th fact that I never saw you before today, suppose we start the voyage by squaring the account."

Andrew Bowers sat up in the berth and let his legs drape over the side. "Mr. Webster," he began seriously, "had I sung my song or told my story before you surrendered that ticket to the purser I might have found myself in a most embarrassing predicament. If, prior to the arrival of the purser to collect th tickets, you had handed my ticket to me, saying: "Her is your ticket, Mr. Bowers. Be kind enough to reimburse me to the extent of $50,' I should have been compelled to admit then, as I do now, that I haven't $50. Fortunately for me, however, you surrendered the ticket to the purser before acquainting yourself with the state of my fortunes; the voyage has commenced and, whether you like it or not, my dear sir, I am your guest from now until we reach San Buenaventura. Rather an interesting situation, don't you think?"

John Stuart Webster was of Scotch ancestry. He had an hereditary regard for his baubees. He was a business man. Prodigal spender though he was and generous to a fault, the fact remained that he always made it a point to get value received, and he was prodigal with his own money; he preferred that the privilege of prodigality with the Websterian funds should remain an inalienable prerogative of the sole surviving member of the Webster family. He gazed contempatively now upon his devil-may-care, unbidden guest, torn between a desire to whisk him out of the berth and shake him until his teeth fell out, and another to be just and patient, in the hope that some great extenuating circumstance might be adduced to account for this impudent daylight robbery. Mr. Webster had been deluded, cheated, robbed and pillaged many a time and oft in the course of his rather eventful career, but he had yet to meet the man who, having swindled him out of $50, had the effrontery to add insult to injury by exhibiting a perfectly obvious intention of making him like it. Indeed, John Stuart Webster was obsessed with a secret fear that the smiling bandit in the upper berth was going to succeed in his nefarious design, and, in the contemplation of this unheard-of contretemps, the genial John was struck temporarily speechless.

"The last cent I had in the world went to that taxi person whose taxi I borrowed and whose old uniform I purchased," Andrew Bowers supplemented his confession.

"You asked me to ring for two golden fizzes," Webster reproached him. "Am I to be stuck for the drinks? Not satisfied with rooking me for a first-class passage to San Buenaventura you plan to tack on extras, eh?"

"Oh, I'll pay for the drinks," Andrew Bowers assured him.

"How can you, if you gave your last cent to that taxi driver?"

"You tipped me very liberally for carrying your baggage aboard," Andrew Bowers retorted, slyly.

"Ouch!" cried Mr. Webster, and laughed. The very next instant he was provoked at himself for having done so. That laugh gave the brigand Andrew a decided advantage, for it placed Webster on defensive ground. He was convinced of this when the brigand said:

"Thanks for that laugh, Mr. Webster. It arouses hope in my sad heart. I have outraged your patience, your privacy and your pocketbook—yet you laughed. Bueno. I will be equally good-natured and forgive you for questioning my sincerity in the matter of dispensing my hospitality; even the little slur cast on my veracity in the matter of my finances shall pass unnoticed."

"I think you are too cool, young man," Webster retorted. "Just a trifle too cocksure. Up to the present moment you have proffered no evidence why you should not be adjudged a cad, and I do not like cads and must decline to permit one to occupy the same stateroom at my expense. You are clever and amusing and I laughed at you, but at the same time my sense of humor is not so great as to cause me to overlook your impudence and laugh with you. Now, if you have anything to say, say it quickly, because you're going to go away from here—in a hurry."

"I plead guilty to the indictment, Mr. Webster, and submit as an excuse the fact that desperate circumstances require desperate measures. I am not begging my way, neither am I beating it, for the reason that both forms of travel are repugnant to me. I am merely taking advantage of certain fortuitous circumstances to force you, an entire stranger, to extend to me a credit of $50 until we reach San Buenaventura, when you will be promptly reimbursed. I had thought," he added, sadly, "that my face might prove ample security for a $50 loan. There has never been a crook in my family and I have never been charged with a penal offense or been in jail."

"It is not my habit," Webster retorted, stiffly, "to extend credit to strangers who demand it."

"I do not demand it, sir. I beg it of you, and because I cannot afford to be refused I took care to arrange matters so that you would not be likely to refuse my request. Really, I do not mean to be cocksure and impudent, but before you throw me out I'd like to let you in on a secret about yourself."

"Well?"

"You're not going to throw me out."

"Why not?"

"Because you can't."

"That's fighting talk. Now, just to prove to you the depth of error in which you flounder, young man, I am about to throw you out." And he grasped Andrew Bowers in the grip of a grizzly bear and whisked him out of the top berth.

"Wait one second," his helpless victim cried. "I have something to say before you go any further."

"Say it," Webster ordered. "Your tongue is the only part of you that I cannot control."

"When you throw me out on deck," Andrew Bowers queried, "do your pajamas go with me? Does the hair go with the hide?"

"They cost me $16 in Salt Lake City, but—good Lord, yes. I can't throw you out mother naked; damn it, I can't throw you out at all."

"Didn't I tell you so? Be a good fellow and turn me loose."

"Certainly—for the time being. You'll stay locked in this stateroom while I have a talk with the captain. He'll probably dig up a shirt, a pair of dungarees and some old shoes for you and set you ashore before we get out of the river. If he doesn't do that he'll keep you aboard and you'll shovel coal for your passage."

"But I'm Andrew Bowers and the purser has collected my first-class ticket!"

"What of it? I shall declare—and with truth—that you are not Andrew Bowers, that you are not my valet, and that I did not buy the ticket for you. I dare you to face the captain in my pajamas and prove you aren't a stowaway."

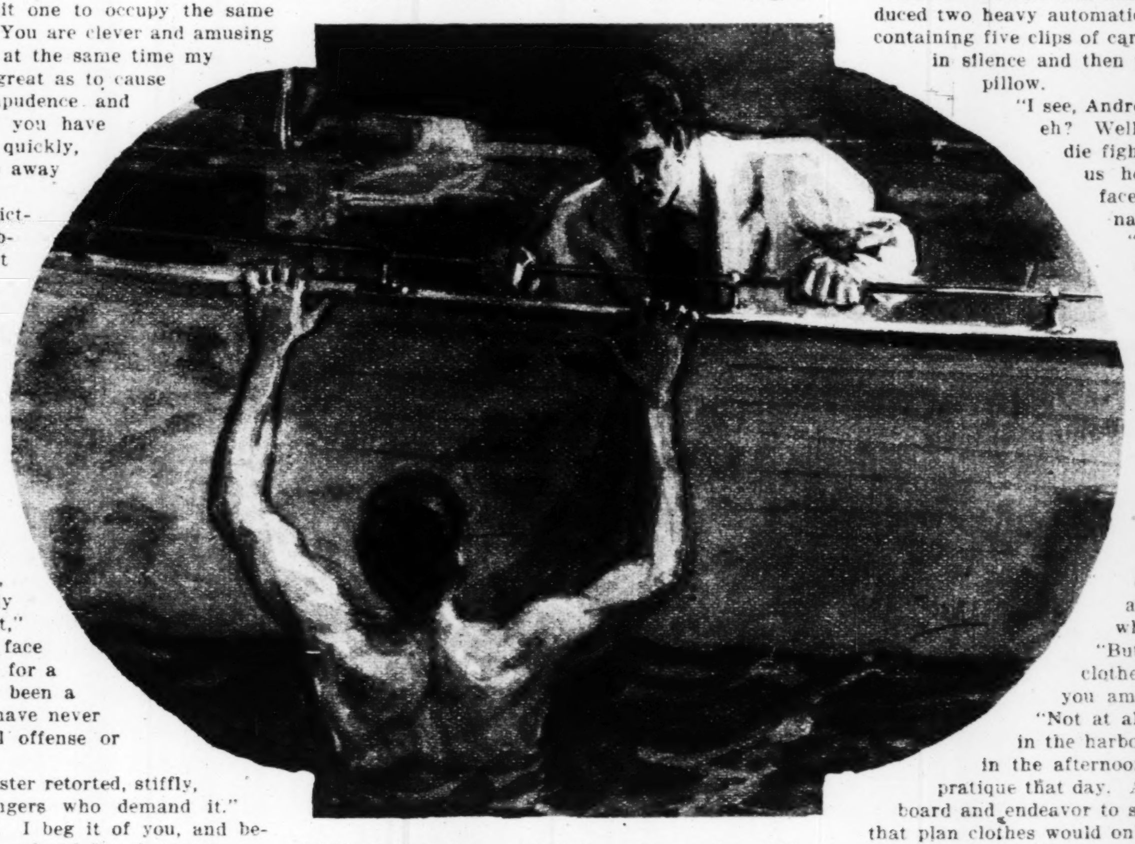
"You would win on that point," the baffling guest admitted, "but it is a point you will not raise. Why? Because I have another trump up my kimona." He climbed back into the upper berth and from that vantage point gazed down benevolently upon John Stuart Webster. "I'm disappointed in you," he continued sadly. "I thought you'd show a little normal human curiosity about me—and you haven't. You do not ask questions or I could explain, while I cannot volunteer information without seeming to seek your pity, and that course would be repugnant to me. I have never shoveled coal, although I daresay I could manage to earn my passage as a stoker; indeed, I dare say I shall have to, if you insist on being belligerent, and if you insist I shall not oppose you. I am hoping, however, that you will not insist, but that you will, on the contrary, accept my word of honor that you shall be reimbursed two hours after you land in San Buenaventura."

"New music to your song, my friend, but the same old words," Webster retorted, and stepped to the stateroom door. "You're doomed to shovel coal or go ashore."

"Listen. If I go ashore, your responsibility for my life ceases, Mr. Webster, but if the chief engineer happens to be short one coal passer and the captain sends me down to the stokehole, your responsibility for my death begins, for I'll be put ashore publicly at San Buenaventura and two hours later I'll be facing a firing squad in the cemetery of the Cathedral de la Vera Cruz."

"Gosh!" John Stuart Webster murmured dazedly, "I'm afraid I can't take a chance like that for $50."

A knock sounded on the door and Webster opened it. A waiter stood in the entrance. "Did you ring, sir?"



"All right," he replied in a low voice. "Hang where you are and you will be clear of the propeller."

"I did," replied John Stuart Webster. "Bring up two glasses and a quart of the best wine aboard the ship."

The waiter hastened away and Webster turned to face the little, cryptic, humorous smile that made his traveling companion so singularly boyish and attractive.

"You win, son," Webster declared. "I'm whipped to a frazzle. Any time I'm sitting in back of a royal flush and the other fellow bluffs me out of the pot, I always buy the wine. When it arrives we shall drink to our better acquaintance. Pending its arrival, please be advised that you are welcome to my pajamas, my cigarettes, my book and my stateroom. You are my guest and you owe me nothing, except, perhaps, your confidence, although I do not insist upon that point. Where I come from every man kills his own snakes."

And he held up his hand for Andrew Bowers to shake.

"Mr. Webster," the latter declared, feelingly, "I am not a lord of language, so I cannot find words to thank you. I agree with you that you are entitled to my confidence. My name is"——

"Tut, tut, my boy. Your name is Andrew Bowers, and that identifies you sufficiently for the time being. Your face is a guaranty of your character and entitles you to a nominal credit."

"But"——

"Make me no buts. I care not who you are; perhaps what I do not know will not distress me. When I suggested that I was entitled to a measure of your confidence, I meant on a few minor points only—points on which my curiosity has been abnormally aroused."

"Very well, my friend. Fire away."

"Are you an American citizen?"

"No; I am a citizen of Sobrante."

"You have assured me that you are not a crook; consequently I know you are not fleeing from the United States authorities. You had no money to pay for your passage to San Buenaventura, so you schemed to make me pay your way. Hence I take it that your presence in the capital of your native country is a matter of extreme importance and that the clerk in the ticket office of the Caribbean Mail Line is a friend of yours."

"Quite true. He knew my need."

"You were under surveillance and could not leave New Orleans for San Buenaventura unless you left secretly. When I purchased both berths in this stateroom and the ticket clerk knew I held a first-class ticket for a valet that was not, he decided to saw off on me a valet that was. So he gave you my name and the name of my hotel, you arranged matters with the taxi starter and the taxi driver and drove me to the steamer. Disguised in the livery of a chauffeur and carrying hand baggage you hoped to get aboard without being detected by your enemies, who watched the gangplank."

Andrew Bowers nodded.

"I do not know, Mr. Webster. I hope so. If I did not—well, the instant this steamer drops anchor in the roadstead at San Buenaventura, she will be boarded and searched by the military police, I will be discovered and"—— He shrugged.

"Lawn party in the cemetery, eh?" Webster suggested.

Andrew Bowers reached under his pillow and produced two heavy automatic pistols and a leathern box containing five clips of cartridges. These he exhibited in silence and then thrust them back under the pillow.

"I see, Andrew. In case you're cornered, eh? Well, I think I would prefer to die fighting myself. However, let us hope you will not have to face any such unpleasant alternative."

"I'm not worried, Mr. Webster. Somehow, I think I ran the gantlet safely."

"But why did you throw your livery overboard?"

"It was of no further use to me. A chauffeur on shipboard would be most incongruous, and the sight of the livery hanging on yonder peg would be certain to arouse the curiosity of the room steward. And I'm not going to appear on deck throughout the voyage. Might meet somebody who knows me."

"But you'll have to have some clothes in which to go ashore, you amazing man."

"Not at all. The steamer will arrive in the harbor of San Buenaventura late in the afternoon—too late to be given pratique that day. After dark I shall drop overboard and endeavor to swim ashore, and in view of that plan clothes would only prove an embarrassment. I shall land in my own country naked and penniless, but once ashore I shall quickly find shelter. I'll have to risk the sharks, of course."

"Man-eaters?"

"The bay is swarming with them."

"You're breaking my heart," Webster declared sympathetically. "I suppose you're going to feign illness throughout the voyage?"

"Not the kind of illness that will interfere with my appetite. I have prescribed for myself a mild attack of inflammatory rheumatism, as an excuse for remaining in bed and having my meals brought to me. This service, of course, will necessitate some slight expense in the way of tips, but I am hoping you will see your way clear to taking care of that for your guest."

Silently Webster handed Andrew Bowers $10 in silver. "That ought to hold you," he declared. "For the rest, you're up to some political skullduggery in Sobrante, and what it is and what's your real name are two subjects in which I am not interested. I am on a vacation and intend to amuse myself. If I find you as amusing as you appear at the outset of our acquaintance I shall do my best to break the tedium of your confinement in this stateroom and if I find you dull I shall leave you to your own devices. Let us talk anything but business and personalities and let it be understood that you are my valet, Andrew Bowers. That's all I know about you and that's all I care to know about you. In fact, the less I know about you the less I will have to explain in the event of your sudden demise."

"Fair enough," quoth Andrew Bowers. "You're a man after my own heart. I thank you."

CHAPTER XIV.

PRIOR to leaving New Orleans, Webster had cabled Billy Geary that he was taking passage on La Estrellita and stating the approximate date of his arrival at San Buenaventura—which information descended upon that young man with something of the charm of a gentle rainfall over a hitherto arid district. He had been seeing Dolores Ruey at least once a day ever since her return to Sobrante; indeed, only the fear that he might wear out his welcome prevented him from seeing her twice a day. He was quick, therefore, to seize upon Webster's cablegram as an excuse to call upon Dolores and explain the mystery surrounding his friend's nonappearance.

"Well, Dolores," he began, in his excitement calling her by her first name for the first time, "they say it's a long lane that hasn't got a saloon at the end of it. I've heard from Jack Webster."

"What's the news, Bill?" Dolores inquired. From the first day of their acquaintance she had been growing increasingly fond of Geary; for nearly a week she had been desirous of calling him Bill, which is a comfortable name, and, to Dolores' way of thinking, a peculiarly appropriate cognomen for such a distinctly

WHY IS A HOTEL CLERK?

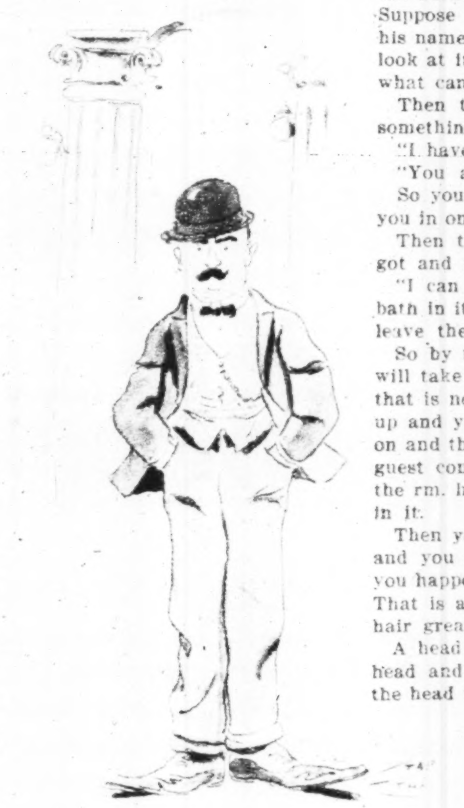
By RING W. LARDNER.

TO THE EDITOR:

I notice in the magazines lately where they's correspondents schools advertising to learn you the hotel business so as you can get a high salary position working in a hotel which it says they's a nation wide demand for same and they will not only learn you by mail but see that you get a position, and it don't say what position but I suppose the ones that pays the high salarys is manager, clerk, valet, chamber maid, house detective and etc.

Well, friends, I guess anybody that has to monkey around a hotel would rather do it as a employ than a guest, but in the case they's any of my friends and readers that feels like they got a vocation for chamber maid or something why let me advise them that most hotel employes is born and not made and I can tell them in a few wds. all as they need to know if they got the looks and talent to begin with, and if they ain't they would be wasteing their money on a correspondents coarse and I may say at this junction that I made a study of the hotel business wile traveling around with the baseball boys as I figured the time might come when my brains would give way under the strains of a baseball writer and I might maybe half to indulge in some other line of sabotage.

Well friends we will start out with the manager job, as that is the most exciteing and takes the most practice. A party that wants to be manager of a hotel should ought to begin practiceing for it when they are a child and they's no better practice than the old fashion game of hide and seek and as soon as a person gets so good in this game that they can't never find him, why he is eligible for a hotel manager and they tell me that the owner of some big N. Y. hotels is anxious for the partys that killed Elwell and tried to blow up Wall St. to give themselfs up, as he figures if they can keep under cover this long they would be ideal managers for a hotel. Most hotel rooms now days has a sign in them that says if the guests has got any complaints to make, to make them to the manager. These signs is a smart piece of business because for inst. suppose its the guest's last day and he gets sore at something and wants to complain to the manager, why if the manager is a 1st. class manager, the guest will half to keep the rm. maybe 3 or 4 yrs. before he can find him to complain to.



A house detective's assets is big feet.

In order to be a clerk in a hotel you have got to have hair that will hold oil and pretend like you are deef and 1-2 witted. When a party comes up to the desk to register the clerk is suppose to play that he don't know they's anybody there. This game lasts from 20 to 40 minutes and the idear is to keep the party on his drooping arches long enough so as he will pay any price for a rm. with a chair. It is also nessary for a clerk to memorize a few lines to say when the sucker finely gets your attention. Suppose the guest has wrote down his name which is H. M. Fields. You look at it and say: "Well Mr. Foley what can I do for you?"

Then the guest says he wants a rm. with a bath something around $4.00. Then you say:

"You advertise them," says the guest.

So you say, "Well, they are all took but I can put you in one if you don't mind doubling up with a leper."

Then the guest asks you what price rm. you have got and you say:

"I can give you a nice rm. at $12.00 but they's no bath in it but we will see that you are clean before you leave the hotel."

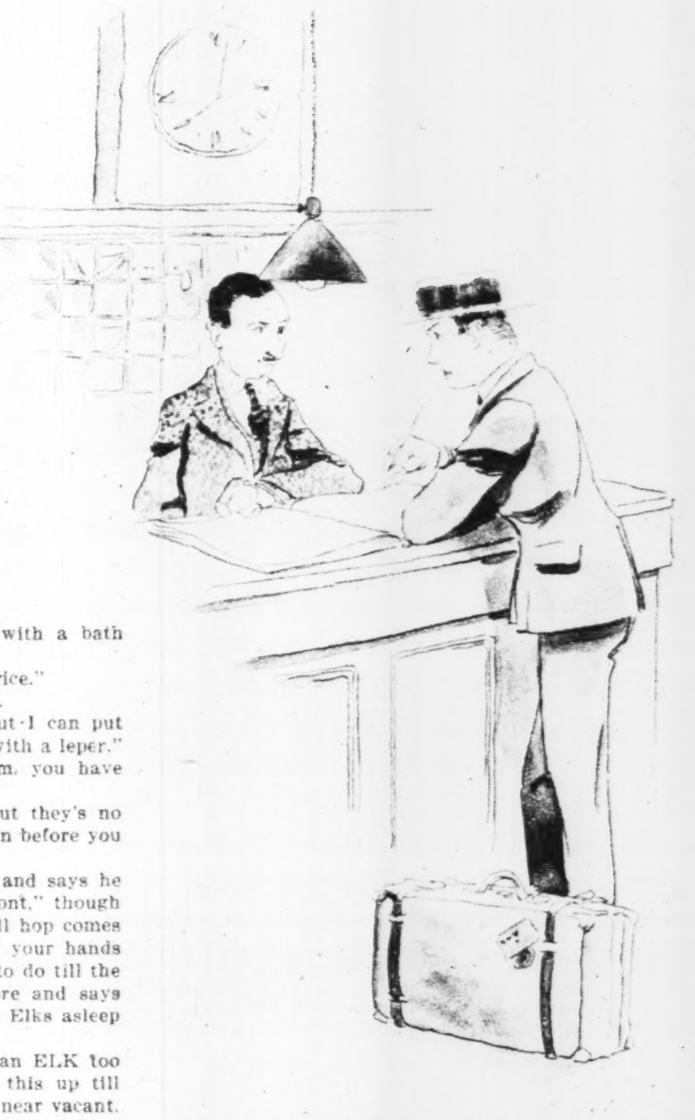
So by this time the guest is exhausted and says he will take the $12.00 rm. and you say, "Front," though that is no description of the rm. and a bell hop comes up and you give him the 1st. key you lay your hands on and then you don't have nothing more to do till the guest comes back to the desk kind of sore and says the rm. has only got one bed and they's 2 Elks asleep in it.

Then you tell him you thought he was an ELK too and you give him another key and keep this up till you happen to light on a rm. that is pretty near vacant. That is about all a clerk's dutys except to keep their hair greased and tell everybody they's no mail.

A head waiter gets his name from the Greek words head and wait meaning that the body grows up but the head waits and the qualifications is ability to keep the shirt bosom from popping out at a guest and a mastery of the French words for daintys like cure du mange and he is suppose to make the guests feel at home some way like for inst. giveing them a table where the linen is dirty.

All as a hotel valet needs is a eye for colors so as when a guest calls up and asks for his suit back you can pick out one for him that the pants and coat nearly matches.

A bell boy should ought to be able to read character so as he can tell if the client will pay $9.00 or $24.00 a qt. A chamber maid ought to have a uncanny knowledge of what time different guests is liable to get up so as she can manage to burst into everybody's rm. wile they are dressing.



"Well, Mr. Foley, what can I do for you?"

A house detective's assets is big ft. and a conviction that if a lady ain't homelier than a cross town car she can't be married.

One of the most fascinateing jobs around a hotel is the manager of the one day laundry as he has got to lay his plans so that the guests won't never find out which day it's a laundry.

These is some of the principal hotel jobs and what you got to look like and know to hold onto them and you don't need to waste no money on no correspondents coarse to learn them, but what is really needed in this country is some kind of a school where a person can learn to be a inveterate hotel guest and not come down with rabbies.

burlesque actress. It began over there in Paris. What I went through then no one knows; but when I came back—it was my friends I had to consider and not her. It was in the blood; it was in the life she had led, and in the life men like you and me had taught her to live. And it had to come out."

The muscles of Mr. Caruthers' face were moving, and beyond his control.

"She had every chance when she married me that a woman ever had," continued the older man. "It only depended on herself. I didn't try to make a housewife of her or a drudge. She had all the healthy excitement and all the money she wanted, and she had a home here ready for her whenever she was tired of traveling about and wished to settle down. And I was—and a husband that loved her as—she had everything. Everything that a man's whole thought and love and money could bring to her. And you know what she did.

"And after the divorce—and she was free to go where she pleased, and to live as she pleased, without bringing disgrace on a husband who honestly loved her—I swore to my God that I would never see her nor her child again. And I never saw her again, not even when she died. I loved the mother, and she deceived me and disgraced me and broke my heart, and I only wish she had killed me; and I was beginning to love her child, and I vowed she should not live to trick me, too. I had suffered as no man I know had suffered; in a way a boy like you cannot understand, and that no one can understand who has not gone to hell and been forced to live after it. And was I to go through that again? Was I to love and care for and worship this child, and have her grow up with all her mother's vanity and animal nature, and have her turn on me some day and show me that what is bred in the bone must tell, and that I was a fool again—a pitiful, fond fool? I could not trust her. I can never trust any woman or child again, and least of all that woman's child. She is as dead to me as though she were buried with her mother, and it is nothing to me what she is or what her life is. I know in time what it will be. She has begun earlier than I supposed, that is all; but she is nothing to me." The man stopped and turned his back to Van Bibber and hid his head in his hands, with his elbows on the mantelpiece. "I care too much," he said. "I cannot let it mean anything to me; when I do care, it means so much more to me than to other men. They may pretend to laugh and to forget and to outgrow it, but it is not so with me. It means too much." He took a quick stride towards one of the armchairs, and threw himself into it. "Why, man," he cried, "I loved that child's mother to the day of her death. I loved that woman then, and, God help me! I love that woman still."

He covered his face with his hands, and sat leaning forward and breathing heavily as he rocked himself to and fro. Van Bibber still stood looking gravely out at the lights that picketed the black surface of the city. He was to all appearances as unmoved by the outburst of feeling into which the older man had been surprised as though it had been something in a play. There was an unbroken silence for a moment, and then it was Van Bibber who was the first to speak.

"I came here, as you say, on impulse," he said; "but I am glad I came, for I have your decisive answer now about the little girl. I have been thinking," he continued, slowly, "since you have been speaking, and before, when I first saw her dancing in front of the footlights, when I did not know who she was, that I could give up a horse or two, if necessary, and support this child instead. Children are worth more than horses, and a man who saves a soul, as it says"—he flushed slightly, and looked up with a hesitating, deprecatory smile—"somewhere, wipes out a multitude of sins. And it may be I'd like to try and get rid of some of mine. I know just where to send her; I know the very place. It's down in Evergreen Bay, on Long Island. They are tenants of mine there, and very nice farm sort of people, who will be very good to her. They wouldn't know anything about her, and she'd forget what little she knows of this present life very soon, and grow up with the other children to be one of them; and then, when she gets older and becomes a young lady, she could go to some school—but that's a bit too far ahead to plan for the present; but that's what I am going to do, though," said the young man, confidently, and as though speaking to himself. "That theatrical boarding-house person could be bought off easily enough," he went on, quickly, "and Lester won't mind letting her go if I ask it, and—and that's what I'll do. As you say, it's a good deal of an experiment, but I think I'll run the risk."

He walked quickly to the door and disappeared in the hall, and then came back, kicking the door open as he returned, and holding the child in his arms.

"This is she," he said, quietly. He did not look at or notice the father, but stood with the child asleep in the bend of his left arm, gazing down at her. "This is she," he repeated; "this is your child."

There was something cold and satisfied in Van Bibber's tone and manner, as though he were congratulating himself upon the engaging of a new groom; something that placed the father entirely outside of it. He might have been a disinterested looker-on.

"She will need to be fed a bit," Van Bibber ran on, cheerfully. "They did not treat her very well, I fancy. She is thin and peaked and tired-looking." He drew up

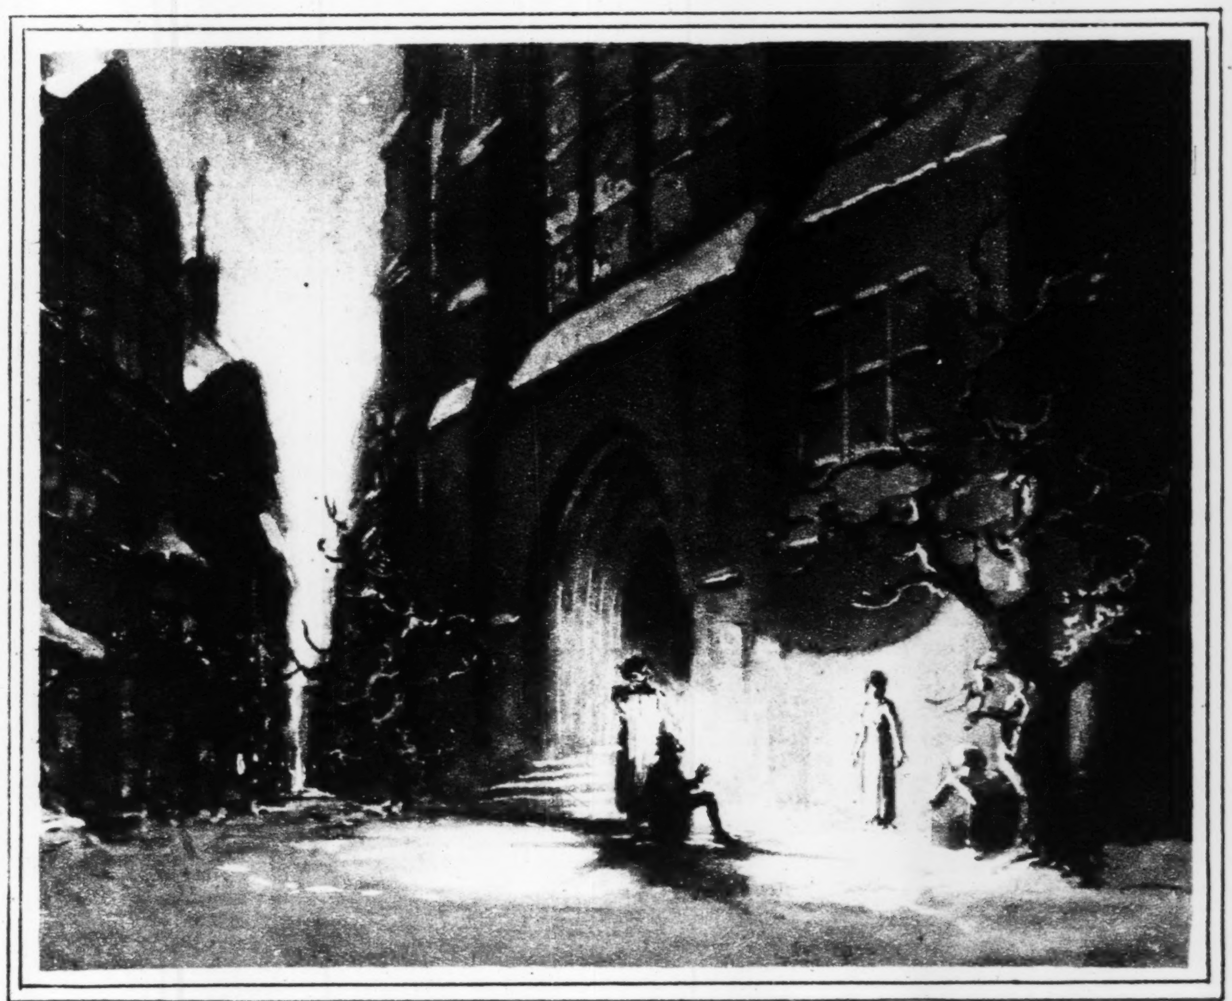
Devil Is Duped in This New Version of "Faust"

Famous legend receives startlingly modern treatment in libretto of new opera by Ferruccio Busoni—Marguerite episode over and forgotten before curtain rises—When Mephistopheles comes to seize Faust's soul, he finds only an empty body—Immortality not personal, but in one's children :: ::



He sees, instead of the crucifix, the form of Helen of Troy.

GOUNOD'S "Faust," which is said to be sung more frequently than any other five operas, ends with the death of Marguerite and the rescue of her soul by a troop of angels, while Mephistopheles, dragging Faust with him, disappears in a fiery abyss.

But does this denouement exhaust the possibilities of the legend? Goethe thought not, and to the Marguerite episode added a second part. Boito agreed with him, and based the fourth act and the epilogue of his opera, "Mefistofele," upon this second part of Goethe's titanic drama. So also believes the eminent pianist and composer, Ferruccio Busoni, who is writing an opera, "Doktor Faust," in which the incident with Gretchen is already over and forgotten before the curtain rises.

Busoni's libretto has appeared in book form, according to recent advices from Berlin, to which city the Italian maestro has returned to take up the career which was interrupted by the war. His version of the Faust story is signalized by the invention of many novel incidents, and by the injection of a moral of twentieth century modernism. Busoni has played some of the music at his European concerts.

There are two prologues, the first of which is recited in verse before the curtain after a musical prelude symbolizing Easter Eve and the burgeoning of spring. In this preface Busoni sets forth the motives which guided him in creating the opera.

From earliest childhood, he confesses, he was haunted by a play in which the devil appeared, and from this seed the opera of "Doktor Faust" has gradually developed and ripened. He considered the three great heroes of legend who have come into closest contact with the unearthly—Merlin, the enchanter; Don Giovanni, who invites to supper the statue of a man whom he has murdered; and Dr. Johann Faustus. It was finally to the puppet-play of Faust that Busoni turned.

The composer proceeds to summarize his theory of music and the drama. The stage, he says, is a mirror; it must not be a distorting mirror, but a magic mirror.

The second prologue is placed in the study of Faust, Rector Magnificus of Wittenberg. The scholar and magician is in parlous plight. Creditors hound him; the priests are on his track for sorcery; the stake awaits him. He has already accomplished the betrayal of Marguerite, having needed no spirits from the vasty deep to aid him, and has forgotten the incident. But her brother, Valentine, is still alive—the fatal duel of Goethe and Gounod has been discarded—and still remembers. He is vengefully searching for the seducer of his sister.

Ferruccio Busino.

Wagner, the factotum, announces three students from Cracow, who present to Faust a volume, "Clavis Astartis Magica" ("Magic Key of Astarte"). They will take no pay for it; Faust shall reward them some day. They go. At midnight Faust, employing the spells revealed in the book, calls up a series of spirits, the seventh of whom is Mephistopheles, who offers to bargain for Faust's soul.

In the old legend, Faust demanded youth, sensual enjoyment and evil science. With Goethe, his request is for one fleeting instant of pleasure, so genuine that he will exclaim to the moment, "Ah, still delay, thou art so fair!" But with Busoni the demand is neither for youth, dissipation nor happiness. What this Faust exacts is freedom, genius and its pangs.

He still hesitates to strike the bargain, however, until a minion of the law knocks at the door to lead him before the inquisition. Mephistopheles executes for Faust his first murder, and he signs the contract as dawn breaks and the people outside sing "Gloria in Excelsis."

On this double prologue follows an intermezzo. The scene is in a cathedral. Valentine, in armor, kneels before an altar, and prays to the God of battle and vengeance that he may find his sister's lover. Faust and Mephistopheles are watching at the door. If the soldier turns and sees Faust one or the other must die. Mephistopheles takes on the semblance of a monk and kneels at Valentine's side. Has not the soldier something to confess before his hour comes?

Yet Valentine seems to recognize Mephistopheles as a devil. An officer and other soldiers enter, attack and slay Valentine on some old score. The monk, Mephistopheles, gives them his grotesque blessing, then looks at Faust, points to the corpse and adds up his account. The curtain falls.

Now begins the real play. To the court of the Duke of Parma on his wedding day Mephistopheles, as a herald, introduces the wonder-working magician, Dr. Faust. Invited to exhibit his art, he turns day into night, and shows the spectators three visions: First, Solomon and the Queen of Sheba, then Samson and Delilah, and lastly Salome and John the Baptist, beside whom is an executioner with a drawn sword.

Each pair of lovers seems to bear the features of Faust himself and the Duchess; the executioner resembles the Duke. The Duke is suspicious, but thanks Faust politely, and escorts his Duchess to the wedding feast. Mephistopheles warns Faust to make his escape, but he refuses to go alone.

The stage is empty for a moment; then the Duchess passes wildly across in pursuit of Faust. Suddenly it is daylight again, and Mephistopheles, now a court chaplain, breaks the news gently to the Duke that his consort has eloped. He suggests that as she and Faust went off into the air on fiery horses, it would be better to say nothing about it and look for another wife. The Duke of Ferrara is planning an attack on Parma. Why not marry his sister and prevent it?

The scene changes to Wittenberg. In a tavern students are discussing, with more or less frivolity, the Platonic theory of ideas. They turn to Faust for his opinion. "Nothing has ever been proved and nothing ever can be proved," he says. These words are the underlying theme of the drama. Faust begins to speak of Martin Luther, but is interrupted by a general quarrel between Protestant and Catholic students. This settles into agreement, in German and Latin, on the merits of wine, women and song.

Faust recalls his adventure with the Duchess of Parma, and is in the middle of the story when Mephistopheles, a dust-spattered courier, rushes in. The Duchess is dead and buried, he says, and sends to Faust as a remembrance the dead body of a new-born child, which he flings at Faust's feet.

The students fall upon Mephistopheles. Why take it so tragically? he asks; it is only a bundle of straw. He sets fire to it. The students flee in terror; Faust is horrified. He shall possess something finer than the Duchess, Mephistopheles promises; and in the column of smoke appears the celestial figure of Helen of Troy.

Faust pursues her in a sort of slow dance until, just as he would seize her, she vanishes. In the background loom up three black figures—the students from Cracow. They demand the book, but Faust has destroyed it. They warn him that at midnight his hour will come. "The hour of my perfection," he answers, and points them to the door. They vanish.

The last scene represents a street in Wittenberg, with an entrance to the cathedral and a great crucifix on the wall. Wagner enters. He has become Rector Magnificus in succession to Faust. Students congratulate him upon his inaugural address. Faust? Ah, well, he was rather a seer of visions than a man of sound learning, and in private life—God help us! And so good-night, gentlemen! A watchman passes, and the students run off, singing in chorus.

Faust enters and looks at the house which was once his own. A beggar-woman is sitting on the step; he will give her his last coin, in the hope that a good deed may bring healing to his soul. She rises—it is the Duchess—and holds out to him her child. He takes it and she vanishes. He turns to the cathedral door to go in and pray. The specter of Valentine, in armor, bars the way. But Faust is still master of the spirits of evil, and the ghost disappears.

Faust kneels before the crucifix, but can find no words in which to pray. The watchman comes up behind him. Faust raises his head, and, by the light of the watchman's lantern, sees, instead of the crucifix, the form of Helen. Is there no grace?

But Faust rises to his feet; he feels new strength, a supernatural power. He lays the body of the child on the ground, covers it with a cloak, draws a magic circle round it, and stands in the middle. The child shall continue his existence, shall fulfill what he has left undone; thus Faust survives forever—Faust, the eternal will.

He falls dead. The watchman proclaims midnight, and the dead child, metamorphosed into a naked youth, springs from the ground with a budding branch in his hand, and strides quickly over the snow into the night. The watchman—it is Mephistopheles—holds his lantern over the body of Faust. He hoists the corpse on his shoulder and slowly carries it away.

With even so sketchy a resume as this, it will be recognized that Busoni looks at the Faust myth from an entirely new point of view. In the first form of the legend—embodied during the rivalry of the Reformation and Renaissance—Faust's crime was in preferring earthly science to the sacred revelations of religion; that alone was sufficient to damn him to eternal fire. This conception underlay Christopher Marlowe's "Tragical History of Dr. Faustus," which marked the

ONE TEN-BILLIONTH OF AN ATMOSPHERE

IN AN ordinary electric light bulb there is as nearly a vacuum as a suction pump can produce; but in such bulbs as those used for X-ray work and high-power radio transmisson the vacuum must be far more nearly perfect. L. A. Hawkins describes in Science and Invention (New York) how these high vacuums are obtained.

"Many types of pumps have been designed to produce a specially high vacuum," he writes, "but the crowning triumph in their construction was reached when Dr. Irving Langmuir devised his mercury vapor mechanism, since come to be known as the Langmuir condensation pump.

"This device is not only the most rapid of all high vacuum pumps, but it also will produce the highest vacuum yet attained by man.

"It came into being as the result of efforts to get higher and higher vacuums for the purpose of research and to obtain this condition quickly. The pump, in spite of its remarkable effectiveness, is simplicity itself in operation. It has no moving mechanical parts. A stream of mercury vapor, produced by a small electric boiler, and moving at high velocity, entraps and sweeps along with it the air or gas molecules from the vessel undergoing exhaustion and delivers them to the rough pump, which ejects them into the air, while the mercury vapor itself is condensed and flows back into the little boiler.

"Like most tools of science, the Langmuir condensation pump has found a field of great practical utility. All the Coolidge tubes, which have revolutionized X-ray practice, and all tne high-power radio tubes, or pliotrons, as they are called, which have made long-distance wireless telephony practicable, are exhausted by this pump.

"Its speed has been stated in this way—it will reduce the pressure in a 1-liter vessel (approximately 1 quart) from 100 microns (approximately 1-10,000 atmosphere) to 1-100 micron (approximately 1-100,000,000 atmosphere) in two seconds.

"As for the degree of vacuum which may readily be obtained with the Langmuir pump the physicist would say—better than a ten-thousandth of micron. This can be expressed approximately at 1-10,000,000,000 atmosphere; but, even so, the statement lacks vividness, so let us try in this way:

"First, to get an idea of what atmospheric pressure means in terms of molecules, suppose each molecule of air enlarged to the size of a fine grain of sea sand, or 1-100th of an inch in diameter. How big a beach could be made from the sand corresponding to the contents of a cubic inch of air at atmospheric pressure? It would make a beach extending from New York to San Francisco 1000 feet wide and over 10 feet deep. Had it been on such a beach as this that Alice's friends were strolling when the walrus put his hypothetical question of seven maids with seven mops sweeping for half a year, there could have been no doubt in the carpenter's mind of the futility of their superstitious efforts. And yet, by the aid of the Langmuir pump, assuming the sand were air again, that magnificent beach could, in a few minutes, be reduced to an almost invisible line only two grains broad and one grain deep."

the loose sleeve of her jacket, and showed the bare forearm to the light. He put his thumb and little finger about it, and closed them on it, gently. "It is very thin," he said. "And under her eyes, if it were not for the paint," he went on, mercilessly, "you could see how deep the lines are. This red spot on her cheek," he said, gravely, "is where Miss Vane kissed her tonight, and this is where Alma Stanley kissed her, and that Lee girl. You have heard of them, perhaps. They will never kiss her again. She is going to grow up to be a sweet, fine, beautiful woman—are you not?" he said, gently drawing the child higher up on his shoulder, until her face touched his, and still keeping his eyes from the face of the elder man. "She does not look like her mother," he said. "She has her father's auburn hair and straight nose and finer-cut lips and chin. She looks very much like her father. It seems a pity," he added, abruptly. "She will grow up," he went on, "without knowing him, or who he is—or was, if he should die. She will never speak with him, or see him, or take his hand. She may pass him some day on the street and will not know him, and he will not know her, but she will grow to be very fond of and to be very grateful to the simple, kind-hearted old people who will have cared for her when she was a little girl."

The child in his arms stirred, shivered slightly, and awoke. The two men watched her breathlessly, with silent intentness. She raised her head and stared around the unfamiliar room doubtfully, then turned to where her father stood, looking at him a moment, and passed him by; and then, looking up into Van Bibber's face, recognized him, and gave a gentle, sleepy smile, and, with a sigh of content and confidence, drew her arm up closer around his neck, and let her head fall back upon his breast.

The father sprang to his feet with a quick, jealous gasp of pain. "Give her to me!" he said, fierce, under his breath, snatching her out of Van Bibber's arms. "She is mine; give her to me!"

Van Bibber closed the door gently behind him, and went jumping down the winding stairs of the Berkeley three steps at a time.

An hour later, when the English servant came to his master's door, he found him still awake and sitting in the dark by the open window, holding something in his arms and looking out over the sleeping city.

"James," he said, "you can make up a place for me here on the lounge. Miss Caruthers, my daughter, will sleep in my room tonight."

pleted assembling his little vessel inside the bottle, because, as he says, "it was too easy."

Another thing he did was to produce a "home-made" music roll for the player piano at their home. It was done, not as an experiment, but because he could not obtain the roll for an old song of which his mother was fond and which she wanted to add to their collection of music rolls. At the music store they told him that the song, published some 25 years ago, never had been reproduced on a roll and never would be.

"We'll see about that," said Carpenter.

Returning home, he mystified the neighborhood druggist by purchasing "5 cents' worth of wrapping paper." Then, with the same little pocket knife, he went to work. (Carpenter does not know anything about music, except for a few mandolin lessons, taken when he was a boy.) First, the tough, light-blue paper was cut the exact width of an ordinary music roll. Then he numbered all the white and black keys on the piano and, one by one, picked out the notes on the printed score.

"It was purely a mechanical job," he explained. "All I had to do was to locate the position of each printed note on the keyboard, which, of course, showed me where the cut should be made in the roll. And the time value of each note as printed on the score determined the length of the cut.. It was tedious work, but not difficult."

The roll plays very well, except during a brief and startling passage near the middle, where, as Carpenter explains, "the knife slipped." He plans to make another and unblemished roll some day. When he had finished the first roll, he took it to the music store where he had tried to make his purchase. A clerk examined the roll, tried it and asked where he had gotten it.

"I made it myself," said Carpenter.

"You did not," replied the clerk, and couldn't be convinced.

Another bit of his handiwork is a music cabinet, made of different colored woods and with a handsomely inlaid top containing 384 pieces. All the inlay work was done with the same pocket knife, even some fairly long and straight pieces, which look as though they had been finished with a plane. Once the top had been glued together, Carpenter used sandpaper to smooth it off before being varnished.

The only "hobby" which ever has added anything to Carpenter's income is the little job printing shop in his backyard, where for several years he has done job work for people in the neighborhood. He is 36 years old, single and resides with his mother, Mrs. Mary A. Carpenter.

Carpenter now is planning to build a curio cabinet, with glass doors, behind which his ivory figures may be safely displayed. So fragile are they that at present he must keep them put away in a drawer, wrapped in cotton batting.

The Sinister Record of Mail Pouch Robberies

to be shown. The assumption is that it may cost the lives of some mail employes and some bandits, but eventually it is expected to discourage the robbers.

The care with which plans must be laid for such a coup as that at the Dearborn street station in Chicago and the time required for the development of the details, rather precludes the idea of any system of robbery directed from afar. It certainly shuts out the likelihood that the Chicago bandits jumped by train to Cincinnati and there committed that crime also, all within 24 hours.

Take such a crime as the Chicago affair was and let us construct a tenable theory to explain how it was organized. A young man working in the Federal reserve bank or the postoffice sees that the bank is making regular shipments of large amounts of currency to distant points. He probably observed that the bank sends out the currency to a given branch at certain intervals at a certain hour of the day and in a special manner. Let us assume him to be already corrupted and with acquaintances among criminals; then his course is decided. He takes some of his forbidden associates into his confidence and the job is planned. But the young man may be upright and merely foolish. He may simply talk of the huge shipments of money and bonds. Someone with more evil designs may hear what he has to say, get information from him by the exercise of a little tact and persuasion, or definitely corrupt the young employe by taking him into a scheme. The rest is simplicity itself.

Or the mainspring of the plan need be no more than a driver of a mail truck. Postal and bank officials often believe they are discreet in the moving of money when, in fact, they betray themselves every time by their preoccupation and the care they take in the handling of valuables. Such precautions are no doubt necessary, but they are always certain to make the postal employes aware that something unusual is being done. A truck driver is likely to see that something of special value is about to be intrusted to him. He makes certain of the identity of the bag. A telephone call summons confederates.

It is apparent that these crimes are simply and directly executed. The place to look for the guilty persons is at the focus of the crime, not in jail or in the mythical region inhabited by some national director of this sort of robbery.

Lessing was the first to recognize that Faust's thirst for knowledge might be a virtue instead of a sin; he even sketched a play in which the scholar is saved. With Goethe also the magician finds salvation, but through philanthropy, the love of mankind, in which the philosophers of Voltaire's time believed they had found the sum of all virtues.

To Busoni's Faust all the rewards yearned for in previous versions became nothing more than chimeras—youth, happiness, personal fame, earthly pleasures. One is survived merely by the children of one's body—this is the only immortality, the sole hope.

And Mephistopheles, bearing away the body—has he not the air of a person cheated in a bargain? He has worked and toiled to gain Faust's immortal soul—and behold! when he comes to collect, no such thing exists; he is left holding a useless and empty corpse. It looks very much as if the devil had been duped.

Busoni, who appeared in a piano recital in St. Louis several years ago, has written other operas. His "Die Brautwahl," composed in 1913, after a tale by E. T. H. Hoffman, has been called an admirable piece of work in the comic romantic vein. Two short operas, "Arlecchino" and "Turandot," were recently produced at Zurich and are to be given this spring in Berlin.

ball. Pitching distance was extended to 60 feet and the rule that compelled the pitcher to keep his right foot stationary while delivering the ball was changed. The pitcher of today has seven chances with the batter—four balls and three strikes. My first recollections of baseball are that the pitcher had 12 chances—nine balls and three strikes. Some time in the '80s the strikes were increased to four. The next move was to cut down the pitcher's chances to seven balls, and then came the present rule of four balls and three strikes."

Baseball in one form or another has been played in the United States for more than three-quarters of a century. It is the game of the people and the most popular of American sports.

"What if professional baseball were to get a serious black eye?" I suggested.

"Huh!" grunted Connell. "Do you know what would happen? The kids on the back lot would still play ball and the game would come back in the natural order."

American young man. At mention of the beloved word he glanced down at her pleasurably.

"Thank you," he said. "I'm glad you got around to it finally. Those that love me always call me Bill."

"You called me Dolores."

"I move we make it unanimous. I'm a foe to formality."

"Second the motion, Bill. So am I—when I care to be—and in our case your formality is spoiling our comradeship. And now, with reference to the extraordinary Senor Webster"——

"Why, the poor old horse has been down with ptomaine poisoning. They carried him off the train at St. Louis and stood him on his head and pumped him out and just did manage to cancel his order for a new tombstone. He says he's feeding regularly again and has booked passage on La Estrellita, so we can look for him on the next steamer arriving."

"Oh, the poor fellow!" Dolores murmured—so fervently that Billy was on the point of hurling his heart at her feet on the instant.

The thousand dollars Webster had cabled Billy "for a road-stake" had been dwindling rapidly under the stimulus of one continuous opportunity to spend the same in a quarter where it was calculated to bring the most joy. The pleasures of the Sobrantean capital were not such that the average Yankee citizen might be inspired to prefer them with any degree of enthusiasm, but such as they were, Dolores Ruey had them all. In a country where the line between pure blood and mixed is drawn so strictly as it is in Sobrante, Billy Geary was, of course, a social impossibility. He was a Caucasian who would shake hands and have a drink with a gentleman whose nails showed blue at the bases, for all his white skin—and in the limited upper-class circles of Buenaventura, where none but pure-bred descendants of pure-bred Castilians intermingled, the man or woman who failed, however slightly, to remember at all times that he was white, was distinctly persona non grata.

The first time Billy appeared in public riding in the same victoria with Mother Jenks and Dolores, therefore, he was fully aware that for the future Dolores Ruey was, like himself, socially defunct in Sobrante. However, he did not care, for he had a sneaking suspicion Dolores was as indifferent as he; in fact, he took a savage delight in the knowledge that the girl would be proscribed, for with Dolores cut off from all other society, she must, of necessity, turn to him throughout her visit. So, up to the night La Estrellita, with John Stuart Webster on board, dropped anchor on the quarantine ground, Mr. Geary was the unflagging ballyhoo for a personally conducted tour of Dolores Ruey's native land within a radius of 15 miles about Buenaventura. He was absolutely bogged in the quagmire of his first love affair, but until his mining concession should amply justify an avowal of his passion, an instinctive sense of the eternal fitness of things reminded Billy of the old proverb that a closed mouth catches no flies. And in the meantime (such is the optimism of youth) he decided there was no need for worry, for when a girl calls a fellow Bill, when she tells him he's a scout and doesn't care a whoop for any society except him—caramba! It's great!

A wireless from Webster warned Billy of the former's imminent arrival. Just before sunset Billy and Dolores, riding along the Malecon, sighted a blur of smoke far out to sea—a blur that grew and grew until they could make out the graceful white hull of La Estrellita, before the swift tropic night descended and the lights of the great vessel shimmered across the harbor.

"Too late to clear quarantine tonight," Billy mourned, as he and Dolores rode back to her hotel. "All the same, I'm going to borrow the launch of my good friend Leber and his protege, Don Juan Cafetero, and go out to the steamer tonight. I can heave to a little way from the steamer and welcome the old rascal, anyhow; he'll be expecting me to do that, and I wouldn't disappoint him for a farm."

Fortunately, good little Leber consented to Billy's request, and Don Juan Cafetero was sober enough to turn the engine over and run the launch. From the deck of the steamer Webster, smoking his post-prandial cigar, caught sight of the launch's red and green sidelights chugging through the inky blackness; as the little craft slid up to within a cable's length of the steamer and hove to, something told Webster that Billy Geary would soon be paging him. He edged over to the rail.

"That you, Bill?" he shouted.

"I knew you'd come, Billy boy."

"I knew you'd know it, Johnny. Can't come aboard, you know, until the ship clears, but I can lie off here and say hello. How is your internal mechanism?"

"Grand. I've got the world by the tail on a down-hill haul once more, son. However, your query reminds me I haven't taken the medicine the doctor warned me to take after meals for a couple of weeks. Wait a minute, Bill, until I go to my stateroom and do my duty by my stomach."

For 10 minutes Billy and Don Juan Cafetero bobbed about in the launch; then a stentorian voice shouted from the steamer: "Hey, you! In the launch, there! Not so close! Back off!"

Don Juan kicked the launch back 50 feet. "That will do!" the voice called again.

"Hello!" Billy soliloquized. "That's Jack Webster's voice. I've heard him bossing a gang of miners too often not to recognize that note of command. Wonder what he's up to. I thought he acted strangely—preferring medicine to me the minute I hailed him!"

While he was considering the matter, a voice behind him said, very softly and indistinctly, like a man with a harelip:

"Mr. Geary, will you be good enough to back your launch a couple of hundred feet? When I'm certain I can't be seen from the steamer, I'll come aboard."

Billy turned, and in the dim light of his binnacle lamp observed a beautiful pair of white hands grasping the gunwale on the starboard quarter. He peered over and made out the head and shoulders of a man.

"All right," he replied in a low voice. "Hang where you are and you'll be clear of the propeller."

He signaled Don Juan, who backed swiftly away, while Billy doused the binnacle lamp.

"That'll do," the thick voice said presently. "Bear a hand, friend, and I'll climb over."

He came, as naked as Mercury, sprawled on his belly in the cockpit, opened his mouth, spat out a compact little roll of tinfoil, opened it and drew out a ball of paper, which he flattened out on the floor of the cockpit and handed up to Billy.

"Thank you," he said, very courteously and distinctly now. "My credentials, Mr. Geary, if you please."

Billy relighted the lamp and read:

"Dear Billy: I don't know the bearer from Adam's off ox; all I know about him is that he has all the outward marks of a gentleman, the courage of a bear-cat, a sense of humor and a head for which the Presidente of Sobrante will gladly pay a considerable number of pesos oro. Don't give up the head, because I like it and we do not need the money—yet. Take him ashore without anybody knowing it; hide him, clothe him, feed him—then forget all about him. Ever thine,

"J. S. WEBSTER."

"Kick the boat ahead again, Cafferty," Billy ordered, quietly. He turned to the late arrival. "Mr. Man, your credentials are all in apple-pie order. Do you happen to know this bay is swarming with man-eating sharks?"

The man raised a fine, strong, youthful face and grinned at him. "Hobson's choice, Mr. Geary," he replied. "Afloat or ashore, the sharks are after me. Sir, I am your debtor." He crawled into the cabin and stretched out on the settee as John Stuart Webster's voice came floating across the dark waters.

"Hey, Billy!"

"Hey, yourself!"

"Everything well with you, Billy?"

"All is lovely, Jack, and the goose honks high. By the way, that friend of yours called with his letter of introduction. I took care of him."

"Thanks. I suppose you'll call for me in that launch tomorrow morning?"

"Surest thing you know, Jack. Good night, old top."

"Good night, Billy. See you in the morning."

Don Juan Cafetero swung the launch and headed back for the city. At Leber's little dock Billy stepped ashore, while Don Juan backed out into the dark bay again in order to avoid inquisitive visitors. Billy hastened to El Bueno Amigo and returned presently with a bundle of clothes; at an agreed signal Don Juan kicked the launch into the dock again and Billy went aboard.

"Divil a thing, Misther Geary. Thank you, sor," the Gaelic wreck replied blithely and disappeared in the darkness, leaving Billy to guide the stranger to El Bueno Amigo, where he was taken into the confidence of Mother Jenks, and, on Billy's guarantee of the board bill, furnished with a room and left to his own devices.

John Stuart Webster came down the gangplank into Leber's launch hard on the heels of the port doctor.

"You young horsethief," he cried, affectionately. "I believe it's the custom down this way for men to kiss each other. We'll dispense with that, but by"—— He folded Billy in a paternal embrace, then held him at arm's length and looked him over.

"Lord, son," he said, "you're as thin as a snake. I'll have to feed you up."

As they sped toward the landing place, he looked Billy over once more. "I have it," he declared. "You need a change of climate to get rid of that malaria. Just show me this little old mining claim of yours, Bill, and then hike for God's country. Three months up there will put you right again, and by the time you get back, we'll be about ready to weigh the first clean-up."

"Huh! I suppose you don't think I'm equal to the task of straightening out this concession of yours and making a hummer out of it, eh?"

The young fellow looked across at him sheepishly. "Mine?" he jeered. "Who's talking about a mine? I'm thinking of a girl!"

"Oh!"

"Some girl, Johnny."

"I hope she's not some parrakeet," Webster bantered. "Have you looked up her pedigree?"

"Ah-h-h!" Billy spat over the side in sheer disgust. "This is an American girl—born here, but white—raised in U. S. A. I've only known her three weeks, but—ah!" And Billy kissed his hand into space.

"Well, I'm glad I find you so happy, boy. I suppose you're going to let your old Jack-partner give her the once-over and render his report before you make the fatal leap—eh?"

"Sure! I want you to meet her. I've been telling her all about you, and she's crazy to meet you."

"Good news! I had a good friend once—twice—three times—and lost him every time. Wives get so suspicious of their husbands' single friends, you know, so I hope I make a hit with your heart's desire, Billy. When do you pull off the wedding?"

"Oh," said Billy, "that's premature, Jack. I haven't asked her. How could I, until I'm able to support her?"

"Look here, son," Webster replied, "don't you go to work and be the kind of fool I was. You get married and take a chance. If you do, you'll have a son sprouting into manhood when you're as old as I. A man ought to marry young, Bill. Hang the odds. I know what's good for you."

At the hotel, while Webster shaved and arrayed himself in an immaculate white duck suit, with a broad black silk belt, duck shoes and a panama hat, Billy sent a note to Dolores, apprising her that John Stuart Webster had arrived—and would she be good enough to receive them?

Miss Ruey would be that gracious. She was waiting for them in the veranda just off the patio, outwardly calm, but inwardly a foment of conflicting emotions. As they approached she affected not to see them and, turning, glanced in the opposite direction; nor did she move her head until Billy's voice, speaking at her elbow, said:

"Well, Dolores, here's my old Jack-partner, waiting to be introduced. Jack, permit me to present Miss Dolores Ruey."

She turned her face and rose graciously, marking with secret triumph the light of recognition that leaped to his eyes, hovered there the hundredth part of a second and departed, leaving those keen, quizzical blue orbs appraising her in the most natural manner imaginable. Webster bowed.

"It is a great happiness to meet you, Miss Ruey," he said, gravely.

Dolores gave him her hand. "You have doubtless forgotten, Mr. Webster, but I think we have met before."

"Indeed!" John Stuart Webster murmured interestedly. "So stupid of me not to remember. Where did we meet?"

"He has a profound sense of humor," she soliloquized. "He's going to force me into the open. Oh, dear, I'm helpless." Aloud she said: "On the train in Death Valley last month, Mr. Webster. You came aboard with whiskers."

Webster shook his head, slowly, as if mystified. "I fear you're mistaken, Miss Ruey. I cannot recall the meeting, and if I ever wore whiskers, no human being would be able to recognize me without them. Besides, I wasn't on the train in Death Valley last month. I was in Denver—so you must have met some other Mr. Webster."

She flushed furiously. "I didn't think I could be mistaken," she answered, a trifle coldly.

"It is my misfortune that you were," he replied graciously. "Certainly, had we met at that time, I should not have failed to recognize you now. Somehow, Miss Ruey, I never have any luck."

She was completely outgeneraled, and, having the good sense to realize it, submitted gracefully. "He's perfectly horrible," she told herself, "but at least he can lie like a gentleman—and I always did like that kind of man."

So they chatted on the veranda until luncheon was announced and Dolores left them to go to her room.

"Well?" Billy queried the moment she was out of ear-shot. "What do you think, Johnny?"

"I think," said John Stuart Webster, slowly, "that you're a good picker, Bill. She's my ideal of a fine young woman, and my advice to you is to marry her. I'll grub-stake you. Bill, this stiff collar is choking me; I wish you'd wait here while I go to my room and rustle up a soft one."

In the privacy of his room John Stuart Webster sat down on his bed and held his head in his hands, for he had just received a blow in the solar plexus and was still groggy; there was an ache in his head, and the quizzical light had faded from his eyes. Presently, however, he pulled himself together and approaching the mirror looked long at his weather-beaten countenance.

He changed to a soft collar, and when he descended to the patio to join Billy once more he was, to all outward appearance, his usual unperturbed self, for his was one of those rare natures that can derive a certain comfort from the misery of self-sacrifice—and in that five minutes alone in his room, John Stuart Webster had wrestled with the tragedy of his life and won.

He had resolved to give Billy the right of way on the highway to happiness.

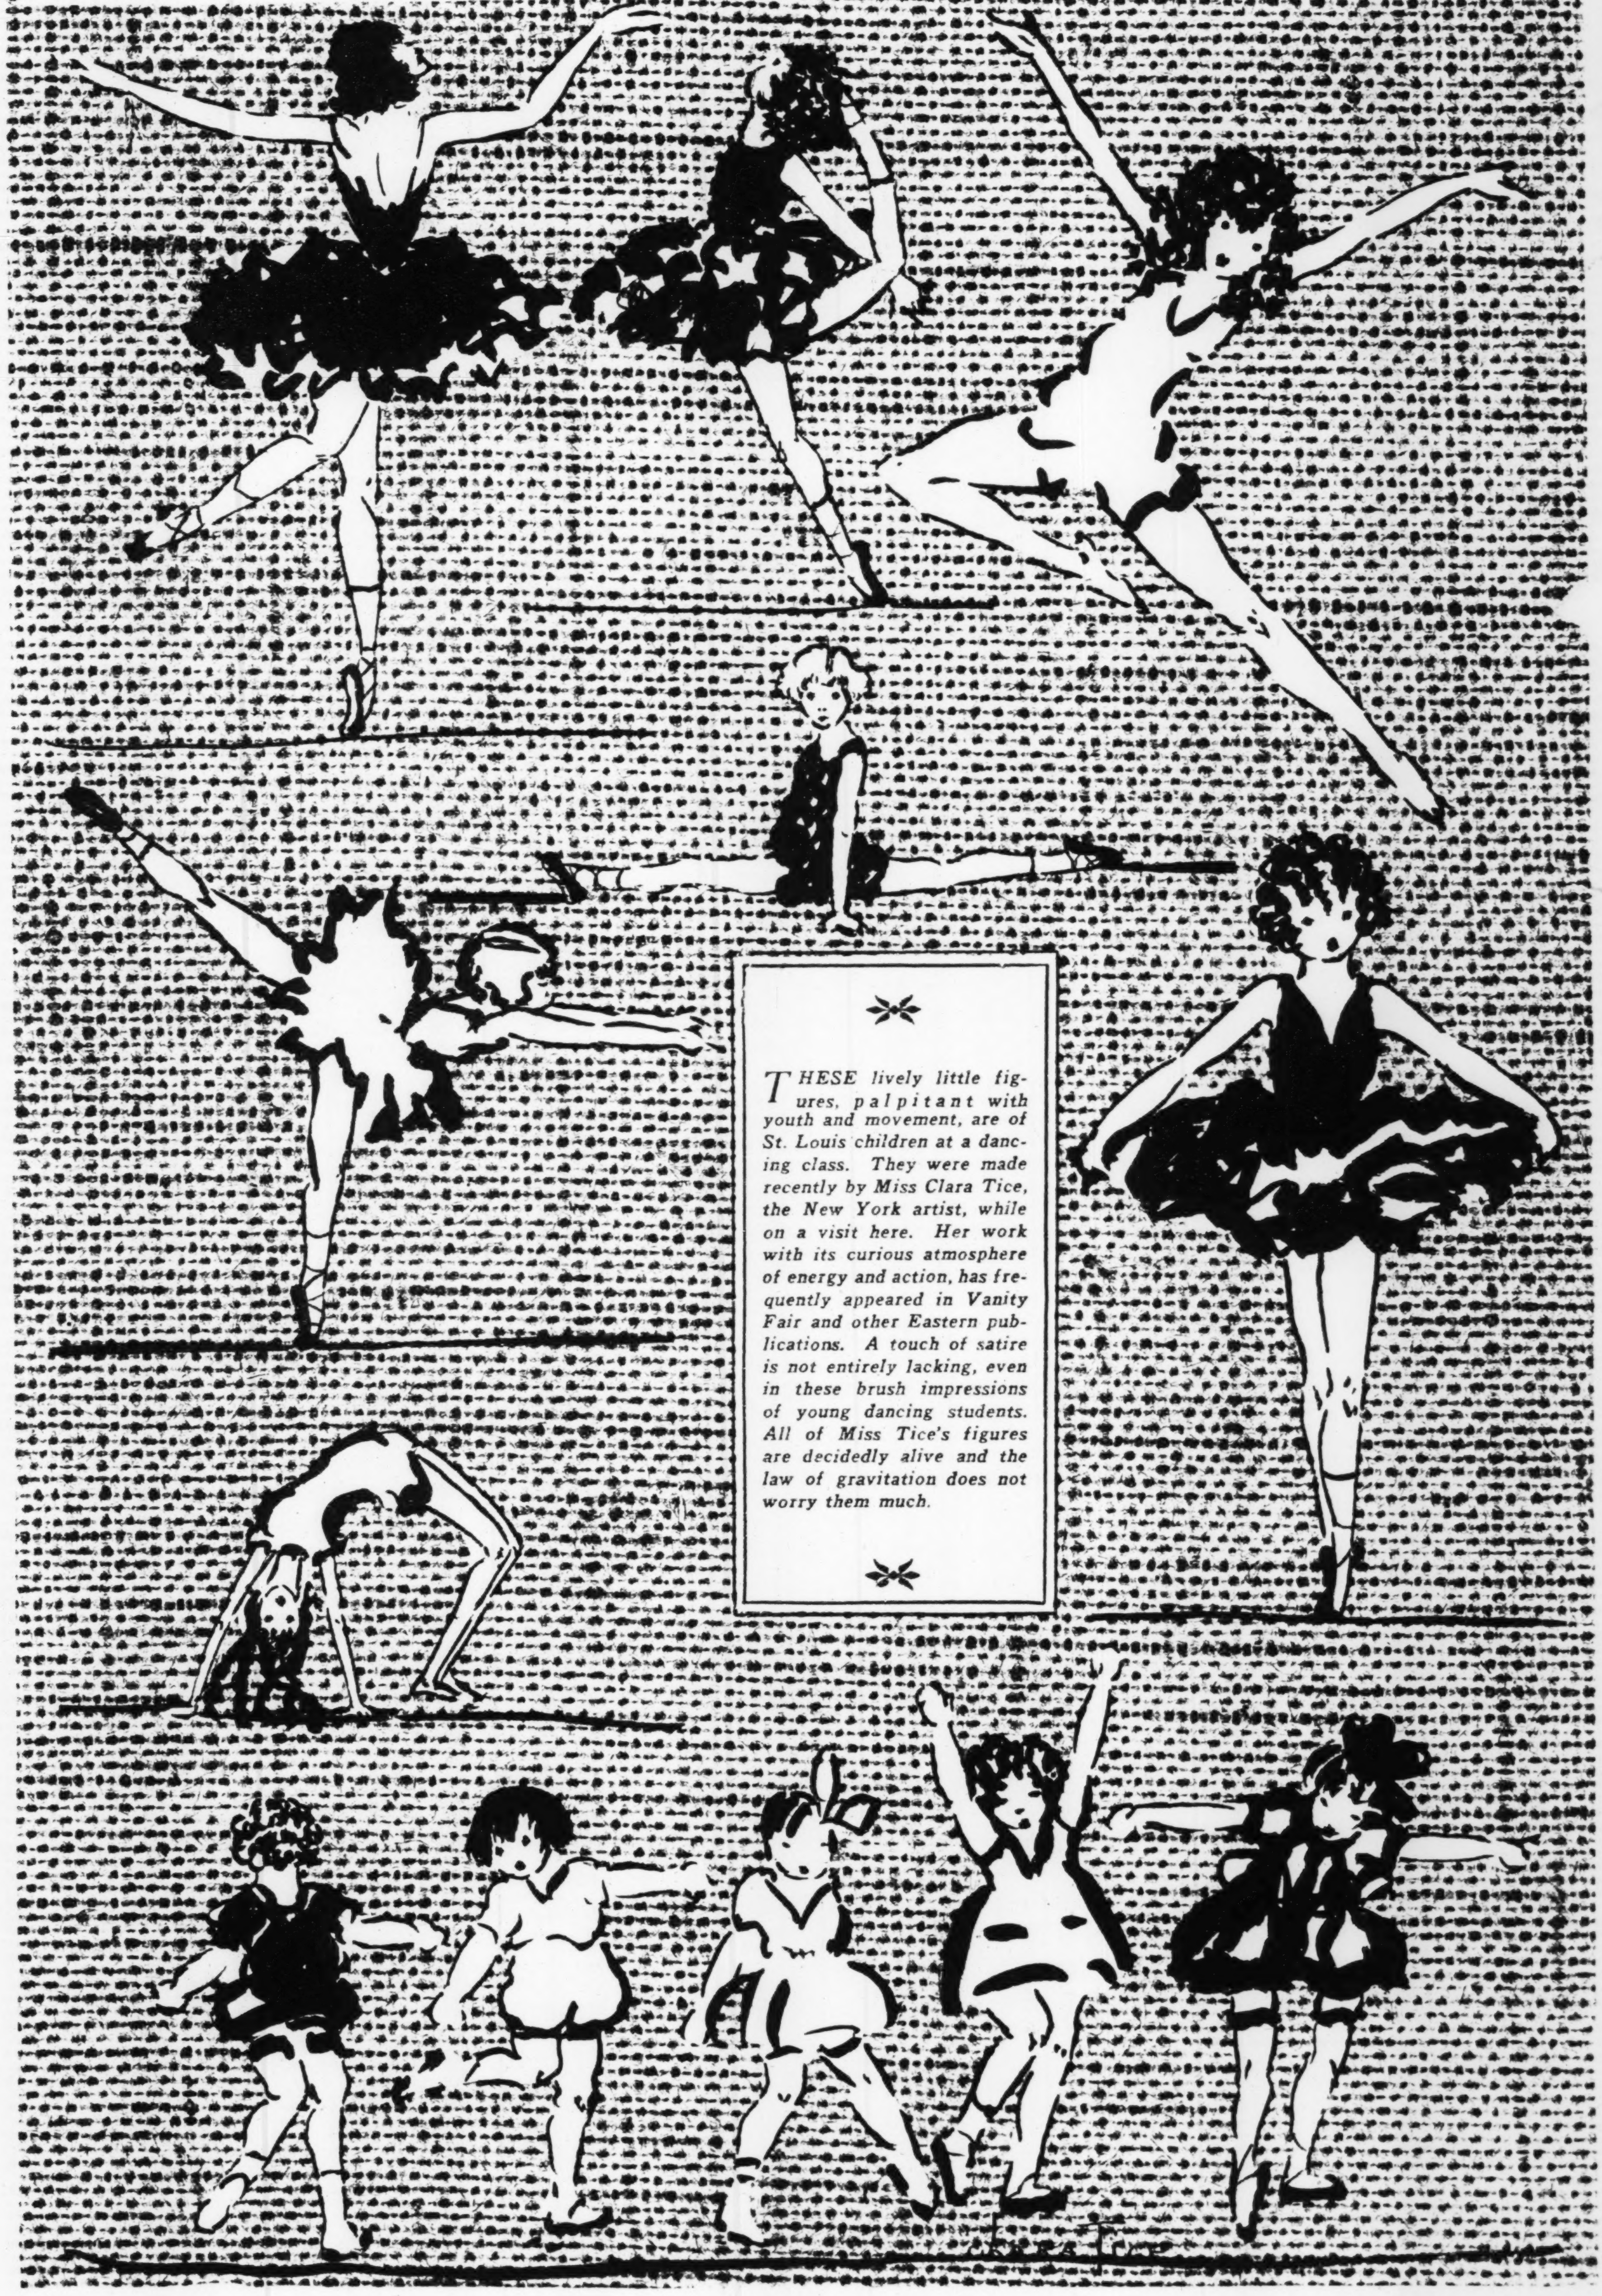
Sketches of St. Louis Children, by Clara Tice, as She Saw Them at Dancing Class



THESE lively little figures, palpitant with youth and movement, are of St. Louis children at a dancing class. They were made recently by Miss Clara Tice, the New York artist, while on a visit here. Her work with its curious atmosphere of energy and action, has frequently appeared in Vanity Fair and other Eastern publications. A touch of satire is not entirely lacking, even in these brush impressions of young dancing students. All of Miss Tice's figures are decidedly alive and the law of gravitation does not worry them much.
